

Jumpin' Jayhawk

Kansas U., Illinois U. Both Win

By MARSHALL KUSHNER
Assistant Sports Editor

The University of Kansas basketball machine rolled merrily along this week as they started the week off by spanking Rice Institute of the Southwest conference, 68-48.

Coach Phog Allen's round-ball artists were having a rather hard time of it in the second quarter, when they were able to collect only 13 points. Ragged passing and poor shooting had the fans howling with glee.

Then the laughter ceased and the slaughter began. The Jayhawks poured it on and went away frapping the Owls. It was the sixth win for the Jayhawks this season.

Clyde Lovellette had an average day by hitting nine buckets and six gratis tosses for 24 tallies. This brings the all-American's record up to 167 points scored thus far in the season. He has averaged 27.8 points for six games.

Coach Allen used his first stringers sparingly during the game and allowed a total of 15 men to get into the fray. Conspicuous for his absence again was Charlie Hoag, all-around Jayhawk athlete.

The Sunflower boys certainly proved their press clippings were fallacious. The Jayhawks are currently riding in the Associated Press' seventh place spot in national ranking.

The Oklahoma Sooners found out what it was like to play the nation's best basketball quintet, according to the AP ratings, when they bucked heads with the University of Illinois and lost, 69-51.

LOVELLETTE'S UNDERSTUDY . . . Ever wondered who would play if University of Kansas basketball star center would be injured? Well, here he is, B. H. Born, who has done some fine relief work for Coach Phog Allen.

Colorado's Cagers Start Eastern Trip

Colorado's basketball squad treks eastward this week, playing games with Bradley and Michigan and ending its longest road trip of the reason in the Big Seven conference tourney at Kansas City.

The Buffs meet Bradley tonight at Peoria and Michigan Saturday at Ann Arbor before returning to the Kansas City meet. That annual conference affair runs Wednesday through Saturday of next week.

All legs of the 12-day trip will be made by air with Bebe Lee and his 14-man traveling squad leaving Denver Wednesday morning. They return home on December 30.

Players making the trip are: John Amaya, Don Branby, Art Bunie, Bruce Conway, Frank Gempert, Burdette Haldorsom, Tom Harold, Ralph Karst, Ken Koop, Bob Lawson, Ken Munns, Jim Ranglos, Bob Stewart, and Bob Yardley.

Lee, Assistant Coach Russell Walseth and Manager Bob Todd will also accompany the team.

This week's contests will be Colorado's first with Bradley and its second with Michigan. Colorado opened with the Wolverines here three years ago and won, 47-38.

Lee figures rough evenings on tap for both of the road games with Bradley posting a 32-6 mark from a year ago and Michigan again on the upswing after a second division finish in the Big Ten last winter.

The Braves already have knocked off Minnesota at Minneapolis and the Gophers in turn juggled national ratings by upsetting No. 1 Kentucky.

Lee presently is more concerned with his team shooting than comparative scores, figuring Buff percentages "have fallen far below the pace needed to win games."

"We can't expect to win against tough competition unless we hit well up in the thirties," Lee points out. "We've been getting 40 points a game when good shooting should get us 60."

The Buffs opened with a 36 per cent shooting average against Wichita and have fallen short of the 36 mark since with percentages of 21.4, 27.6, 27 and 21 in their next four games.

"In this modern day basketball, few defenses limit teams to 40 points, and ours is no exception—we've got to get points ourselves," Lee warned.

He plans to stick with his same five starters for the Bradley game, but will make switches if the scoring doesn't improve. These five presently top Buff scorers—Frank Gempert, 44 points, and Bob Yardley, 40, at forwards; Art Bunie, 41, center; John Amaya, 35, and Tom Harold, 34, guards.

On the football scene at C. U. two Colorado seniors have been named to the Omaha World-Herald all-Big Seven football team.

They are Fullback Merwin Hodel and Tackle Jack Jorgenson. Hodel was picked as the No. 1 fullback on the 1950 team.

Big 7 Tourney Is December 26

By ARLEY BONDARIN

The Big Seven Tournament, a highlight of the winter basketball campaign, will get under way on December 26th in Kansas City, Missouri.

The tourney will serve as a preview of the forthcoming Big Seven Conference regular season play. All members of the conference will be represented. To complete the bracketing of the round robin tournament, a guest team has been invited.

This year the Stanford Indians have been extended an invitation to compete at Kansas City. Thus far in the five year history of the tournament, no guest squad has been able to garner a championship, with the exception of Southern Methodist University Mustangs, who captured first place in the initial tourney in 1946.

Previous guest teams have been Southern Methodist and Arkansas, 1946; Oklahoma A. & M., 1947; Harvard, 1948; Michigan, 1949; Minnesota, 1950.

Through the round robin procedure all teams in the tournament are assured of playing three games. Once defeated, a team is put into a losers bracket where it competes with other defeated squads.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers will engage in the tourney as they are scheduled to face the nationally ranked Kansas State Wildcats.

The Huskers will enter the competition with a record of five victories and ten defeats in five tournaments. The Nebraskans have failed to garner either a championship or a runnerup spot in five previous attempts.

Previous Tournament champions and runnersup are as follows: 1946—Southern Methodist, Kansas; 1947—Kansas State, Oklahoma A. & M.; 1948—Oklahoma, Kansas; 1949—Missouri, Oklahoma; 1950—Kansas State, Minnesota.

Through five tourneys, Oklahoma and Kansas State hold the best records with eleven victories in fifteen contests for a percentage of 73.3. Kansas University's Jayhawkers have compiled a record of nine victories and six defeats, while Missouri has won eight and lost seven.

Iowa State's Cyclones have gained only four wins while dropping eleven contests. Poorest record of conference members is that of Colorado. The Buffaloes, in four years of competition since becoming a member of the conference, have been able to win only two games of the twelve which they have played.

Harvard, the 1948 guest, is the only quintet to fail to win a game, as they dropped all three of their contests.

Despite their inability to claim a championship, the Cornhuskers have made several tournament records which are likely to remain intact.

In 1949, the Huskers defeated Iowa State 85-67, establishing a single game point record for both an individual team and a game. The Scarlet's feat of countering 207 points in the 1949 tourney, an average of 69 points per game, also set a new mark.

Bob Pierce, holder of the Cornhusker scoring record, owns the tournament record for most free throws in a tourney career. Pierce, now in his freshman year with Phillips Oilers, toed the free throw line 31 times through the 1948-49-50 tournaments to establish a record.

Bob Cerv, Nebraska University's contribution to the New York Yankee baseball team, holds the rather dubious honor of having fouled 36 times through 1946-47-48-49.

In the all-time individual scoring race, former Husker great, Bus Whitehead, trails Pierce by one point. Pierce is in ninth spot with 87 points in nine games.

Whitehead scored 63 points in the 1949 tournament to garner fifth spot in single tourney statistics. Pierce is in seventh place with 54 markers in the 1950 tourney.

In the 1950 tournament, the Huskers placed a man on both the first and second teams.

The first team consisted of Whitey Skoog and Maynard Johnson, Minnesota; Clyde Lovellette, Kansas; Jack Barrett, Kansas State; Jim Buchanan, Nebraska.

Placed on the second squad were Lew Hitch and Jack Stone, Kansas State; Jim Owens, Oklahoma; Jerry Waugh, Kansas; Bob Pierce, Nebraska.

Although snow seems to shut out plans for summer, foresighted camp counselors will be interested in the new Camp Leadership course which will be offered the spring semester. This new two credit course is sponsored jointly by the Men's and Women's P.E. Department.

Hollie Lepley and Ruth Shellberg are in charge of the course which meets Tuesday and Thursday at 1 p.m. Camp Leadership consists of a series of lectures and discussions and a laboratory on outdoor work in camping skills. No prerequisites are required for the new Camp Leadership course.

Grant Memorial, at present, supports about three bracketed charts showing the progress of the various tournaments. Closer inspection of these intriguing brackets will reveal that the Volleyball teams of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Gamma, and Dorm are in the semifinals of the tournament which the Kappas won last year.

Kappa Kappa Gamma number one, won a seat in the semifinal round by beating Dorm number two. Kappa Alpha Theta number one emerged the Kappa opponent after beating Alpha Phi number one. In the other semifinal tussle the Delta Gamma number one team beat Alpha Xi Delta number 2 to qualify to play Dorm team number one. Dorm beat Alpha Xi Delta number one to get into the semifinals.

According to the Duckpin Tournament Chart those still in that tournament are Alpha Omicron Pi number two, Alpha Chi Omega number one and number 5, Delta Delta Delta number one, Gamma Phi Beta number one, Kappa Alpha Theta number one and number two, Kappa Kappa Gamma number four and number five, and Towne Club number one.

By glancing at the Bowling Chart one sees that Chi O's Barbara Kissler and Kathleen Kelly, and the Dorm's Marilyn Reynolds have thus far won the most games.

Other contenders are Alpha Phi's Jackie Griffiths, Peggy Wells, Marilyn, and Bev Aldrich. Alpha Xi's still in tournament are Marilyn Schnert, and Marilyn Post. Chi O contenders are Mary Ann Pasek, Carol Else, Joan Hoyt, and Ann Lammers. Marlene Oehle and Nancy Dahlgren are Tri Delt contenders.

DGs Sally Adams, Virginia Poppy, Susie Reinhardt, and Paula Withey are still in the alley sport. The Dorm is pinning its hopes on Myer, Miller, Betty Scoville, Marilyn Rice, Wanda Barrett, and Joan Hawthorne. Lou Carnaby and Mary Ann Neely are holding their own for the Thetas while Eileen Oelrich and Phyllis Lickel are doing the same for Terrace Hall and Towne Club respectively.
