

Theta Xi's, Betas, ZBT's Win Intramural Football Contests

By DOUG WILCOX
Sports Staff Reporter

Rain, mud, wind or mist, these intramural squads just can't be downed. The games scheduled for Tuesday were played on schedule although the playing field was a lake of mud.

Eight teams participated in the first 1951 intramural football schedule. The teams were Alpha Gamma Rho, Beta Theta Pi, Theta Xi, Pi Kappa Phi, Zeta Beta Tau, Delta Sigma Pi, Delta Sigma Phi and Acacia.

Although the weather was dull the action in the games was not. The line play of the teams was rugged, and the backfield play was sparkling.

Here's just the way the games were played, the boys who made the touchdowns, and the outstanding plays or players in the individual games.

The first game of the season was the tilt between Alpha Gamma Rho and Beta Theta Pi. This game did not have the ideal playing conditions, but it did have lots of excitement.

The only touchdown which A.G.R. made was made by a 20 yard pass from Ingle to Muesenn.

The score of this tilt was 13 to 6 in favor of the Beta Theta Pi.

The Betas scored twice in the game. Since the playing field was very hard to run on with out falling down, the intramural squads used a lot of pass plays.

Harlan Wiederspahn of the Betas passed for the two touchdowns. One touchdown pass to Ron Smaha and the other pass to Bob Howey. The one extra point was also made by Wiederspahn.

The victors, the Betas, believe that the outstanding player was Wiederspahn.

The second game to be played was the tilt between the Theta Xi and the Pi Kappa Phi.

This game had a lot of touchdowns for the score was 32 to 0 in favor of the Thetas. This is the highest scoring contest so far this year.

There is no record of who made the touchdowns, but the outstanding players were Bob Bale, Andy Boris and Al Blaha.

The most outstanding play of the game was the play in which Blaha, while being covered by three opposing players sprang into the air and snared a pass flung by Bale.

Next on the schedule was the game between Zeta Beta Tau and the Delta Sigma Pi.

After a close game, the ZBT's emerged winners over the Delta Sigs. The final score was 7 to 0.

The touchdown was made by intercepting of a Delta Sig pass by Marvin Sulvasky. The extra point was made by a pass from Justin Horwich to Jerry Wolpa.

The most outstanding of the victors was Horwich.

With the mist still coming down, the Delta Sigma Phi boys played the boys from the Acacia house.

The Delta Sig team lead all the way in the game until the last three minutes, when a team that just couldn't be beat came from behind to win a heartbreaker from the Delta Sigs.

The final score in the game was 12 to 7. Acacia blocked a kick of the Delta Sig and after a pass from Don Sercy to Pat Allen, the game was 7 to 6.

In the last few plays of the game the Delta Sigs were on the 7-yard line when they fumbled the ball and Chuck Miner of the Acacias recovered the ball in the end zone to win the game 12 to 7.

The outstanding player of the game was Don Sercy of the Acacia.

Since the purpose of intramural athletics is to develop good sportsmanship, the sports staff is offering a trophy to the outstanding intramural football player.

This is the way in which the trophy will be awarded. Each team in the intramural football league will elect a favorite squad member. These squad favorites will be sent to the Daily Nebraskan office where the most outstanding player will be picked by the sports department.

Theta Xi's Bob Bale carries the ball for a long gain against the Pi Kaps before being touched by Abe Neeber in an IM game Monday night. Larry Donarico makes a last desperate attempt to block Neeber.

Colorado In Good Shape For Northwestern Fray

After tapering off from a heavy-duty practice schedule during the past week, including an extra workout, the Colorado University Buffaloes invade Evanston, Ill., Saturday with hopes of taming the Northwestern Wildcats in their own Dwyer Stadium.

It will mark the first meeting between Colorado and a Big Ten opponent since 1921 when the Buffs absorbed a 35-0 licking from the University of Chicago.

In good physical shape and "up" mentally after their 28-13 victory over the Colorado Aggies last Saturday, the Buffs hope to be better than the thirteen-point underdogs which they were rated earlier this week.

Colorado, playing the toughest schedule in school history, will run up against one of their stiffest tests of the season, however, in a Northwestern squad which boasts 26 lettermen and plenty of weight and speed. It will be the season opener for the Wildcats, who are rated by many as the possible surprise package of the Big Ten.

Buff defensive hopes rose considerably during the week with big Jack Jorgenson back in tip top shape after missing the opener with a wrenched knee. The 235-pound giant is sure to be a tough nut for Wildcat backs to crack.

Also on the ailing list during the past several days was Merv Hodel, considered by many as potential All-American caliber. Stricken with the flu immediately after last week's encounter, Hodel missed the first few practice sessions of the week. However, he's back in togs and hopes to get his initial crack at Big Ten opponents.

Hodel and Jorgenson will co-captain the Golden Herd in Saturday's clash. Jorgenson, a stand-out tackle for the past two years, will lead the defensive unit. Hodel, probably the hardest running fullback to be seen in Colorado for a long time, is also playing his third season and will handle the offensive captaincy.

Both Jorgenson and Hodel hail from Illinois. "Jorgy" from nearby Winnetka and Merv from Rockford. Many fans from the Chicago area will be seeing these boys in action again after watching them perform first in local high school circles. Many of the faces on the Wildcat team will also be familiar to the pair, who have won the hearts of Colorado football enthusiasts.

Coach Dal Ward has brought his squad along into top condition, with only one injury still carried over from last week's contest. George Figner, speedy defensive safety man, incurred a re-injury to a knee which kept him out last season, and will be on the sidelines for several weeks.

The Benchwarmer

By MARSHALL KUSHER
Assistant Sports Editor

While topics of conversation these days center around who is going to win Saturday afternoon's contest, flags continue to fly at half mast at the United States Military Academy in West Point, New York as the Army football team prepares to meet Villanova.

Several months ago everything would point to an Army romp over the Villanova team, and most of the rest of the teams on the army schedule this year, but Coach Earl Blaik's team was dealt a staggering blow in the scandal whereby 90 cadets were sent to the showers for "cheating" on an examination. The nucleus of the cadets football team was included in the rather pungent scandal.

It's only a matter of personal opinion and morals concerning the action taken by the school on the Hudson big-wigs and also the congressional recommendations made, but in one man's opinion, the cadets got a raw deal.

In the first place, the jury handed down the guilty label to the charge of "cheating." Not only will that go down as one of the largest "cheating" sessions in any school's history, but also ranks with one of Joe Miller's funniest jokes!

If there were such a natural science as "cribology," and to some it comes more naturally than to others, I'm sure the officials would be the least informed on the subject. There are so many ways and means of "cheating" that vary in their "immoral" values that it would be difficult to give the cadets such a rough sentence unless a thorough study of "cheating" itself must be investigated.

Everyone "cheats" at some time or other during the duration of their four college years. We do not intend to have this article interpreted as encouraging students to "cheat," however this writer was almost coaxed to circulate a petition around the various campuses of the country asking for the signatures of those students who have "cheated" on examinations. This would be done in the fullest confidence of gaining overwhelming percentage of students that have "cheated" on any tests.

Everyone doesn't "cheat" perhaps, but there are many people who "cheat" and don't even know it. The student is not entirely immune from cheating, as a matter of fact he controls a good share of the "cheating" done in college.

A teacher can "cheat" on exams too. If the teacher is the type who makes students read long chapters of a text and then when it comes time for a test, gives them questions on the most minute and seemingly unimportant sentence in the chapter, is definitely "cheating" in a form. She has encouraged, if not forcing the student to take "crib notes" or helps to aid their memory on the finer points of the chapter.

A teacher can "cheat" on a test by giving the same tests year after year. Thus, students who refer back to old tests of such a teacher cannot be labeled "cheaters." If a teacher is so old fashioned, and many are, that they cannot modernize their course of instruction, the student cannot help but take advantage of such a situation.

What I'm driving at is "cheating is a very general term. It is applicable to varying degrees and various situations. There is no point in arguing the advantages or disadvantages of the honor system, which the Military Academy employs. There is a point in the method officials at the cadet school place their cadets on some lofty pedestal and live in their own little utopia. Naturally their eyes became blurry when the underhanded political actions take their course at West Point. Webster would probably use the term "hypocrite" here.

I don't intend to make any excuses for the cadets, nor can I even claim that I know what degree of "cheating" the cadets, who are the first "future and past generals" of this country, were caught at, but I do know the penalty they received wasn't just.

Assuming that the cadets did "cheat," they should have been dropped from the football roster, or perhaps given some type of disciplinary penalty, but to be given the heave-ho from school—never!

Kansas, Iowa State Clash In Conference Game Saturday

An undefeated Iowa State football team is preparing to meet its most serious challenge of the young 1951 season this weekend in Lawrence, Kas.

Coach Abe Stuber will send his varsity onto the field in hopes of adding the Kansas eleven's scalp to that of Wayne. Wayne's out-matched forces bowed by a 53-21 count at Ames Saturday.

Preceding the varsity contest at Kansas, the junior varsity eleven of both schools will put on pre-view Friday. Bob Lamson, head man of the "Bees," would like a third straight win but realizes his team will have to be tougher than in its pair of wins over Graceland (6-0) and Buena Vista (13-12).

While all this has been going on in Cyclone-land Kansas was battling favored Texas Christian to the sidelines, 27-13. It was the first win over TCU for the Jay-hawkers since the post-war series started.

Passing, a feature which Kansas maintained was not a part of the 1950 attack, is in "Bogue" again—and that is not a misspelled word. Jerry Bogue is back in the driver's seat at Kansas along with Jerry Robinson and Charley Hoag to give J. V. Sikes a three-pronged aerial attack. Passes from these three were responsible for all four touchdowns at TCU last Saturday night.

Admitting that his Cyclones played creditably against Wayne, Stuber said he wanted to see how they'd react in tougher competition.

N Club Dinner Friday

The annual Alumni N Club dinner will be held Friday at 6:30 at the Student Union. All former letter winners at the University of Nebraska will be welcomed. President John Riddell of York announced.

Reservations should be made with Marvin Paul, Lincoln, secretary or at the Athletic Office in the Coliseum.

Each Saturday noon before the home games the former N men will gather beneath the east stadium for free coffee and sandwiches as in former years.

Net Tourney Resumes Play

With a break from the weather, the University intramural tennis tournament got under way yesterday afternoon on the university courts after a day's delay due to rain.

Ed Higenbotham, director of the men's intramural program, announced that the tourney has been divided into five divisions, consisting of thirty-two men each, in order to facilitate smooth functioning of play.

Intramural football has begun with all its old vigor, and a full schedule of games are on tap for

Reynolds Back With Husker Grid Squad

Nebraska football fans who have held their breath ever since Bobby Reynolds received his shoulder injury at Curtis nine days ago, are beginning to breathe new hope for the Husker all-American.

"The rambler" has been working out with the varsity squad for two days now. Reynolds is still working without protective equipment, but he has been running with the first offense team.

Reports had it that "Mr. Touch-down of 1951" would miss from 4 to 6 weeks of play this season look to be a little too hasty and a rather tough sentence for the Grand Island whiz to serve.

Reynolds has been reported as making a bet that he will miss only two games instead of the previously four. This prediction came from the doctors working on Reynolds.

Bill Glassford refused to state any definite time when he expected Reynolds to break into the lineup. "I still do not know when Bob will be available for play in a game," the headmaster said.

Reynolds has been working with Tom Carodine at the offensive halfback slots. The rest of the backfield includes John Boddona at the quarterback slot and Nick Adduci working at the full-back post.

The offensive line platoon includes Frank Simon and George Paynich at the ends; Dick Regier and George Prohaska, tackles; Kay Curtiss and Cliff Dele, guards, and Verl Scott working at center. This will be the entire offensive alignment for the Huskers this Saturday when the Huskers collide with the Texas Christian Horned Frogs with the exception of Bobby Reynolds half-back position.

Starting at the left halfback spot will be Don Vogt of Watertown, S. D., upon whose shoulders rest a great deal of the scarlet offensive burden. The 220-pound foundation of this sophomore whiz indicated that he would be the man to fill in for Reynolds in the varsity-freshman tilt last Saturday.

Vogt packed the mail for two touchdowns and looked like he could handle himself well when once underway. The difficulty with Don lies in getting him launched before the opponents nab him. Once he starts, it would take the greatest Mexican matador to haul him down.

As a result of the same varsity-frosh tilt, Dennis Korinek of Ulysses moved up to the varsity level. Korinek flashed some fine double duty sparkle with the freshman team and Glassford might be able to use the yearling at left halfback.

Two seniors have been named today. With all games being played on Ag campus, the schedule is as follows:

Field 1—Warriors vs. Tri Dents.
Field 2—Nebraska Coop vs. Methodist House.
Field 3—Sigma Alpha Epsilon "A" vs. Alpha Tau Omega "A".
Field 4—University YMCA vs. Presby House.
Field 5—Beta Sigma Psi vs. Sigma Nu "A".

game captains and will lead the Husker line against the Horned Frogs. Frank Simon, end, and Bob "Moon" Mullin, linebacker.

Glassford has indicated that he intends on strengthening the defensive backfield when he announced that "Bordogna and Carodine will be used on both offense and defense Saturday." This backfield unit looked improved, to say the least, over last year's defensive squad. They held the frosh to a minus seven yards rushing total.

The defensive platoon for the Huskers will consist of Schabacker and Emanuel, ends; Minnick and Mullen, tackles; Hussman and Brasee, guards; Hopp and Cifra, linebackers; Smith and Moore at defensive halfbacks and Bobby Decker at safety.

Decker was another sterling performer last Saturday as he danced down the sidelines with a punt and was defensive backfield spark for the varsity.

The second defensive platoon will consist of Goll and Yeager, ends; Hussman and Goth, tackles; Jones and Bingham, guards; Schabacker and Oberlin, linebackers; Levensky and Radik, halfbacks, and Sommers at safety.

News from the Texas Christian university shows that the Dutchman are scheduled to arrive in the Lincoln camp Friday morning sometime. Coach Dutch Meyers plans to waste no time in orienting his team in the methods of the Cornhuskers, as he will put them to work in an afternoon drill session.

Texas Christian will offer an offensive lineup of Wilson George and Ted Vaughn, ends; Norman Hughes and Tom Evans, tackles; Jack Ramsay and Al Taylor, guards; Bob McEachern, center; Gil Bartosh, quarterback; John Medaniel and Keith Flowers, halfbacks and Bobby Floyd, full-back.

The return of the badman to the badlands will be one of the main Husker defensive concerns. Outlaw Gil Bartosh will meet up with the eleven man Husker defensive posse and there should be plenty of fireworks.

On the defensive platoon for the TCU team will be Wayne Martin and Charles Rogers, ends; Herb Zimmerman and R. C. Harris, tackles; Jack Ramsey and Al Taylor, guards; Mal Fowler and Doug Conoway, linebackers; Ron Fraley and Bob MacFarland, halfbacks, and Ray McKown, safety.

Okie Coach Likes Scots

The Scots are the world's most responsive track and field fans, says John Jacobs, Oklahoma track coach.

Jacobs just returned from a six-day plane trip to Scotland, a damp, cloudy land full of flowers and old stone castles, where he was in charge of a three-man American aggregation that competed at the Scottish Festival at Edinburgh. The Americans were Andy Stanfield, Seton College sprinter; Roscoe Browns, Morgan State half-miler and Bob Richards, greatest active pole-vaulter in the world.
