Sorenson May Direct Point Four Division

Education Services Position

Dr. Frank Sorenson, chairman of the department of education services of the University, is being considered as possible director of the educational staff of Point Four.

Point Four, otherwise known as Technical Co-operation Administration, is a program designed to aid other countries in improving agricultural, educational and health conditions.

Several weeks ago in Washington, Dr. Sorenson was invited to interview officials of Point Four and discuss the director vacancy. After a long discussion, he said, he was invited to consider the position. Such a position would necessitate a possible year's absence from the University.

The matter of a leave of absence has been presented to the Board of Regents and the Chancellor. It is understood that such a leave would be granted upon confirmation of the appointment. Dr. Sorenson said. This appointment, he added, would result in recognition for the University, the opportunity to keep informed and the opportunity to share more directly in the program.

"If the appointment is confirmed by TCA, I will probably accept the position. It would be a great honor to be the director of the Point Four educational staff," declared Dr. Sorenson.

TCA Has Program For Aid

Point Four, or Technical Co-operation Administration, is a program for assisting other peoples in increasing food production, bettering health conditions and improving educational systems.

This was stated by Dr. Frank Sorenson, chairman of University educational services. Dr. Sorenson is being considered for the position of director of the educational staff of Point Four.

In explaining the history of Point Four, Dr. Sorenson said TCA was recommended to Congress about three years ago but has only been in operation a year and a half. Under the direct supervision of the department of state, the program operates with the help of two advisory committees.

The first is representative of American business and labor. Dr. Sorenson explained. It is now under the head of Eric Johnston, president of the motion picture association. The second committee is made up of the heads of major departments in Washington, such as Interior, Labor, etc., he said.

The total budget of TCA in 1951 was $37 million. Thirty-six countries are included in the program and this, Sorenson states, is a fairly inexpensive method of helping them to improve their conditions. It is constructive expenditure, in that for every dollar the U.S. spends, each of these countries spends three in an attempt to better their conditions.

May Queen Applications Due Friday

Applications for May Queen candidates must be filed in Dean Frank M. Hallgren's office in Room 209, Administration building, by 5 p.m. Friday if the names are to appear on all-junior-senior woman election ballots.

Any senior woman who has participated in activities and has a 5.5 weighted average is eligible to file.

In previous years sorority houses submitted entrants for queen. Individual applications were also accepted.

According to Peggy Mulvaney, co-chairman of filings and spring elections, the new system requiring applications to be made only by candidates should enable more women to file. The system also provides equal opportunity to both affiliated and independent women.

The queen, as chosen through the election, will be presented on Ivy Day. The second high candidate will be maid of honor. Date of the election will be announced later.

GIRL CRAZY

Whittaker, Schmidt, Moore, Tolch To Direct Spring Kosmet Klub Show

By JAN HARRISON Staff Writer

Four University men, Max Whittaker, Aaron Schmidt, Jack Moore and John Tolch, will be directors of the forthcoming Kosmet Klub show, "Girl Crazy."

Whittaker, assistant professor of dramatic art and director of the University Theater, will be head director of the show with Schmidt directing musical numbers and Moore the dance numbers. Tolch, technical director for University Theater, will be the show's technical director.

Whittaker is a home product of Nebraska. Born at Belvedere, he was graduated from the University in 1942. During his college years he was a cheerleader, member of Kosmet Klub and Delta Tau Delta. He also produced "Aksarben Knights" for K.K. while in school.

After a period of four years spent in the Navy Hospital Corps and more study, he received his M.A. degree in 1948. He is now working, during the summers, on a Ph. D. degree at Leland Stanford.

Since Whittaker has been at the University, he has directed such plays as "Petrified Forest," "Guest in the House," "Once in a Lifetime," the recently past production "Idiot's Delight," and others.

He has been technical director for "Twelfth Night," "My Sister Eileen," "The Girl of the Golden West." He has been active in directing one act plays in experimental theater and working with Freshman acting groups. Whittaker has been a director at the University's All-State courses for four years.

While he was at Stanford he was stage manager for two productions and on the technical crew of a third.

He now teaches fundamental courses in acting in the speech department along with courses in history of the American theater and advanced interpretation.

Schmidt, a graduate student in the School of Music, is from Fremont. He spent two years with the 384th Army Band and directed the unit's male glee club.

Schmidt is head drum major of the University's ROTC Band, was a member of Kosmet Klub and president of the senior class in 1950-51. He was also president of Sinfonia, men's music fraternity, during his junior year in school. Schmidt is now president of Gamma Lambda, band fraternity. He is a member of University Singers and solo clarinetist in the University Orchestra.

Moore is a junior from Lincoln majoring in theater speech.

Having taken dancing lessons since early childhood, he has had considerable stage experience.

After graduating from high school, he became an apprentice in the Cleveland Playhouse in Cleveland, Ohio, where he acted in "Life With Father." The show was later taken to the Chataqua Repertory Company, Chataqua, New York. The last three summers Moore has danced in such productions as "Look Ma, I'm Dancing," "Brigadoon," "On The Town" and "Bittersweet." All were produced at Cain Park theater in Cleveland.

Last year he was the dance director of the KK show "Good News." He has also directed the dances for "Idiot's Delight."

Tolch, technical director for the University Theater, is completing his first year at the University. Graduating from Eastern Illinois State college, he completed his graduate work at Michigan State in 1950.

In 1950-51 he directed the dramatic program at Minot State Teachers college in Minot, N.D. There he was director as well as technical director.

Working in conjunction with the University Theater, the Kosmet Klub sells Theater production tickets during the year and the theater department supports KK on its annual shows.

In the midst of the man hunt at Coed Follies, two policemen chased several intruders back stage. In an attempt to find the fellows, the officers spent several minutes high up in the catwalks. They were sure they had seen one of the unwanted men. The officers came back from the tour of the regions above the stage. The only things they had to show for their efforts were two very puzzled expressions. It seems that the hunted male was only a coed in blue jeans.

Admit Men To Follies, Council Urges AWS

A motion to admit men to Coed Follies next year was passed Wednesday by the Student Council. The motion will be referred to the AWS board.

The motion came as a result of discussion on the Tuesday night riot at the Nebraska theater during the Follies production. It was decided that the only possible way to insure against future acts of this type would be to allow the men to attend the performance.

A delegation of N-club members accompanied by athletic director George "Potsy" Clark and track coach Ed Weir, petitioned the Council for a representative on the Student Council. The present constitution calls for no representative from the N-club and they wish to amend Article four, Section one.

Speakers for the N-club argued that since they were one of the most representative groups of the University, having both affiliated and non-affiliated men and members from all parts of the state in their membership, they would fulfill the qualifications set up for representation on the Council.

Reasons for no N-club representation provided in the constitution were based on attendance at meetings last year and the fact that no mention was made at the time the Council

In a parking report to the Council, George Cobel, president, said that the faculty parking committee had made suggestions toward clearing up the problem of parking on campus.

The parking committee suggested a system of fines instituted against parking violators instead of the rustication procedure now in operation. Fines could not be assessed against faculty violators.

The fines, Cobel said, would work on the same basis as a library fine on an overdue book.

Suggestions from the floor included many long range plans. It was suggested that underground parking lots and two or three story lots could be built and paid for by a slight fee when using the lot.

No formal action on the Council motion that all segregated faculty-student parking be abolished was taken by the faculty committee. The question will be voted upon at a meeting of the committee Tuesday.

LAW LECTURES

Variety Of Opportunities Open To Future Lawyers

Various law specialties, jobs related to the law profession and a "general practitioner" type of law practice are open to students who obtain a Bachelor of Laws degree.

This was the assertion of Dr. Arthur Hitchcock opening a discussion on law careers in Love Library auditorium Tuesday evening.

The first of four career lecture-discussions scheduled by the Counseling service was calculated to advise possible law students on the law profession in general and the University Law college in particular.

Dean Belsheim of the Law college explained that the first requirement for entrance is a satisfactory grade in either a University aptitude test or a national law aptitude exam.

Two curricula are open to law students, Belsheim pointed out. Students may embark on a four year course after completing one half the work required for either a Bachelor of Science or Arts degree, 63 semester hours.

If a student applies for entrance holding a B. S. or B. A. he will have to complete three years of law for the Bachelor of Laws.

Belsheim advises the two year pre-law course for students who are certain that they want to become lawyers. Those who take only three years in Law college find they cannot cover the subjects they would like to finish in the shorter time.

Even students with an insecure draft status should go ahead and begin the four year course if they ever plan to begin law school, Belsheim went on to say.

There is no pre-law course, he emphasized. Almost every college course is related to law. He advised students to take those courses they like best.

But he thinks English is especially important. Law students must be able to express themselves concisely and clearly, he said. History, psychology, sociology and logic are all good pre-law courses.

Lewis Pierce, Law college senior, explained extra curricular activities carried on by the Law college.

The first year, he said, students are required to participate in mock trials continuing from year to year until all but two teams are eliminated.

Later students may want to work in the Legal Aid bureau sponsored by the College.

Pierce pointed out that the attitude of the Law college is business like and "tough." One out of three students are dropped from each freshman class.

The last speaker on the panel, Professor Colbert, said that students who keep their grades up are not in great danger of being drafted. He advised students to enter law and take military science courses simultaneously.

The next career discussion will cover the field of nursing in Ellen Smith hall at 7 p.m. Tuesday.
