

Committee Selects Junior Class Council Members

Names of junior class council members were announced Wednesday afternoon by the campus improvements committee of the Student Council following approval of the committee's selection by the Council.

Junior class council members are: Sally Adams, Nanci DeBord, Joan Follmer, Onuzulike Okonkwo, Don Pieper and Glenn Rosenquist.

Twenty-three candidates for the six positions were interviewed Monday afternoon by the improvements committee. Although applicants for senior class council were scheduled to be interviewed, four of the eight candidates were unable to attend the committee meeting.

The senior applicants will be interviewed Monday afternoon, and six of the eight will be selected by the committee for the council. Their names will be announced next week.

The six juniors selected and their activities are:

Sally Adams, Arts and Sciences and Teachers College, is a news editor of The Daily Nebraskan, a member of YWCA, Alpha Lambda Delta scholastic honorary for freshman women, and Delta Gamma.

Nanci DeBord, Ag college, is a member of Coed Counselors, Student Council and Alpha Omicron Pi.

Joan Follmer, Ag College, is a member of Tassels; Coed Counselor board; Gamma Alpha Chi, women's professional advertising fraternity, and Towne club.

Onuzulike Okonkwo, Teachers college, is vice president of the Cosmopolitan club and the club's representative to the Lincoln Council for Human Relations.

Don Pieper, Arts and Sciences Journalism student, is managing editor of The Daily Nebraskan; vice president of Sigma Delta Chi, Journalism professional fraternity; a member of NUCVA and Sigma Chi.

Glenn Rosenquist, pre-med student, is treasurer of the Interfraternity council, a member of publications board and Phi Gamma Delta.

The two class councils have been established on a trial basis until next spring. After observing the results of the councils the Student Council will determine whether they will become a permanent feature in the student administrative system of the University or whether the plan will be abandoned.

Councils for all four classes were suggested last year by Aaron Schmidt, last year's senior class president. The Student Council, however, adopted the plan only for the two upper classes. According to Schmidt, the councils should form the basis of a program designed to propagate class spirit in the University.

Student Council, Wednesday, approved the new members of the junior class council chosen Dec. 10 by the campus improvements committee of the Council.

Junior council members are, Sally Adams, Joan Follmer, Don Pieper, Glenn Rosenquist, Onuzulike Okonkwo and Nanci DeBord.

Since only 8 candidates filed for the senior class council, the senior interviews will be held Monday, Dec. 17.

Rex Messersmith, chairman of the student activities committee, stressed a need for an office or agency to group all scheduling of departmental functions. At the present time all social functions are scheduled in Dean Johnston's office, academic events in Floyd Hoovers office, organization and activity functions in the Union, community events in Bruce Nicoll's office and the departmental functions are not registered at all.

This scheduling agency would be based on a priority rating to determine which function would have precedence. A paid person would be in the office at all times and the office would probably be set up in the Union. Such an agency would prevent overlapping of various functions.

It was suggested by the council that the office could publish a monthly schedule of events and the Union could post a daily schedule. Social functions would still have to be registered in Dean Johnston's office, but other organizations will schedule their functions through this office.

In a further report, Messersmith said that all parking spaces will be open to all parking after 1:00 p.m. Printed notices of this will be distributed to students during registration.

George Cobel, Council president, reported on a meeting between the athletic board of control and two council members which discussed the rental problem of the Coliseum. At the discussion it was brought up that the Coliseum is owned by the University and the administration is in the hands of the athletic board.

All rent money goes into a fund in the student activities office and is spent for improvements to make the Coliseum more useful to students. The usual annual income from rent amount to about $7,000. Rental for student functions is $50 to $350 and a flat $350 for outside use.

The coliseum is rent free for student activities such as convocations and for organizations which are sponsoring a free function.

George Wilcox, Council election chairman, distributed questionnaires to Council members on election procedures. The result will give the Council a basis for writing the constitutions by-laws and election procedure.

'Innocents' Tryouts Open To Interested University Students

Have you ever seen ghosts walking and talking?

They appear in the forthcoming Experimental theatre production of "The Innocents," by William Archibald.

Tryout for the cast of "The Innocents" will be held Friday, Dec. 14, from 3 to 5 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 15, from 9 a.m. to noon in Room 205, Temple.

Any student interested may try-out for the play. It is not necessary to be enrolled in speech or drama classes.

The play is an adaptation of the short story "The Turn of the Screw," by Henry James. It concerns a governess in charge of two young children whose souls are inhabited by ghosts.

Working on a limited budget, the construction crew, under the direction of Charles Peterson, has produced a modern lobby of an exclusive hotel in northern Italy for the stage setting of "Idiot's Delight." This was accomplished, Tolch said, by adapting and remodeling furniture and other materials on hand in the theater.

Peterson is assisted by properties managers, Jean Sandstedt and Marvin Strommer. Crew members working on stage settings are Lola Foss, Pat Loder and Helene Sherman.

Student Council OK's Selection Of Six Juniors

College Presidents Study Athletes' Snap Courses

College presidents studying emphasis and de-emphasis of college sports Wednesday hoped to learn how many schools permit athletes to concentrate on so-called snap courses in physical education.

The presidents are members of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education.

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson is a member of the committee.

During the committee's first meeting in Washington last month, the president discussed general problems in college sports. In Wednesday's Washington meeting, which will continue through Thursday, they expect to be more specific.

College sports' most bitter critic, Judge Saul S. Streit, has been particularly harsh on this phase of education.

Last Friday, in suspending sentence on three former Bradley University basketball players, Streit said the athletes had been permitted to take elementary badminton, touch football, volleyball, elements of tumbling, outdoor running and co-ed dancing.

The former basketball stars had been accused of trying to fix a game in New York in 1950.

A month earlier Streit had let go with another blast at college administrators while sentencing five former players and suspending sentence on nine others.

Truman Orders Tax Clamp-Down

WASHINGTON—President Truman, angered by recent revelations of corruption in the tax division of the justice department, ordered federal enforcement agencies to clamp down on errand officials. The snowballing tax scandal has brought grand jury indictments from coast to coast. In San Francisco, three former internal revenue men were indicted and in Brooklyn one deputy collector received the same treatment.

KOREA—According to a United Press story, President Truman dispatched his views on the cease-fire talks to Gen. Ridgway, far eastern commander. It is hoped that these new instructions might lead the way to some sort of agreement between the allies and the Reds.

At the talk site in Panmunjon, U.S. delegates offered to grant the communists three concessions in exchange for some from the Reds. Maj. Gen. Howard Turner stated that we would withdraw from islands near the North Korean coast, we would agree to neutral in-

President Dispatches Cease-Fire Views

EGYPT—The Egyptian cabinet in a crucial night session decided to recall the Egyptian ambassador from London in protest over recent actions of the British in the Suez canal zone. This does not mean that the Egyptians are withdrawing their diplomatic mission, but the action may be taken as a diplomatic reproach rather than a break.

INDO-CHINA—Viet Minh forces launched a two pronged winter offensive against French positions on the Red River delta around Hanoi. According to French headquarters both attacks were crushed. The nationalist-communist forces of Gen. Ho were attempting to join the divided rebel forces in a solid front from the Chinese border to the southern coast.

Santa Claus Has Mail-box

NORTH POLE—There is no longer room for doubt that there is a real "pole" at the North Pole. An Alaskan Airlines DC-4 dropped a 9-foot barber pole at the geographic pole and then circled to dump hundreds of letters to Santa Claus near the site.

The whole operation was the idea of a Fairbanks, Alaska, woman who invited children all over North America to send their Santa letters in care of her address. She then chartered the plane and took the letters direct to the pole.

Deferrals For ROTC's Due Dec. 15

Saturday noon is the deadline for freshman ROTC deferrals.

Further deferrals of first year basic course students will be stopped after this time.

Earlier instructions allowed for deferrals to be arranged at the beginning of second semester. This is no longer valid because of the new army instructions.

Only first year basic course students in Army ROTC who sign the new agreement and submit it to the Military Science building by the deadline may hope for ROTC deferral.

The only deferrals which will be accepted after Saturday will be from students who are now under 18 years of age. As they reach 18 years and register with their local boards, they may be deferred upon promptly signing the required agreement.

Deferrals submitted prior to Dec. 10 were on the old form. Only forms issued since that date are acceptable. If any student is in doubt as to which form he used, he is urged by the army to verify his status in Room 110 of the Military Science building at once.

Crew Prepares For 'Idiot's Delight'

"Where's the hammer?" "Dim those lights!" "Where's the thread?"

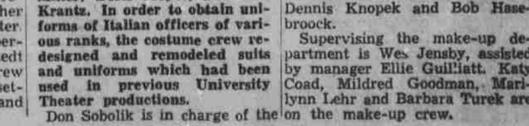

From behind the scenes of rehearsals of "Idiot's Delight" come these comments from the 35 students of the production crew assembling properties, costumes, lights and make-up.

Off stage preparations for the presentation of a play, production director Dan Tolch said, require more work than meets the eye of the audience. Each member of the scenery crew, he said, has worked an average of 50 hours creating the background scene of the Alps as seen through a big picture window of a hotel lobby.

D. K. Smith is in charge of scenery arrangements with the assistance of Shirley Fries, manager. Scenery crew members are Charles Anderson, Sue Neuenswander, Ruth Ann Richmond, Christine Phillips, Curt Siemera, Marian Uhe, Don Lewis, Sonna Holmes, Clyde Moore and Armand Mayer.

Working on a limited budget, the construction crew, under the direction of Charles Peterson, has produced a modern lobby of an exclusive hotel in northern Italy for the stage setting of "Idiot's Delight." This was accomplished, Tolch said, by adapting and remodeling furniture and other materials on hand in the theater.

Costumes for the six chorus girls were designed and made in the theater workshop by costume crew members, Shirley Miller, Doris Meyer, and Rita Krantz. In order to obtain uniforms of Italian officers of various ranks, the costume crew redesigned and remodeled suits and uniforms which had been used in previous University Theater productions.

Don Sobolik is in charge of the wardrobe department.

Lighting arrangements are under the supervision of Dick Garrison and Ann Launer, manager. Crew members are Milt Hoffman, Dennis Knopek and Bob Hasebrook.

Supervising the make-up department is Wes Jenaby, assisted by manager Ellie Guilliat. Katy Coad, Mildred Goodman, Marilyn Lehr and Barbara Turek are on the make-up crew.
