

Husker Varsity Thump Frosh 81-0; Defensive Team Shines

By BOB BANKS

Before a crowd of about 15,000 fans, Saturday the Cornhusker varsity grid squad sent an avalanche of touchdowns fumbling down on a willing but completely outclassed Freshmen 11.

The final score was 81-0. Losing no time in putting their Curtis training into use, the varsity took the opening kickoff and had a touchdown in two minutes.

John Bordogna, quarterback, raced the kickoff to his own 28-yard line.

Halfback Tommy Carodine took a Bordogna handoff and skirted left end to the 43. Fullback Nick Adduci added eight yards on two thrusts through the center.

Then Carodine set up the games first touchdown with another left end run to the Frosh 24.

With the help of another Adduci five-yard plunge, Carodine scored from 17 yards out. Bobby Decker converted to give his mates a 7-0 edge.

After both teams had been forced to punt once apiece, the Frosh kicked out of bounds on the varsity 27. Bordogna had the answer to the next varsity touchdown as he passed to Adduci on the Freshmen 18.

From that point the veteran fullback picked up eight more yards through a leaky Freshmen line. Again using his favored left end sweep, Carodine got to the two. On the next play the frosh held Don Vogt, left halfback, to no gain, but Adduci found a hole in right guard and drove across the double stripe. Decker's extra point was good and the varsity sported a 14-0 lead.

Linebacker George Cifra snuffed out the Freshmen attack on its next try when he intercepted Dan Brown's pass.

However, the varsity machine sputtered for three downs, and Ike Hanscom's linemen tackled Bordogna on the fourth.

The yearlings picked up five yards on an end sweep by Bill Thayer and a line plunge by Dennis Korinek. After these two plays Duane Rankin punted to Decker, who got back to his own 36.

After Carodine and Vogt reeled off runs that showed the ball up to the Frosh 3, Adduci scored over left guard. Decker booted the extra point.

Not letting up on their attack, the varsity defensive line forced Rankin to punt to Decker on the varsity 40.

Behind some excellent blocking, the diminutive Omaha scooted down the west sidelines for another varsity marker. This time, though, he missed the conversion, but the varsity led 27-0 at the end of the first quarter.

Korinek returned Frank Simon's kickoff to the Frosh 33. After two carries, he got to the 39. But the yearlings again fizzled out when Brown's pass fell incomplete, and Rankin was forced to punt.

Decker ran the ball back to the varsity 39. Bordogna rifled one to end Bill Giles on the Frosh 44, and he bulled his way to the 38.

Breaking off center, Jim Cederdahl, halfback, made it to the 18. From that point he carried through left tackle for a TD. Decker again failed to convert.

The last touchdown of the first half came after Emil Radik returned another Rankin punt to his own 38. Bob Smith rounded right end to the yearling 29. After dashes by Cederdahl and Smith, Bordogna passed to Kiles on the nine. Don Norris, substituting for Bordogna, picked up a first down on a quarterback sneak. Then fading back to the Frosh 25, he found Giles with an aerial on the two. Novak scored through center. As the half ended the varsity led 40-0.

The second half was almost a carbon copy of the first. Although they tried valiantly to get an offense started, the Frosh were constantly bogged down by penalties, ragged blocking and a hard charging varsity line.

Take up right where they left off when the half ended, Bill Glassford's crew traded punts with the Frosh, and then proceeded to add insult to injury.

Tackle Jerry Minnick recovered a Freshmen fumble on his opposition 11. Carodine, choosing right end this time, gained three yards, but the varsity was penalized for being offside.

So starting from the 13, Carodine smashed over right tackle for another six points. This time Decker converted.

The Frosh made their greatest advance midway in the third quarter when some fine running by Korinek and two Rankin passes put the ball on the 50-yard line. But then Rankin was thrown for a ten-yard loss. After a Bordogna-Novak pass put the ball on the Freshmen 35, Vogt hit left tackle and went all the way. With Decker's conversion, the Glassfordmen led, 54-0.

On remaining touchdowns came on a brilliant 42 yard sprint by Vogt, a quarterback sneak by Norris, a 48-yard punt return by Emil Radik and a long Bordogna pass to end Paul Fredstrom.

Outstanding among linemen were Carl Brasee, Clayton Curtis, Minnick, Ted Connor, Dick Goll, Ed Husmann, Cifra, Bub Mullen, Wayne Handshy, Tony Winey and Joe Ponselgo.

Although the score was huge, Glassford asserted that a lot of work still remains to be done.

Rookie Quarterbacks To Guide Minnesota Destiny

A situation thought to be unique in the annals of "major" college football competition will prevail when Wes Fesler's first University of Minnesota football team squares away against Washington's highly-favored Huskies September 29 in Memorial Stadium at Minneapolis.

Not only is a completely untried newcomer — sophomore Paul Giel of Winona — slated to start at quarterback for the Gophers, but not a single one of the four youngsters comprising Fesler's signal-calling corps ever played in a college football game. Rounding out this quartet is Don Swanson, Max Schmitt and Joe Burgoyne.

There is not a chance of an experienced or upperclass quarterback getting into the game for the Gophers for the simple reason that there is no such individual on the squad.

This is probably the youngest gang of quarterbacks to ever suit up for a Big Ten eleven. Giel, Swanson, and Schmitt are 18. Burgoyne is the "old man" of the group at 20.

While the past history of Minnesota football reveals only a very small handful of sophomores who have made any substantial contribution to the Gopher football cause, Coach Fesler refuses to worry about the youngsters who will be responsible for the direction of the Maroon and Gold eleven this fall. In fact he tends to the optimistic and feels that with a little seasoning the signal-calling position will be one of the strongest on the club.

Already Giel, Swanson, and Schmitt rate as potentially the most capable trio of forward passers that has played at a single position in the entire history of Minnesota football. Says Fesler of his "brain-trusters," "we expect these kids to make errors typical of any newcomer to college competition, but they are going to be all right. They will play a lot of fine football."

The Benchwarmer

By BOB BANKS
Sports Editor

Although most of us are primarily interested in varsity sports, The Benchwarmer would like to pause long enough today to salute the Husker intramural athletic program.

If it were not for intramurals, an occasional game of ping pong is as close as many students would get to actual athletic participation.

But under the capable direction of Ed Higgenbotham and Charley Miller, the University intramural program offers a complete variety of sports.

Higgenbotham and Miller have arranged a schedule which includes several sports for the fall, winter and spring seasons.

And it is arranged so that Independent, Greek and Interdenominational teams can all participate.

The leagues are divided up in such a way that the strong teams will be competing against each other as will the weaker outfits.

This set up gives every team an even opportunity to win a championship title of some sort.

And though the intramurals may not receive as great an amount of notice as do the varsity sports, there is no doubt that a lot of interest and spirit is present.

One has only to note the teams practicing and listen to the talk about games to realize the important role that intramurals play in campus life.

To make the competition even better, a trophy is awarded to teams that win All-University sports events. And due recognition is given to all others that win places in the final standings.

Keeping right in step with other Husker activities, Higgenbotham and Miller have launched a fall program which includes touch football, golf, tennis, bowling and a basketball free throw contest.

Football will be in the intramural spotlight for the next two months, though the other four also occupy a prominent place. Since they are very well played and officiated the grid games drew plenty of fans. Wander out to the Ag campus football fields any evening during the week, and you will see plenty of spectators watching their favorite teams in action.

Many players who were on high school football teams compete in intramurals, and it is quite obvious from some of the plays they pull off that none of their talent was left behind when they enrolled in college.

Despite the fact that the fall IM slate is quite heavy, the winter program lists an even greater amount of sports.

Included are swimming, an indoor track and field meet, wrestling, basketball, handball, squash volleyball, badminton and water basketball.

That sports menu should be thorough enough so that everyone can find something he likes.

And in an effort to include even more, the intramural department has tentative plans for a rifle shooting match.

In the spring sports-hungry students can satisfy their appetites with tennis, softball and golf.

With the tentative rifle match included, 17 different sports are on deck for this year.

Besides Higgenbotham and Miller, Bill Mundell, our predecessor, also deserves a lot of credit for the amount of work he put forth to give intramurals more complete coverage and publicity.

Until he did start building it up, intramural athletics were almost ignored by The Daily Nebraskan.

And except for a little date with Uncle Sam, Bill would have been an IM supervisor this year.

TCU Grid Fortunes Depend On Surgery

By MARSHALL KUSHNER
Assistant Sports Editor

Early reports from Fort Worth, the stronghold of the Texas Christian Horned Frogs were that the football fortunes of the TCU football squad depended on several knee operations.

Everyone down Texas way seemed extremely concerned over the fact that Gil Bartosh and Keith Flowers were having knee-attack difficulties. On top of these two, Malvin Flowers and Bobby Harding were having trouble.

The Texas medics hit an unenviable average on these four football aces, as all four underwent surgery and all four are now running as smoothly as ever.

Coach L. R. "Dutch" Meyer was slightly overjoyed about Bartosh's condition, since the TCU attack is not only built around this Texas cyclone, it could be said that Bartosh is the Texas Christian attack. The Cornhusker football team will find this out Saturday.

Bartosh weighs only 175, but he is one of the top backfield men, pound-for-pound in the Southwest conference. Bartosh gained 1,733 yards running and passing last season and all around TCU's Will Rogers Stadium fans claim that Bartosh will assist Bob Smith in taking the most complete control of the Texas badland area since the time of the two fisted James' boys.

Flowers is a solid 200 pounds of Texas beef that runs from the fullback position. Mainly used on the defensive platoon, Flowers had a previous knee operation and the second operation completely cured his ailment.

Malvin Fowler, the great frosh star of 1949 who was lost in the first three minutes last year, is reported to be running hard and cutting nicely on his repaired knee at recent practice scrimmages.

Bobby Harding, another Texas twister that will see plenty of action at left halfback against the Cornhuskers, has successfully recovered from his operations undergone after last year's spring training.

Coach Meyer has been searching for the answer to his end problems. The Frogs lost their great Moorman brothers combination through graduation. It looks as if Meyer will have Wilson George and Teddy Vaught to fill in at the end outposts.

Enjoy Husker Tilt; Learn Football Rules

By DOUG WILCOX
Sports Staff Reporter

Cods of the University, attention! Have you got a fella? If so, is your fella satisfied with you, or does he get bored when he takes you to a football game?

In this article I'll explain some more of the fundamentals of football so that you can please your fella.

Last week I told you some of the rules which can be violated by the football player. These violated rules cost yardage to the violating squad.

For a violation of the offside rule, a team loses 5 yards. These yards are marked off by the headlinesman from the original line of scrimmage.

The line of scrimmage is the line which bisects the ball across the playing field. This scrimmage line is a foot in width, and anyone crossing it before the ball is centered is off side.

When a player is said to have used his hands illegally, it means just that. An offensive player cannot use his hands unless he is an end or a member of the backfield.

A lineman must keep his hands in contact with his football jersey at all times.

Violation of this rule costs the player 5 yards and is also marked off by the headlinesman.

If any player uses profanity in order to show his emotions he is penalized 15 yards. If the player talks back to a referee or angers him in any way the referee has the authority to throw the player from the game.

Backfield in motion is when a member of the offensive backfield moves forward, not sideways before the ball is snapped from center.

Violation of this rule costs the player 5 yards from the line of scrimmage.

When a referee feels the offensive line is moving before the ball is snapped he penalizes the team for linesmen in motion. This violation of the rules costs the team 5 yards.

One of the seldom used penalties, but a very costly one, is the unnecessary roughness penalty. This violation costs the team 15 yards and is given at the direction of the referee.

There are many other rules and regulations in the game of Big Seven football, but too numerous to relate in this article.

I certainly hope you can please that favorite boy with your fundamental knowledge of football. This Saturday when you go to the Texas Christian university football, don't forget to impress your fellow by showing you, too, know how to enjoy a Big Seven football game.
