

'Officers Essential To Class Spirit'

The NEBRASKAN

VOL. 51—No. 33 LINCOLN, NEBRASKA Wednesday, October 31, 1951

Wilcox Stresses Need For Vote

Students must vote for all four officers and must indicate each choice by placing an "X" by the candidate's name. Ballots which do not conform to regulations will be void.

No campaigning will be allowed at election polls, Wilcox said. This regulation and individual voting booths will provide privacy for each student casting a ballot.

Fosters with pictures of the candidates will be in the Union today. Each candidate may make an unlimited number of posters, hand bills or similar campaign devices. Individual house calls are not restricted.

Class officers are responsible for planning the junior-senior prom, class picnics and for developing class spirit among students, Wilcox said. The degree these duties are developed depends on the individual officers, he added.

Fries, Tolman Earn Producer Titles

Sigma Chi, Kappa Delts Win Again

Shirley Fries, Kappa Delta, and Dan Tolman, Sigma Chi, are the winners of the 1951 Honorary Producer contest.

Second place sorority winners were Norma Erickson, Sigma Kappa, and Mary Kay Tolliver, Delta Delta Delta. Bill Adams, Delta Tau Delta and Mac Bailey, Alpha Tau Omega were runners-up in the fraternity division.

The first place winners were presented Honorary Producer trophies by Jerry Matzke, vice president of Kosmet Klub. They also receive permanently reserved seats to all University Theatre productions. The second place sorority winners each received a bouquet of roses.

The Honorary Producer trophies were first presented during the '47-'48 University Theatre season. The award was not presented last year because of the absence of any University Theatre productions.

Trophies were last presented in 1949. Kappa Delta and Sigma Chi won both producer trophies during that year.

Dallas Williams, University Theatre director, expressed thanks to all of those who helped make the Honorary Producer competition a success. He added that this spirit is helping students to realize that the University Theatre is their theatre.

FINAL HOMECOMING PLANS . . . Tassel committee chairmen drawing up final plans for the week-end homecoming festivities are (l. to r.) Lois Gerelick, floats; Artie Westcott, dance; Shirley Schonberg, halftime activities; Mary Ann Kellogg, tickets and Joan O'Brien, parade. Standing are Cecelia Pinkerton, publicity (l.); and Elaine Grunstead, dance decorations. (Courtesy of Lincoln Journal and Star.)

Presentation Of Othello 'Miraculous'

By CHARLES ROSSOW Staff Writer

Tuesday's presentation of Othello by the University Theatre was truly a credit to the students and instructors of the University. Professor Dallas Williams has produced what I believe to be one of the finest shows that has been seen by an audience of students.

The acting in the play was just short of miraculous as each performer seemed to be molded into the play.

Jack Wenstrand played an Othello which must be compared to a professional. The part of Iago could not have been portrayed any more clearly or realistically, and Hank Gibson, who played the part, will be remembered by many people for his excellent work. Pat Loder in her first major role and a most difficult one at that, did a tremendous job.

As for supporting actors, Marty Miller as Emilia cannot be too highly praised. Equally effective was Wes Jensby in his portrayal of Cassio.

The other actors who should receive mention, although each performer in the play did a creditable job, are Dick Carson in the role of Rodrigo and Diane Downing as Bianca.

Technical Director Dan Tolch should be congratulated for his fine reproduction of a Shakespearian set. The lighting and sound under the supervision of Dick Garatson should also be commended.

Jayhawks Burn Tonight At NU Rally

The burning of the Kansas Jayhawk at the rally tonight will officially open Homecoming festivities.

Cornhusker rooters, Tassels, Corn Cobs and Pepsters will reduce the Jayhawk to ashes in the traditional ceremony at a secret funeral ground.

Two new attractions will be added to the rally. Bobby Reynolds, All-American halfback, will make his first appearance this year at a pep rally. Corn Cobs and Tassels will present a skit pertaining to the Homecoming dance Saturday night.

"Preacher" Franklin, Nebraska end coach, will be the featured speaker. "Any student boy can cheer for its football team while it is winning," Ira Epstein, rally committee member, stresses. "But the true test of student spirit comes when the home team is suffering with a losing streak."

"Instead of constantly criticizing the boys while the chips are down, let's get out and show our classmates that we are still behind them—win or lose. Without utmost support I'm sure it will be the former and not the latter."

The rally will begin at 7 p.m. at the Coliseum. It will proceed east to 16th and vine streets, south to 16th and R, west to the Union and will end at the grounds to burn the Jayhawk.

The University football squad and 1951 Pep Queen candidates will be presented at the rally Friday at 6:45 p.m.

NU Almanac

By MARLIN BREE Staff Writer

"How did you puncture your tire?"

"Ran over a bottle."

"Didn't see it, huh?"

"Now, the darn kid had it under his coat."

"How far were you from the correct answer?"

"Only about three seats, sir."

"I knew I'd love you the minute I heard about you," he slyly stated.

"How did you know?" she asked.

"One of my frat brothers was out with you last week."

The weather for today is going to be partly cloudy and cold, with a high of near 38. It will turn colder tonight with a hard freeze. Low 20s.

Cloudy

"What's the matter with you guys," asked the young football coach, "ya look like a bunch of amateurs."

A special Tri-K meeting will be held today to select new members for the club. The meeting will be held at 5 p.m. in the Crops Laboratory. Robert Sand, president, urged that all members be present.

'Roaring 20s' Dance, Parade Color NU Homecoming Week-end Festivities

Plans have been devised by Student Council representatives and Lincoln Police Chief Joe Carron to eliminate the confusion of Homecoming traffic this year.

Traffic will be one-way except for 14th street. It will begin at 17th and R streets, proceed down R street, turn north on 14th and continue down 14th to Vine street, where it will turn east. The traffic will then head south on 16th

The suspense of Homecoming competition will draw to a climax at the Homecoming dance in the Coliseum Saturday evening.

The 1951 Pep Queen will be presented by Yell King Don Devries, master of ceremonies.

Winners in the house decorations contest will be announced. Trophies will be presented to representatives of the winning groups. Hal McIntyre and his orchestra

Final plans for the annual Homecoming parade were released Tuesday by Jo O'Brien and Jerry Stone, co-chairmen of the Homecoming parade committee.

The time has been established as 10:15 a.m. instead of 10:30 a.m. by the request of the city council.

In the past parades held at 10:30 a.m. caused an acute traffic problem in the downtown areas dur-

Buildings To Greet Frosh Coeds Nov. 7

Freshman coeds will be officially welcomed into University Buildings work at the organization's second mass meeting Wednesday, Nov. 7.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in Room 316, Union.

(Continued on Page 4)

(Continued on Page 4)

(Continued on Page 4)

(Continued on Page 4)

24 Class Officer Candidates Reveal Election Slates

Courtesy Lincoln Journal. Button Gifford Bush J. Adams Kratt Phelps Haight Swain Housel Krueger Lewis Ostwald B. Adams Hansen

McQuistan Bredthauer Fullerton Palmer

(The Daily Nebraskan regrets that the pictures of John Litteras, senior class president candidate, and John Marks, junior secretary candidate, were unavailable at the time of publication.)

Candidates for the junior and senior class officers have announced their platforms. The elections will be held Thursday, Nov. 1 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Senior President

Nancy Button, senior class presidential candidate, had no comment.

Joe Gifford, presidential aspirant, said:

"Let's make the class of '52 the strongest class to ever graduate from the University of Nebraska. By the strongest I mean in spirit and in unity, not the unity of organizations, cliques or colleges, but the unity of individuals as a whole. Let each member of our senior class look upon any other member as an important cog in the chain."

"Through the powers of class officers at present are rather limited, I believe that interest in student affairs should be promoted to such a degree that this interest will carry through to the future when duties of class officers will become much broader."

John Litteras, senior presidential candidate, was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Senior Vice President

Of the senior vice-presidential candidates, John Adams was unavailable for comment.

Leonard Bush states: "The University of Nebraska needs class officers who have the interest, ability and time to unify their class, and build school spirit. The decrease in the enrollment of the University in the last few years is not only due to the graduation of the G. I. students and the new draft call, but also to the failure of Nebraskan students to sell high school graduates on the idea of attending the University of Nebraska."

"The student here definitely lacks the much needed enthusiasm and spirit that should be found on a campus. I have the interest, ability and time to plan more class functions that will unify the senior class and build school spirit. I think I have proved my interest and ability in furthering the University by taking part in several campus activities."

Senior Secretary

Of the two candidates for senior class secretary, Richard Phelps was unavailable for comment, and Theodore Kratt had no comment.

Senior Treasurer

Robert Haight, candidate for senior class treasurer says, "I am interested in truly representative student government. My interest lies primarily in the welfare of the entire senior class and not in any particular group composing the class."

Robert Swain, senior treasurer candidate's five-point program entitled "The Platform for Progress" includes:

1. More senior activities with special emphasis on the junior-senior prom.

2. Senior influence in general university affairs. Seniors (as a class) would take a stand on controversial issues.

3. Better alumni-undergraduate relations with regularly scheduled meetings or luncheons.

4. More individual class spirit with freshmen and sophomore class officers.

5. "I believe we should all pay more taxes."—"Give, give, give 'til it hurts."

Junior President

Junior candidate for class president, Marilyn Housel states her platform as the following:

"1. As president of the junior class, I would endeavor to perform the duties and responsibilities of my office to the best of my ability."

"2. I would work for more cooperation between university students in support of university functions, traditions, and activities."

"3. I would strive to stimulate more interest in class spirit and class activities—promoting a well balanced program.

"4. I will carry out the wishes of the junior class in organizing stronger class ties for the remainder of our collegiate and our alumni days."

Joan Krueger, junior presidential candidate, said:

"1. There is nothing startling or unique about my ideas—except possibly the intention to promote them—whether elected or not."

"2. Regarding the much discussed class spirit, I favor an all University, poll to determine the sentiment of the students whether they want officers to hold strong positions and whether freshman and sophomore officers are needed or wanted."

"3. If class officers are to be strong, I would suggest: action as a class be taken on school problems; a class council composed of independents and Greeks selected by the Student Council; class projects—such as senior farewell breakfast; seniors handling all matters pertaining to graduation, such as announcements, class day and contests, sophomores selling beans and helping with the Frosh Hop; encourage campus as well as class traditions—such as the Victory Bell competition with Missouri. Classes could take stands on issues—such as favoring Sunday library hours."

"4. If students want merely figureheads for officers, I promise to water the ivy daily and assure them that it will grow."

Junior Vice President

Vice-presidential candidate, William Adams had no comment.

Joan Hansen, candidate for vice-presidential states:

"1. I will strive to carry out all the duties of the office to the best of my ability."

"2. I will help to organize a junior-senior prom so that it is one of the best dances of the year."

"3. I will help to build unification of the junior class."

"4. I will strive to make the class office worth something more than just a name."

"5. I will favor a junior class council and strive to see that it has true representation of our class."

Darlene McQuistan, vice-presidential candidate states her platform as the following:

"1. Class officers should not be figureheads, but enforce the plans and wishes of the University and the junior class."

"2. Class officers should be represented on the student council."

"3. Class officers should be responsible for contacting, informing, and creating interest in activities and functions in which the class should participate."

"4. Class officers should be receptive and constructive concerning criticism and suggestions of the class members and act as intermediate agents between students and such bodies as the faculty, the administration and the Student Council."

"5. Support Junior activities such as Ivy Day, the junior-senior Prom, and Junior Day—to insure that these functions be successful as unified class activities."

more than just a name.

"5. I will favor a junior class council and strive to see that it has true representation of our class."

Darlene McQuistan, vice-presidential candidate states her platform as the following:

"1. Class officers should not be figureheads, but enforce the plans and wishes of the University and the junior class."

"2. Class officers should be represented on the student council."

"3. Class officers should be responsible for contacting, informing, and creating interest in activities and functions in which the class should participate."

"4. Class officers should be receptive and constructive concerning criticism and suggestions of the class members and act as intermediate agents between students and such bodies as the faculty, the administration and the Student Council."

"5. Support Junior activities such as Ivy Day, the junior-senior Prom, and Junior Day—to insure that these functions be successful as unified class activities."

Junior Secretary

Barbara Bredthauer, who is running for junior secretary says, "I feel that the secretary of the junior class should do all possible to improve class spirit. This might be done, I think by more class projects. This might include greater stress on the class projects we have now, such as junior-senior prom, more than just a name.

"5. I will favor a junior class council and strive to see that it has true representation of our class."

Darlene McQuistan, vice-presidential candidate states her platform as the following:

"1. Class officers should not be figureheads, but enforce the plans and wishes of the University and the junior class."

"2. Class officers should be represented on the student council."

"3. Class officers should be responsible for contacting, informing, and creating interest in activities and functions in which the class should participate."

"4. Class officers should be receptive and constructive concerning criticism and suggestions of the class members and act as intermediate agents between students and such bodies as the faculty, the administration and the Student Council."

"5. Support Junior activities such as Ivy Day, the junior-senior Prom, and Junior Day—to insure that these functions be successful as unified class activities."

Tom Rische

Where They Stand

Tomorrow, the juniors and seniors of the University will go to the polls to select their officers. These are the students who will guide the destinies of these two classes for the coming year. They will decide whether or not any progress will be made in making this a better University or whether things will continue as in the past.

Some efforts have been made by past class officers to do something concrete for the school. Some have honestly put forth effort to do something for the school—for instance the Junior-Senior prom of last year. But too often, the class officers have merely been the individuals who planted the ivy on Ivy Day.

Too often class offices have been filled by people who wanted the glory and prestige of the office without any of the work. As a result, nothing was done. Perhaps they became discouraged because of the apathy of the classes. But sometimes class officers were really more of a joke than anything else.

In today's issue of The Daily Nebraskan, all 24 candidates are pictured, with their platforms which is their basis of running for office. Read these platforms carefully. See which students are standing for something and which are just running for office. See which of them use glittering generalities and pious words, instead of concrete proposals for making this a better school.

The Daily Nebraskan is not supporting any candidate for class office. We believe that the student body is a competent judge of their fellow students. We believe that the student body, once informed, can make a decision. Various parties have put forth various candidates in this election. Some have been forthright, others not so forthright. Are these facts good, or are they bad? Have the candidates told you, the student body, where they stand? You are the judge.

and begin a new program of campus beautification.

"To promote class spirit and unity especially and to encourage participation in the junior-senior prom" is the platform of Janice Fullerton, candidate for junior secretary.

Aspirant for junior class secretary, John Marks says "If elected, my endeavor while in office shall be to fulfill the duties of my office to the best of my ability and to represent the views of the student body whenever necessary."

"The records of the meetings shall not only include accurate data, but useful advice resulting from experience acquired while engaging in matters undertaken by the junior class," Marks said.

"Experience gained and recorded is an invaluable aid to the successive administrations. This is of utmost importance in order to promote expediency and efficiency in any undertaking."

"If elected, my term in office shall surely be an example of alertness and progressive thinking."

"The junior-senior class days and prom are two functions that I hope will become traditional at the University through cooperation of the respective classes with the class officers and it can be done," according to Amy Palmer, junior class secretary candidate.

"More class spirit, unification of junior class to back student government is what we need," said Dan Tolman, junior class secretary candidate. "I will state the methods if and when I am elected."

"I feel that the office of secretary of the junior class should be held by someone with experience along this line," Tolman said. "I am serving my second semester as secretary of Sigma Chi and had secretarial experience in high school. I also feel that because of my varied activities on the campus, I represent the junior class as a whole and not just one college or organization."

Junior Treasurer

Aspirant for junior class treasurer, John Greer includes the following in his program:

"1. To unify the junior class."

"2. To initiate, plan and coordinate successful class functions such as the junior-senior prom."

"3. To help gain recognition for the University of Nebraska throughout the state and nation."

"4. To handle all funds of the class carefully, conscientiously and cautiously."

John Savage, candidate for treasurer of the junior class would:

1. Attempt to bring to the junior class resources that have not been previously utilized, so that events given for the class will not be just a drain on the pocketbooks of the class members themselves. These resources would have to come from direct action of the class since there is no financial allotment to the class from the University or any other benefactor. The solution would be a policy of the class to sponsor various all-University activities (parties, sales, publications, etc.) and use the income from these to put on the all-junior affairs.

2. Work for a class with spirit, whose activities would have an appeal to a greater per cent of the members for the following reasons:

A. Greater unification will result from juniors working together on various committees, which will plan their own affairs, or those sponsored by them.

B. More juniors will take part in class activities if their cost is lowered. By reducing levies on the juniors during the year, a class ring sale would have a better chance for success; and

C. With more of the class working for class activities, the junior-senior prom would have a better chance for success, and also a better chance for making a profit.

Shirley Schonberg, junior class treasurer candidate advocates:

"1. To establish a secure financial program."

"2. To promote class spirit and cooperation."

"3. To perform my duties to the best of my abilities."