

DYING GRANDMOTHERS

Students Use Many Excuses To Register Early—Hoover

"So many grandmothers die in Podunk Center during registration weeks, I can't see how all the morticians keep up with the times," quoted Dr. Floyd Hoover, acting director of registration and records.

Students try to use all types of excuses so they can register early, Hoover said, but this one seems to be the most common.

Despite all the bruises and small headaches over registration, Dr. Hoover says, he is very glad that registration is going so smoothly.

"Something that surprises me is that there are very few students dropping and adding this semester. According to other semesters, we fully expected to be overflowing with students dropping and adding after the first day of classes," he stated.

A new feature started this semester is the use of brown cards. Students were given a brown card for every class to present to their instructors. These cards register the student in the class.

According to Hoover, results of this new system are proving very successful. Niles Barnard, professor of mechanical engineering, said he thinks the use of the brown cards is a very good idea.

Occasionally student forget their cards, but very few. "At least we know they are registered in the class. In the case of dropping and adding, the student must get his card from us before dropping the course. This way we know that the person has dropped, whereas before we didn't know for a couple of weeks. This system should be very effective," Professor Barnard stated.

Arthur Easton, assistant professor and supervisor of practical arts, also states that the use of brown cards is very good. "Every semester efficiency is increased and I think these cards will prove themselves worthwhile to the student as well as the instructor," he says.

Another faculty member approached on the subject of the new brown card system used this semester was S. J. House, instructor of political science. "Since my classes are so large, I usually don't know the correct attendance for several weeks after the semester starts. This system will also tell me when a student drops a course or if he is just skipping," states Mr. House.

Aggies To Attempt To Identify Baby Pictures Of Classmates

By KATHY RADAKEN Feature Editor

Attention all Ag students! Could you identify one of your fellow classmates by looking at his baby picture? Here's your chance to try your skill on the matter—Who know, you may have unknown talent!

If you see anyone on campus look at you rather queerly, don't think anything of it. They are busy studying your facial features, and then quickly going over to the show case in the Ag

Union to see if your baby picture is posted there.

You may have a long nose, mole on your cheek or big bright eyes—be careful, you might be a dead give-away.

Twenty baby pictures of prominent Ag students will be shown in the Union and all Ag students may have one guessing chance. (It will be guessing, as every picture looks like it might be at least five different people.) There naturally would be a catch in the contest somewhere. There are 20 pictures and 30 names, so even if you thought you would try to use the process of elimination, it wouldn't work.

While standing around the Union you hear all kinds of comments.

"Isn't she darling—but who could it be?"

"But that couldn't be him—he's so cute!"

Anyway, you finally guess at all the pictures and then take one final look to put down your preference for the cutest baby.

Valuable prizes will be awarded the person identifying the most pictures correctly and the person whom the students select as the cutest baby. The person must attend the Sno-Ball to enable him to receive the prize.

The baby picture contest which started yesterday will end Feb. 8. It will be the feature highlight of the first Ag dance of the second semester to be held in the College Activities Building. Bobby Mills and his orchestra will provide the music for dancing from 8:30 until 11:30 p.m.

The contest is sponsored by the Ag Union dance committee and is under the direction of Jeanne Vierk and Fred Hosterman. Admission to the dance is $1.50 per couple.

Ag Fellowship To Honor Student House Heads

Paul and Harriet Kemling, Ag Student House supervisors for the past two and one-half years, will be honored Sunday at the Ag Interdenominational Youth Fellowship meeting.

Kemling has worked for the extension department at the College of Agriculture, and is moving back to the farm. He will be replaced by Sam Gibson, executive secretary of YMCA.

The Ag Fellowship meeting will start at 5:30 p.m.; and they will eat promptly at 6 p.m. Later on they will go to hear Paul Scherer, guest of LSA, at the Union.

Ground Clearing Project Will Continue University Program Of Dorm Expansion

The house moving between 15th and 16th streets is part of the University's program of expansion, according to William C. Harper, Director of Commercial Enterprises and Student Activities. The houses are being moved to clear ground that is part of the plot for the addition of new men's dormitories.

Although building plans cannot be definite until plans for acquiring money and materials are completed, the ground clearing process has been carried on for the past few years so that there will be no delay when building begins.

Harper indicated that there might be a good chance to get the priorities for building materials some time after July 1.

There is a possibility that construction of the men's dorm's will begin in the fall of 1952.

The money situation will be taken care of in the same manner used in building the Residence Halls for Women, which are self-supporting. No tax money will be used. A loan will be floated with the understanding that interest and principal will be paid from the money acquired from the use of the dorms.

Harper estimated that approximately 2 million dollars will be required to finish the men's dormitories. In the meantime, architectural plans are being completed and with luck,

9. If there is any violation of the rules, the candidates will be disqualified.

Instructors Emphasize Regular Class Attendance

A survey of 175 University faculty members shows that most instructors place a large amount of importance on regular class attendance.

The survey, conducted recently by the Student Advisory committee, of Teachers college, noted a definite correlation between attendance and test grades. Many commented that being present indicates a student's attitude and interest in the subject. Attendance, it was revealed, is especially important in physical education classes, seminars and labs.

'52 Handbook Applicants Due Tuesday, 5 P.M.

Deadline for applications for editor, assistant editor, business manager and photographer for the 1952 Husker Handbook is 5 p.m., Tuesday.

Application blanks for the positions may be obtained at Public Relations office, 1125 R street, Administration Annex.

A weighted average of 4.5 is required for all applicants. They must also be carrying at least 12 hours of college work.

Applicants will be interviewed Wednesday by the Student Council, with members of the Publications Board advising selections.

The remainder of the Husker Handbook staff will be chosen later by the four staff members.

Last year's staff members were Leonard Bush, editor; Jackie Sorenson, assistant editor; Bob Sherwood, photographer; and Shirley Murphy and Gerry Fellman, man-in-charge editors.

The handbook, published for the first time last year, included sections on housing, finances, activities and honoraries, traditions, maps, calendars of events and other features of the University.

End Of Long Trail ...

CLIMAX FOR A STUPORED STUDENT . . . Mid-year has come and gone and left its scars—for Shelly Johnstone. If he can make it up those five steps to Student Health, perhaps another shot of morphine will carry him through the coming semester. His future? . . . More mid-year problems next year. What an experience! (Daily Nebraskan Photo.)

Admission Tax Exemptions Now May Apply To University, Student Sponsored Functions

Many University and student sponsored functions may be exempt from the federal tax on admissions according to an announcement by William C. Harper, dean of commercial enterprises and student activities.

Student organizations which wish to apply for exemption should do so well in advance, at least two months before the function is to be held, Harper said.

Applications are to be filed at Room 201, Administration building.

According to the provisions of the federal law the following religious, educational or charitable entertainments will be exempt:

1. Church or a convention or association of churches.

2. Educational institutions supported by political division (state, local or federal) which normally have a regular faculty, curriculum and organized student body.

3. Any community chest, fund or foundation organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes if the organization is maintained by funds contributed by federal or state government, or is supported by funds donated by the general public.

4. An organization conducted for the sole purpose of maintaining symphony orchestras or operas and is supported by voluntary contributions.

Functions which are for the benefit of national guard organizations reserve officers' associations or organizations posts or organizations of war veterans will also be exempt from the tax.

Any admissions to concerts conducted by civic or community membership associations will be exempt if no part of the earnings benefit the members.

The following functions will NOT be exempt:

1. Any athletic game or exhibition unless the proceeds are for the benefit of an elementary or secondary school.

2. Wrestling or boxing matches.

3. Carnivals, rodeos or circuses in which any performer or operator participates for pay.

4. Motion picture exhibitions.

Grade School Art Show Set

Approximately 170,000 grade school pupils in Nebraska's public and parochial schools have been invited to participate in the fifth annual All-State Elementary School Art Exhibit.

The exhibit, sponsored by the University Department of Art and extension division will be held April 19 to 26 in the Miller and Paine auditorium.

Mrs. Nellie Vance, exhibit director, said invitations have been mailed to all Nebraska schools to take part in the exhibit. Last year schools submitted 3,200 drawings to the state judging committee, which selected 468 for the exhibit. This year about 500 drawings will be selected.

The entries can be water color, crayon, pencil, ink, finger painting, charcoal, oil or show card work. They must be original drawings. Four pupils who submit exceptional drawings will be awarded $50 scholarships donated by Miller and Paine to the University All-State high school fine arts course to be held next summer.

C. M. George To Speak At IVCF Meeting Tonight

"John Wesley—Knowledge on Fire" will be the subject of a address by the Rev. C. M. George at the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship meeting Thursday night.

Rev. George now teaches at the Omaha Bible Institute. He was a graduate student at the University last year and served as campus pastor for the Methodist church.

The meeting will be held in Room 315, Union, at 7:30 p.m.
