

Bordogna Slated To See Action At Quarterback; IS Next Hurdle

Nebraska came roaring back against Missouri and Kansas at the start of the third quarter only to fumble the ball on the four yard line in both games.

On countless occasions, the Huskers have given opponents a chance to score by fumbling the ball away.

If Nebraska holds fumbling and throwing the ball away to a minimum, the Cyclones will know they've been in a ball game. This Saturday afternoon could be the November surprise Glassford has been hoping for.

Prognosticators of great fame, had Nebraska slated for the greatest season since 1940 with a good chance to capture the Big Seven crown and possibly go undefeated.

To date, the Huskers have tied one, lost five. All-American Bob Reynolds has been held to less than 100 yards rushing and scored only one touchdown.

Nebraska's defensive line probably reached its peak against Kansas. Pass defense, except for a few lapses, has done well. Offensive backs on most occasions have driven with all they had for yardage.

This leaves one major defect yet to be corrected. That is blocking. The offensive line consists of two seniors, three juniors, and two sophomores.

This same line has five players who have had college experience. Last year, the Huskers ranked third in rushing in the nation with some of the same men it has now. This year, Nebraska is near the bottom in ground gaining in the Big Seven.

Pass defense against the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian was the worst of the season. Minnesota and Missouri completed many passes, but on the whole, pass defense has improved.

If Nebraska stops giving the opposition several touchdowns right before the half, there may be a few wins on the record.

as he fielded a punt on the Nebraska 30 and literally ran through Cyclone defenders for 70 yards and the only score.

At the start of this season, Iowa State was tabbed to finish one notch above the selected cellar-dwellers, Kansas State.

After seven games this season, the Cyclones have lost two. They have defeated three out of the conference foes, Wayne University, Marquette, and Drake. Drake was forced to play without the services of injured Johnny Bright.

Iowa State will prove more than a formidable foe, especially since they are undefeated so far this season at Clyde Smith field.

If Nebraska would be able to exclude the second period, the Huskers would be a far more dangerous team than they are.

TCU, Minnesota, Missouri, and Kansas all scored at least two touchdowns in the second frame and broke the Husker's back.

Banks Leads Grid Pickers

Bob Banks, sports editor of The Daily Nebraskan, takes over as the new leader in the prognostications department this week. Bob hit six out of ten predictions to give him a .689 average.

Arley Bondarin, Jack Cohen and Douglas Wilcox are all tied for the second place spot with a .673. All three suffered percentage losses when the football games took another freak bounce.

Tom Rische, editor of The Daily Nebraskan, fell from his top place berth last week to fifth place with a .653. Rische continued on only three selections last week.

Ron Gibson and Arne Stern are tied for sixth and seventh with .630 averages. Gibson is a member of the sports staff and Stern is assistant business manager.

Don Pieper and Marshall Kushner are battling it out for eighth and ninth places. Pieper is managing editor of the paper and Kushner is assistant sports editor.

Dale Reynolds, ag campus editor, leads Tom Becker of the sports department by only one percentage point and Shirley Murphy, only feminine representative on the board of experts, is in last place. Reynolds has a .591 average, Becker a .590 and Murphy a .571.

All the selectors were stymied last week when U.C.L.A. surprised California's Golden Bears 21-7 and the Mississippi State football squad drounced a favored Tulane team. Don Pieper was the only expert to call this one and gets the nod for the "prediction of the week" honor.

The Purdue win over Penn State also caused our people in the know trouble. Only two of the thirteen pickers hit this one on the nose, as they did on the Columbia victory over Cornell.

In the departmental averages, the business office continues to lead the parade, but their lead has been cut considerably over last week. They lead the sports department .651 to .645. The editorial staff amassed a .607 average.

The 1951 high school football season is drawing rapidly to a close and there is no doubt whatsoever who will win the mythical state championship crown this year.

Bill Pfeiff's Lincoln high school gridders have come through the season without a setback and have plowed through possibly one of the hardest schedules of any team in the state.

The Links battled a hard fighting crew from Alliance last week and Coach Al Zikmund's undefeated lads from the western part of the state put up a fine battle, finally succumbing, 40-13.

This week, the Links face their biggest outstate rivals, the Grand Islanders. The Links footballers are being constantly reminded that the Islanders are the only school in the state that can claim three consecutive victories over a Lincoln high team. Two of the defeats were by large margins to add to the insult.

Omaha North has been staying close to the top as they thumped Omaha Central 33-14 to keep their record clean with the exception of the loss to Lincoln, 39-13.

Freemont's Tigers have been tearing their opponents apart since the beginning of the season, but a rather easy schedule has been the main difference in making the Tigers a title contender. Last week the Freemonters dropped to Grand Island, 25-7.

North Platte plastered the Curtis Aggies 32-0 to maintain their equilibrium in their bid for top honors. The Platters have only one blemish, a seven point decision, that keeps them from the list of the undefeated prep teams in the state.

Omaha South fell to outstate Sioux City East, 13-7 and the Beatrice Orangans continue to improve as they break into most of the top ten poll selections.

Omaha Holy Name seems to be the team suffering most from a poor schedule. The Ramblers are undefeated and untied this year, but they have had to cope with a snap schedule. They topped their only Class A competition, 19-7, but have looked rather unimpressive in their victories over class B schools thus far, especially Blair.

The current collegiate football season continues to be a big headache to gentlemen who have to make their livings by predicting outcomes before the game takes place, which also adds to the element of difficulty.

For example, how could thrice beaten UCLA drop the powerful Bears of California. Coach Pappy Waldorf is still rather shocked at the unexpected Bruin upset. The Bruins dropped the Bears 21-7 in one of the top football upsets of the season.

The Ohio State Buckeyes just about got in on the upset act as the injured toe of talented Vic Janowicz kicked a field goal to drop Northwestern 3-0 in an important Buckeye victory.

Around the country, the gridiron picture stacks up in the following way:

In the Missouri Valley league, Tulsa is leading the league with three wins against no losses. Pre-season favoritism pointed to such a situation, although Oklahoma A.M. was given some hope of capturing the title.

In the Southeastern conference, Georgia Tech has five wins against no losses and leads the powerful favorite for the league championship, Tennessee. Coach Boy Neyland's Volunteers have two wins and no losses.

In the Ivy league, Pennsylvania is floundering around in the third place spot while Princeton is setting a torrid pace. The overall league potential is somewhat more evenly distributed with last year's league set-up.

Illinois is topping a crazy Big Ten season with three wins. Michigan and Wisconsin are trying to work on their squad consistency on Saturday afternoon. Both squads have turned in fine performances at one time or another during the year, and then fallen back into a relapse.

In the Big Seven, the caliber of the conference teams is still surprisingly low. The Oklahoma Sooners have been hit twice this season by defeats and lead the conference with three wins and no losses. The Sooners appear to have the title in a walk-away.

Colorado and Kansas are fighting for the runner-up spot, as was expected. The Nebraska Cornhuskers are the big disappointment as Coach Glassford attempts to rally his team from the depths of the league cellar and an unvictorious year.

All in all, there are many coaches who will be seeking employment come next year. The list of undefeated clubs this year is considerably smaller than any other year. The pros have some bright new individuals which they will be fighting tooth and nail for come draft time, but the teams they come from won't be so hot.

Larry Isbell and Bob Smith are two fine Texas products that are gaining large support for All-American backfield positions. Of course Vic Janowicz will be hard to nudge out and Dick Kasmaier of Princeton, Bobby Reynolds of Nebraska, Billy Vessels of Oklahoma and Johnny Karras are also familiar names to football all-American nominations.

It will all come out in the wash when the king football goes under wraps again next fall. It is safe to say that contradicting most August reports, the Nebraska Cornhuskers WILL NOT go to the Sugar Bowl or the Orange Bowl.

Delts, Fijis, Sig Eps Advance In Play-offs

By DOUG WILCOX
Sports Staff Reporter

Friday of last week the quarter finals of the intramural football game were played and with the play-offs came the defeat of some very fine squads.

Last year's All-University champs, Delta Tau Delta, paved its way by beating Theta Chi, 24-0.

The sparkplug for the Delt team was Keith Skalla. He passed for all the winning touchdowns.

Scoring for the first touchdown of the day was Bob Tooley, who caught a 30 yard pass from Skalla for the score. The conversion attempt was no good.

Next Marty Matherson outran the Theta Chi defense after receiving a 25-yard pass for a TD. This catch was the longest pass play of the game. Delta Tau Delta was unable to make the extra point.

One of the reasons for not making the extra points was the fact that the fingers of the players were stiff from the cold weather. This cold weather hampered the playing of the boys very much.

Even with the chilliness, the intramural squads continued to play good ball when Skalla again wound up his arm and fired the ball to Ray Mladovich on a short 14-yard pass. The conversion try was away from the Delt receiver.

The final scores of the game came in the last period on a pass play from Skalla to Bob Hasebrook.

Outstanding for the winning team was Eldon Park and Fred Blackett on defense. Offensively the entire Delt team played good ball.

Acacia fell to the powerful Phi Gamma Delta team in a very close game. In the final quarter the score stood at 7 to 6 in favor of the Fijis.

The Acacians were leading in the game at the half after they scored early in the first period. Their score came as Don Searcy, one of the finest intramural players during the season, passed 20 yards into the arms of Bill Chin, Acacia end.

At the half it was 6-0 in favor of the Acacians, but after the Fiji line stiffened, and the final fourth period the Phi Gams made the winning scores.

These scores came in the game as the Acacians punted to John Sinclair, who lateraled off to Rich Olsen. Fighting his way, Olsen carried the ball back 50 yards to even the score 6 all.

For the winning score it was the pass combination of Olsen to Ron Raigt, who made the extra point score to keep the Fijis in the win column and a chance at the All-University Championship.

The outstanding players of the game was Rich Olsen and Ron Raigt, who were the winning score combination for the victors.

Another game last Friday was the tilt between Sigma Phi Epsilon and Delta Sigma Pi. The final tally was 34-0 in the Sig Ep's favor.

Although the cold made passing very difficult, the Sig Ep scores all came on passes.

First off on the scoring Ted Kratt intercepted a Delta Sig pass and sped 45 yards to score. The conversion attempt was no good so the score stood 6-0.

Kratt again scored on a short pass from Bob Svanda, he scampered 30 yards to score. The conversion try was good as Kratt ran over the double stripes for the score.

Svanda again showed football his talents as he passed 25 yards to Roy Curtis, who scored for the Sig Eps. For the extra point it was Svanda to Bob Diers.

Again Kratt came into the limelight on a pass play to Bill Anderson. This play covered 30 yards for the score. The try for the extra point was good when Kratt passed to Anderson.

In the final quarter of the game

Sig Ep scored again when Kratt passed to Fred Peterson's end for the Sig Eps. Again the winners scored the extra point as Kratt threw to Anderson.

The outstanding players of the game were Kratt and Svanda on offense.

Defensively Al Hansen and Red Thibault played fine ball.

Later in the week your reporter will pick intramural first, second and honorable mention squads.

Bowling balls begin thundering down the alleys as the girls intramural bowling tournament gets rolling. Seventy-three girls are starting out in this individual single elimination tournament.

Duckpins, intramurals other alley sport, is also in its initial phase of the tournament. The team champion is based on the highest team average. Each team is composed of four members. Forty-two teams will be participating in the duckpin tournament. It is also a single elimination tournament.

On the volleyball courts seven intramural teams chalked up wins as the tournament progresses. Wilson and Sigma Kappa defaulted to Alpha Omicron Pi No. 1 and Pi Beta Phi. Theta No. 4 beat Alpha Chi No. 3 in the best game of the week. The evenly matched teams went into overtime play with the scored tied 20-20. The Thetas loosened the knot to squeeze out the 23-22 win in the overtime period. Alpha Chi Lianne Farrael was top scorer of the game with 14 points. Theta No. 3 topped Delta Gamma No. 3 16-14. Pat Savage was the Theta high pointer.

Thursday International House defaulted to Chi Omega No. 1. Wesley dumped Tri Delta 49-14 with Mary Wright scoring 11 of Wesley's 49 points. Kappa Delta beat Kappa Kappa Gamma No. 2 38-24. Mary Siegle contributed 13 of the KD's points and Mary Janet Reed 11 of the Kappa points.

Coed Counselors To Hear Knowles

Coed Counselors will hold its first mass meeting of the year Thursday, Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in Parlors ABC of the Union.

The Rev. Rex Knowles of the Presbyterian Student House will speak on "Friendship."

Fourteen girls, one from each of the Coed Counselors board member's groups, will hold a forum. The question will concern how Coed Counselors can become the nucleus for promoting friendship in the University through work with "little sisters."

Mary Hubka, president of Coed Counselors, will serve as moderator for the forum.

Through the mass meeting counselors intend to pool their ideas for helping "little sisters" become oriented at the University. Dolores Gade is in charge of the mass meeting.

Applications for the AUF executive board are due Tuesday, Nov. 6. Applications are available in the AUF office. Students who have two year's AUF experience are eligible to apply.

Hard-Hitting Kansan Tells Of Success

"You've got to hit the other guy harer and quicker," says Kansas Guard George Kinnard, who has grabbed the departed Mike McCormack's toga as the Jayhawk's top blocker this autumn.

"Weight isn't nearly as important as a quick reaction," the husky Jayhawk senior illuminates. "If you're outcharged all day, you'll never beat anybody."

Kennard, a 201-pound senior from Kansas City, Mo., has been unusually impressive with his pull-out blocking through K.U.'s first four games. The brawny sentinel can go either way with equal effectiveness. He also is a sturdy straight-ahead power, thus rounding out excellent overall offensive ability.

He'll be called upon to furnish a lot of flinty walloping Saturday as Kansas wades into the red crags of Oklahoma's line in an important Big Seven collision in Norman.

The Sooners are guarding their title portals with a brutal defensive unit reminiscent of the rock-crushers of 1946 and 1949. This is the gang that limited Texas A. & M.'s terrific rush to 14 points and mighty Tex to nine, even though the Red's lost both games.

If the improving Kansas forwards don't perform their sharpest job of the year, not only will the Hawkers' promising ground game run into a dead end, but Jayhawk passers will be under severe pressure all afternoon. Kennard and his mates will be shouldering a terrific load which holds the key to much of the battle's outcome.

Ten Men Vie In Free Throw Tournament

Monday, Nov. 5 and Tuesday, Nov. 6 will be the last two nights of the intramural free throw tournament.

The 10 finalists will shoot fifty tosses apiece on both nights and all tosses will be totaled. The entrant making the most baskets will win the individual title.

Finalists and their scores to date: Chuck Marshall, Sigma Chi, 44; Murl Maupin, Phi Gamma Delta, 44; Jack March, Sigma Chi, 41; Marvin Schuman, Theta Chi, 39; Jack Randecker, Delta Upsilon, 34.

Dave Alkine, Phi Kappa Psi, 33; Roger Essman, Alpha Gamma Rho, 33; Arthur Hansen, Sigma Phi Epsilon, 30; Frank Wells, Sigma Chi, 26; Philip Reiland, Delta Sigma Pi, 25.

Thirty Swimmers Workout With Colorado Aquatic Team

Colorado university swimming workouts opened this week with 30 men reporting to Coach Roland Balch for the beginning of an intensive pre-swim conditioning program.

Coach Balch indicated he would concentrate on calisthenics and pulley work during the first weeks of workout, turning to actual swimming form and water work later.

Forming the nucleus of this year's squad will be six returning squad members, including four lettermen. The letter winners include Charlie Harbaugh, senior backstroke; Mel Heffelman, junior distance man; Bud Walstrom, senior breaststroker; and Neil Broderick, senior diver.

The two other returning squad members are Bob Campbell and Coscoe Champion, both seniors and distance swimmers.

Balch may find some strength in a fresh candidate. He has Bob Watson, breaststroker. Another breaststroker, Walt Langtry, looks like a good prospect to fill Stan Black's spot on the varsity. Black was conference backstroke champ last year.

Also included in the 13 freshmen are a promising diver, Sid Pickard, and Jack Chapman, a Wisconsin state finalist in freestyle sprints.

An added feature at dual meets this year is the 150 yard individual medley. Balch said it is the first time such an event has been scheduled for dual competition.

The Colorado swimming schedule includes: Wyoming Re-lays, Dec. 14; Nebraska at Lincoln, Feb. 8; Iowa State at Ames, Feb. 9; Colorado A & M at Boulder, Feb. 16; Kansas at Boulder, Feb. 23; Oklahoma at Boulder, March 1; and the Big Seven conference meet at Lincoln, March 7 & 8.

Open dates January 5, 12, 19, and February 2 will be filled surrounding Colorado colleges.

Nebraska Gymnasts Open Season Against Wildcats

Coach Jake Geier's NU gymnastics team will open its season against Kansas State on December 13 in the Physical Education building.

Since this is the first year the K-Staters have had a gymnastics team, the main purpose of the meet is to give the Wildcats experience. Kansas State is the third team in the Big Seven to start a gymnastic team. Previously, only Colorado and Nebraska had gym teams.

After the meet, which will be held in the afternoon, the Kansas Staters will be invited to attend the Nebraska-Fresno State basketball game which will be played the night of December 15. The Huskers will put on a trampoline and tumbling exhibition between halves of the basketball game.

Coach Geier reports that two positions on the team which were formerly open have now been filled. DeWayne Behrens has been moved up to the number three spot on the side horse and Don Hodge is now the number three tumbler. However, Geier is still looking for a third man on the trampoline.

Thus far the team has been working primarily on fundamentals and conditioning. Geier believes the squad is generally in good shape.

The main loss from last year's team is Al Dunavan, one of the best gymnasts in Cornhusker history. But Geier hopes to offset this individual loss with more depth and experience.

Information Team For Navy Ends Visit

Today is the last day a Naval information team will be in the Union lobby to explain commissions in the Navy and Naval reserve.

Male students are eligible if they have not received an induction notice prior to the processing of their application.

Women who qualify may apply for commissions in either the Navy or the Naval reserve. The Wave officer program requires that women be under 25 years of age, unmarried, graduates of a four-year accredited college and able to meet the physical qualifications.
