Husker Cagers Open Season With 60-44 Win Over IS Tutors

By RON GIBSON
Sports Staff Writer

Coach Harry Good's Cornhusker cagers opened their 1951 season with a decisive 60-44 victory over an outclassed Iowa State Teachers' five.

Good used 19 men in the victory, as he put in his reserves atfer his starting five piled up a 50-31 halftime lead. The starting crew, composed of Jim Buchanan, Jim Snyder, Bill Johnson, Stan Matzke and Joe Good, scored 44 points among themselves against a week Teachers club.

The lid was on the bucket for the Iowa Staters, as they hit only 16 baskets all evening. In addition, the Teachers' defense was leaky, allowing the Huskers 24 field goals.

The Huskers tore into the Teachers immediately after the starting jump, as Bucky Buchanan drove in to score two points and start off the evening's festivities. Buchanan, Good and Johnson each hit two buckets in the first canto to lead the Scarlet scoring parade.

During the first stanza, the Iowa Teachers found themselves in possession of an 8-7 lead at one time. The Huskers quickly wiped out the one-point deficit, and led the rest of the game. At the end of the first quarter, the score read Nebraska 20, Iowa State Teachers 11.

In the second quarter, the Cornhuskers put on a good defensive showing, but the Teachers momentarily found their basket eyes, scoring 14 points.

In the same second period, Husker freshman Stan Matzke got hot and hit three straight buckets for six points. Buchanan continued his torrid pace with four more field goals to give the Scarlet a safe 37-25 halftime margin.

Buchanan scored 14 of his 15 points in the first half, as the scrappy six-footer drove basketward time after time for layup shots.

In the second half, the Goodmen cooled off a bit, but the Huskers had little trouble with the Teachers. Good began the benchcleaning early in the second half, and all but six of the young Cornhuskers saw action before the game was over.

The third period found Iowa State scoring only six points, and were again unable to hold back the Scarlet. The Huskers tallied 13 to make the third quarter score 50-31.

In the final quarter, the Teachers made up part of the deficit. Playing against a lineup filled with substitutes, the I-Staters scored 13 points to the Huskers ten. The game ended with the count 60-44.

High scorer in the game was Nebraska's Jim Buchanan, who racked up 15 points on six field goals and three extra points. Following Buchanan was Stan Matzke who collected 11 points on four field goals andthree free tosses.

Leading the Iowa Staters in scoring were Howard Pigg and Al Carew with nine apiece. Guard Harold Schuchman trailed his two teammates by one point, hitting two field goals and four free throws for eight.

Other highlights of the game were the pivot play of Nebraska's Bill Johnson and the ballhandling of teammate Joe Good. The Teachers put on a fair exhibition of ball handling, working around 6-4 center Al Carey.

Hurricanes Hit Huskers In Last Game

Typifying the bad breaks of a disasturous gridiron season, time ran out on the hard-luck Huskers of Nebraska and ended their 1951 football campaign on the enemy one-yard line.

Unmindful of the three touchdown margin that faced them, the Huskers galliantly battled the Gator Bowl bound Hurricanes of Miami on even terms in the first half, but singed under the fire of a red hot Hurricane offense to lose 19-7.

The gang of Cornhuskers, led by their 1950 ringleader, Bobby Reynolds, played courageous, heads-up football and even Andy Gustavfson, head coach of the Hurricanes, admitted that "we were sure lucky to win this one."

Never was a truer word spoken. The Huskers led 7-6 at the end of the first half and the 33,000 Floridan rooters were praying that Gustafvson could find the right words in the locker room to rally the Miami eleven from the darkness of an upset loss.

Frank Smith, highly touted Miami left halfback ran wide to his left trying to spot a pass receiver from the Nebraska 22 yard line, but all the tragets were well covered and Smith sprinted the necessary yardage for six points. Tremont's kick was no good.

With seconds ticking off rapidly to end a hectic first half of defensive football, Johnny Bordogna threw a desperation pass on the last play of the half. The ball skidded off the fingertips of the intended receivers and defenders and was picked off six inches above the groud o the 19-yard line by Reynolds who went the route.

Decker's perfect placement ended the first half with the Huskers leading and also ended the scoring for the Cornhuskers in this season finale.

It was a triumphant night for Rambling Robert Reynolds, who had the crowd completely flabbergasted at his swivel-hipped antics which would stir memories on his phenominal performances last year.

"Mr. Touchdown" smashed through the Hurricane wall for 172 yards, his highest total of the year. Bob's passing, kicking and pass was nothing short of superb.

It was a heart-breaking finish as the determined Huskers took the knock-out punch from father time as they had ripped their way within inches of another deserving score.

Father time dealt the Huskers their toughest blows this season with the inexperienced gridders that Coach Bill Glassford had to mold. Father time was undoubtably losing ground as the Cornhusker youngsters looked continually stronger as the season closed.

Schabacker, Mullen, Simon, Ponsiego, Sommers, Minnick, Kennedy, Cederdahl should receive plaudits for their tremendous efforts. John Bordogna, playing in front of his toughest critic, his father, had difficulty finding open targets in the vacumn tight Hurricane defense.

A great season finish to a Husker football team that gave their all. The competition was tough all the way this year and the Husker fans are singing the old familiar "wait til next year!"

Dennis Emanuel Only Husker To Make Daily Nebraskan All-Big Seven Squad

By ARLEY BONDARIN
Sports Staff Writer

Here it is! The Daily Nebraskan announces its 1951 All-Big Seven Conference team. Following the reecnt trend, offensive and defensive platoons have been selected.

The offensive team lines up as follows:

At ends are Mal Schmidt, Iowa State, and Bill Schaake, Kansas. Both boys were rated as outstanding wingmen with Schmidt leading all pass receivers in the conference.

Jim Weatherall of Oklahoma and Oliver Spencer of Kansas are the tackles. Weatherall is by far the outstanding lineman in the conference and a sure bet for All-American honors, while Spencer was a leading factor in the Kansas ground attack.

Stan Campbell, Iowa State, and George Kennard, Kansas, nailed down the guard posts. Consistent dependability featured their play throughout the year.

Undisputed choice is that of Tom Catlin of Oklahoma at center. An outstanding defensive linebacker last season, Catlin was switched to offense this season with gratifying results.

At quarterback is Eddie Crowder of Oklahoma. Although not statistically prominet, Crowder's clever ball handling and generalship sparked the Sooner attack.

Junior Wren, Missouri, and Bob Brandeberry, Kansas, are the halfback choices.

Bonecrushing Buck McPhail of Oklahoma is the unanimous fullback choice. Averaging almost nine yards per carry, the outstanding junior led the conference in rushing.

All members of the conference are presented on the defensive aggregation.

At ends are Keith Hemingway of Iowa State and Dennis Emanuel of Nebraska. Emanuel, sophomore find, is the Husker's only representative on either platoon.

Getting the call at tackle were Jack Jorgenson of Colorado and Weatherall. Pressing them for honors was George Mrkonic of Kansas.

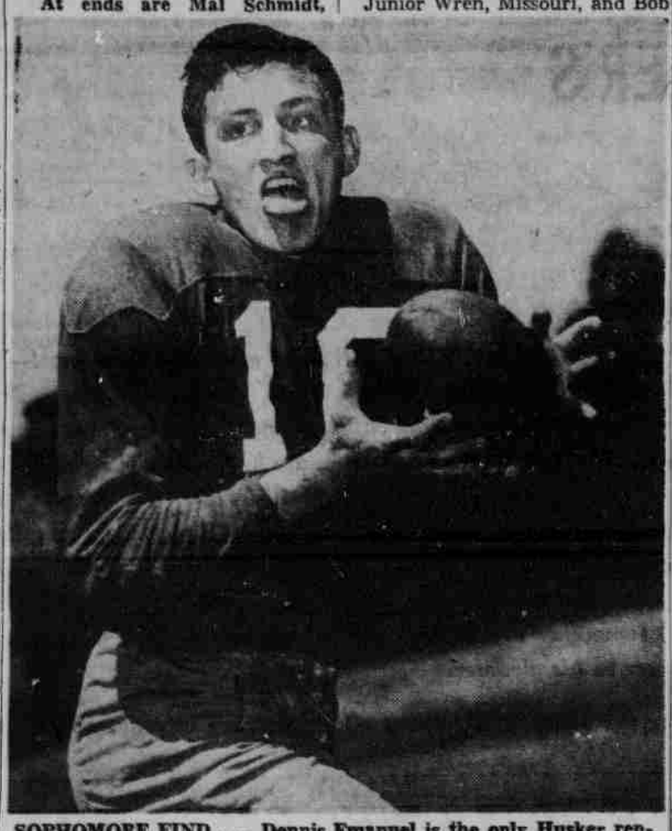
Bert Clark, Oklahoma, and Campbell drew the nod at guards.

Weatherall and Campbell were the only players to be selected on both the offensive and defensive platoons.

At center is big Bill Fuchs of Missouri, outstanding linebacker who performed well all season.

Leading the backfield is the brillant Kansas State sophomore, Verl Switzer, whose great performance stood out despite the Staters' drab season.

Rounding out the defensive secondary are John Konek, Kansas, Tom Brookshier, Colorado, and Larry Grigg, Oklahoma, who all were dependable performers throughout the year.



SOPHOMORE FIND . . . Dennis Emanuel is the only Husker representative on The Daily Nebraskan's All-Big Seven Conference team. Emanuel was placed on the defensive platoon lineup at end. (Courtesy Lincoln Star.)
