UN Secretary Scheduled For Commencement

Trygve H. Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, will be speaker at the University's 81st annual commencement June 2.

J. P. Colbert, chairman of the committee on commencement, in making announcement of Lie's acceptance to speak, declared that he was inclined to believe that the University's great effort to extend an understanding of the United Nations had something to do with his willingness to come here.

Lie's willingness to speak to the University, said Dr. Frank E. Sorenson, frequent University representative to United Nations meetings, is "unambiguously a recognition of the UN work of the University under the leadership of Chancellor Gustavson."

Sorenson, director of summer sessions and chairman of department of educational services, remarked that the UN and Lie have been extremely interested in the projects of the University in promotion of the United Nations and its purposes.

United Nations officials "think a lot of NUCWA," he added.

Lie's acceptance was sent from Paris, scene of the United Nation's recently sixth regular General Assembly meeting.

He was invited to speak at commencement by Chancellor Gustavson, upon the suggestion of the commencement committee, according to Colbert. Lie, who was mentioned as a possible speaker last year but was not contacted, was a unanimous choice of the committee, he said.

"We consider it a real honor to have Mr. Lie at the University," Colbert added.

A native of Oslo, Norway, Lie is a graduate of the Oslo University Law school and has received honorary degrees from several universities, including Yale and Princeton.

During World War II he escaped to England with the Norwegian government and served as Norwegian foreign minister. He was a delegate to the United Nations conference in San Francisco in 1945. The following year he served as chairman of the Norwegian delegation to the General Assembly in London, where he was elected secretary general.

As secretary general, Lie is the most important permanent United Nations official.

University commencement members are Colbert, Elsie M. Jevons, Oskar E. Edison, Otis Wade, Rufus H. Moore and C. B. Schulz, faculty members; and Peggy Mulvaney and Joe Gifford, students.

Chancellor Gustavson was not available for comment.

Agar To Address NU Students Convocation Scheduled For Tuesday In Coliseum

Herbert Agar, Pulitzer Prize-winning author and a former ambassador assistant, will address the third all-University convocation Tuesday, Feb. 26, in the Coliseum.

Classes will be dismissed for the 10 a.m. convocation, according to Lynn Kunkle, chairman of the Union convocation committee.

Agar, one-time special assistant to Ambassador John G. Winant in England and first assistant to Ambassador W. Averill Harriman, will speak on the subject "What Are We Defending?"

The speaker, a graduate of Columbia and Princeton universities, won the Pulitzer Prize American history award in 1943 with his book, "The People's Choice." Among his other books have been "The Price of Union," "The Land of the Free," "The Pursuit of Happiness" and "A Time of Greatness." He has been prominent as a newspaper editor.

An active foreign diplomat, Agar was named chief of the British Division of the Office of War Information, with headquarters in the London Embassy, in 1943. In 1946, he became Counselor for Public Affairs and chief of the US Information Service in London.

Agar's convocation appearance will precede a noon luncheon in his honor in Parlor X of the Union. Reservations for the luncheon, open to all students, must be made by Friday with Miss Kunkle.

An informal discussion will follow the luncheon and an organized discussion will be held in the Union faculty lounge from 3 to 4 p.m.

Miss Kunkle said the convocation was scheduled in the Coliseum to provide for Agar's audience. Some 3,500 students crowded into the Union ballroom for the preceding all-University convocation. Maurice Hindus was the speaker.

The convocation is being sponsored by the Union convocations committee, including Bob LaShelle, sponsor; Miss Kunkle, chairman; Ruth Sorenson, Jo LaShelle, Jean Davis and Don Mead. Prof. C. J. Schenider, University convocation chairman, will introduce the speaker.

Extension Club Donates Two Scholarships

Two $200 scholarships have been donated to the University for students who will teach cerebral palsy victims.

The Dawson County Home Extension club raised the money following a talk by Ray M. Taibim, director of special education for the State Department of Public Instruction.

The women accumulated the funds through various means, according to Mrs. Richard McFarren of Cozad, director of the county home extension clubs organization. Some clubs held auctions, others passed a food basket and another sponsored a luncheon to raise the money.

The project was a country-wide goal of the Dawson county clubs in 1951.

'Aggies Fiesta' Chosen '52 Farmers Fair Theme

"Aggies Fiesta" has been announced as the theme of the 1952 Farmers Fair by Frank Sibert, fair board manager. Sibert said that the fair would be built around a carnival atmosphere, featuring a midway, two dances, parade, rodeo and barbecue.

The fair is scheduled for April 25 and 26. Sibert stressed that every Ag student is a member of Farmers Fair, and that it would take a lot of work and co-operation to make it a success.

At present, the fair board is in the process of tabulating a Farmers Fair poll in which Ag students give their opinions and suggestions for the fair and sign up for a committee.

Any students who have not participated in the poll, and wish to sign up for a committee may obtain one of the polls in the Ag Union office.

After the polls are tabulated, the committee members will be contacted and mass committee meetings held.

Highlighting the two-day festivities will be the presentation of a Goddess of Agriculture, Whisker King and Rodeo Queen.

The entire week of April 21-26 is designated as Farmers Fair week, with organized activities beginning with the Cotton and Denim dance Friday night, April 25.

BARBs Plan Box Social For Brotherhood Week

A box social for foreign students of the University will highlight National Brotherhood Week, Feb. 17 to 24, Barb Activities Board for Women has announced.

The social will be held on George Washington's birthday anniversary, Friday, at 6:15 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

There are 150 foreign students at the University, the board said, and this party is intended to give these students an opportunity to become better acquainted with American students and traditions.

Ladies will be admitted free, the board announced, but they must bring box lunches prepared for two. The boxes will not be auctioned, they said, but men will be charged 55 cents admission.

The boxes will be so arranged that each foreign student will eat with an American student, according to Lucille Cyprean, faculty advisor to BARB.

A quiz program will be conducted, following the lunch, Miss Cyprean said, in which the questions asked will deal with American history in the time of George Washington.

Singing of traditional American songs, which many of the foreign students have been learning in some of their classes, will follow the program, Miss Cyprean said.

Following the singing, she added, a professional square dance group will give an exhibition and Jack Moore will teach square dancing after the exhibition.

Card games will be taught to those who do not care to square dance, she added.

She said that the evening will end with ballroom dancing. The box social for foreign students was sponsored last year by the speech department.

Reservations for the social must be made by Wednesday in Room 102, Temple.

MASQUERS COMEDY

George Washington, Benedict Arnold — Play's Hero Wonders Who Slept Here

"George Washington never slept here" is what Newton Fuller, leading character in the Broadway production "George Washington Slept Here," discovers after purchasing a dilapidated house in the remote countryside of New Jersey.

Newton Fuller will be played by Kenneth Clement, sophomore agricultural economics major, when the Nebraska Masquers produce the comedy, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m., in Room 201, Temple building.

"George Washington Slept Here," by Kaufman and Hart is the story of Newton Fuller and his wife Annabelle and their problems with a new home.

From the first moment Annabelle, a city lover, played by Marty Miller, senior in speech and drama, enters the door, numberless complications follow. For it was Benedict Arnold who slept there, not the famous General Washington.

Wes Jensby, junior in speech and drama working under the supervision of Max Whittaker, director of the experimental theater, will direct the play.

Norma Erikson, technical director of the production, a speech correction major, will be in charge of wardrobe, stage, make-up, and scenery.

Miss Erikson describes Mr. Kimber played by Marvin Stromer, a freshman in speech, as one of the most hilarious character portrayals in the show. Percy Kilbride, famous as "Pa Kettle," played this part on Broadway.

Masquers, University chapter of National Collegiate Players presents a three-act play each year to University audiences. They assume sole responsibility for production, direction and acting of the show.

"George Washington Slept Here," one of Kaufman and Hart's greatest successes, is a wisecrack festival with a generous supply of outstanding character parts, said Jensby.

Tickets may be obtained at the box office in Temple from 8 to 5 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday. The price is 80 cents.
