

Husker Grid Practices Begin; 80 Men Expected

By GLENN NELSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The Cornhusker football squad began spring workouts Monday. Unfavorable weather conditions forced the Huskers to work out in the field house in sweat clothes.

Coach Bill Glassford worked his squad on fundamentals throughout the workout. Line men were drilled on blocking and tackling, using weighted dummies, while backs ran through plays of various formations.

Only one more workout is on the practice schedule for this week—Tuesday. This will enable the gridder to utilize their numbered practice sessions for more favorable weather conditions, and release squad members for the four-day high school state basketball tournament, starting in the Coliseum Wednesday.

Big Seven regulations limit spring drills to 20 two-hour practices over a 30 day period. The spring football season will close on Saturday April 5, when the traditional Alumni-Varsity game highlights All Sports Day festivities.

Coach Glassford will work players both offensively and defensively in the spring drills. He has not yet decided to abandon the two-plateau system, but will make up his mind when he finds out how many of his men will be available for both offensive and defensive chores.

The T formation will be the ED WEIR . . . Referee of the 27th Kansas Relays in Lawrence April 21 and 22 will be the Husker cinder mentor. Weir never has missed the Jayhawk games either as a competitor or coach. He won the 120-yard high hurdles at 15.0, holding the record until 1931.

No More Laughing At Bunte

That roly-poly kid who drew the laughs early in Colorado's basketball season is having some of his own these days.

Buff freshman Art Bunte's latest is at the expense of Eky-line champion Wyoming, most recent to find out basketball isn't for spindly guys only.

The nation's tenth best Cowpokes withered under a 19-point Bunte barrage here Monday with the Denver yearling coming off the bench in the fourth quarter to ram home 22 points and reel back the NCAA qualifiers.

The splurge shot him above junior Frank Gompert as the Buffs best scorer with 247 points and an 11.2 average while Gompert fell to second with 244 and an 11.1. Bunte also owns the best shooting percentage with 34.9.

Bunte's first defense that there is a place in basketball for hefty came in the second round of the Big Seven tournament when he whipped in 21 points against Nebraska. But it wasn't until after that 92-40 shellacking by Kansas State that the 217-lb. newcomer caught fire.

Paced by the ex-South Denver prep, Colorado came on to win four of their next seven—as many as the Buffs had won in their first 14 starts. Included were a 65-57 triumph to avenge that losing from No. 2 Kansas State and a 59-44 win over Wyoming to avenge that 69-39 fiasco.

Over the 7-game span, he scored 119 points for a 17-point average. The volley went like this—15 against Kansas; 22, Nebraska; 16, Missouri; 18, Kansas State; 16, Oklahoma; and 19 in each game against Wyoming.

major formation again next fall, the Husker mentor indicated. The spread will also be used, but dills during the spring season will be concentrated on the T formation.

The biggest headache confronting Glassford and his staff at the present time is to groom capable quarterbacks for next fall's team.

Early quarterback candidates include John Bordogna, Turtle Creek, Pa.; Kenneth Moore, Mount Vernon, Ia.; Don Norris, Duane Rankin, Lincoln; and Dan Brown, Rapid City, So. Dak.

Only two of these men saw considerable action on last fall's varsity squad. Those two are Bordogna and Norris. The others are freshmen hopefuls.

Coach Glassford will divide his squad into two groups for intrasquad maneuvers. These squads will compete against each other in a series of game scrimmages.

Coaches Glassford, Bob Davis, Marvin Franklin, Ralph Rife and Ray Prochaska will have charge of one group.

The other will be in charge of Ike Hanscom, Pete Janetos, Neal Mehring, Al Partin, Fran Nagle and Don Strashelm.

Four men were lost from the 1951 squad by graduation. They are Dick Regier, Frank Simon, Joe Ponceigo and Bob Mullen. Regier and Simon were the starting offensive ends, Mullen was a defensive tackle and linebacker, and Ponceigo started at guard on offense.

The spring roster:

4 Kansas State Seniors Finish Basketball Play

Four Kansas State basketball stars, members of two Wildcat Big Seven championship teams, played their final game in the K-State fieldhouse Monday night when the Wildcats closed their conference season against Oklahoma's Sooners.

The seniors are Jim Iverson, John Gibson, Don Upson, and Dick Peck.
Iverson and Gibson have been starters on the firebrand team which Coach Jack Gardner put on the court this season. Upson and Peck, members of the so-called No. 2 unit, have furnished part of the reserve power that has made Kansas State the most talented squad in the conference.

Jimmy Iverson, who came to Kansas State from Mitchell, S. D., had a slow sophomore year but has burned the league in 1951 and 1952. He has already become the highest scoring guard K-State has ever tossed into conference play. And, he has been particularly effective against Oklahoma in past games. In the conference tourney at Kansas City, Mo., last December Iverson hit 13 points as the Wildcats won 84 to 69. In a thriller at Norman, Oklahoma, Ivy looped 15 points which saved face for the Cats as they won 65 to 54.

Last season, Iverson plunked in a long set shot in the final four seconds of the game to defeat Oklahoma 55 to 53 in a Big Seven tourney game. Later in the year last season he looped 18 points as K-State won 87 to 48.

Gibson, Peck and Upson have not been so prominent in the scoring columns. However, Gibson, one of the best ball-hawkers in league history, has been particularly annoying to the Sooners. It was his ball-stealing tactics which led K-State to a 43-42 win in 1950 and he has been troublesome to Bruce Drake's club ever since.

Kansas State now has won 12 straight Big Seven games at Manhattan. In all games played in the fieldhouse over a two-year span, the Wildcats have won 22 of 23 contests, losing only to Indiana.
In recent years, K-State has held the edge over Oklahoma in basketball victories. Since Jack Gardner's return from Navy service in 1947, the Cats have taken 11 of 17 contests.
The all-time record of the Sooners, the Red Men having won 48 and the Cats 24 of the 73 games played since the series started in 1920.

Voting Due Today

The deadline for voting on the All-Star basketball teams drew near today as 39 of the 81 teams had already submitted their team ballots.

The voting will close at 5 p.m. Tuesday and the final selections will be drawn upon those ballots in on time. For those 42 teams who still have not voted, remember to get yours in today. Turn them in either at the Daily Nebraskan office or the Intramural office.
Each team may vote for from one to ten men whom they faced during the I-M season just finished. Remember, today is the last day. Bring your ballot in now.

Bye Bye Blues
The advent of June graduation will bring about the departure of some of the snazziest basketball players this Big Seven conference has had the pleasure of watching.

Heading the graduating crop will be Clyde Lovellette, Jim Buchanan and Jim Stauffer. These three came along through outstanding sophomore playing days to their present ripened record setting status.

The Great White Whale, alias Cumulus Clyde, set a NCAA major-league career scoring mark with 1671 points in 71 games (a 23.5 average if my mathematics serve me properly.)

Writes Don Pierce, Jayhawk chief publicist, "There have been fine scorers atop Mt. Oread and around the Big Seven before . . . Ray Ebling, Howard Engleman, Gerald Tucker, Charlie Black . . . all kings in their day. But the Big Boy with the feathery fingers makes them look like pea-shooters on a rifle-range."

With Clyde finishing his college career against Colorado last night, Big Seven pundits can start talking about . . . "I saw Lovellette . . ."

"Buchanan must have smashed the scoring record for the most points scored with feet off the ground!" That was the observation made by Ed Weir, scarlet cinder coach.

We'll never forget that basketball game when a jam-packed crowd gathered to watch Claude Retherford's undecipherable shot (his set-ups looked more like a diver's half-gainer with a full twist) and Bus Whitehead's great "touch" on tip-ins.

The scene was set for pink cheeked, baby-faced Jim Buchanan to make his entrance in the game. This writer was only in high school at the time, but how well we can recall the "oohs" and "ahs" when Buchanan potted a long two-hand push shot.

It isn't necessary to review the prestige that Buchanan brought to himself and to Nebraska. He made people forget the Retherfords, Whiteheads and Pierces.

Camouflaged as a clumsy, broad shouldered football hero, Bill Stauffer smashed many of the scoring standards at the University of Missouri and won the hearts of the Columbia followers.

Tiger mentor, Sparky Stalcup, had turned out such products as Don Stroot, Dapper Dan Pippin and Bud Heineman. Stauffer caused the loquacious Mizou fans laryngitis cheering him on to surpass the scoring records set by the above trio.

Eyes To The Future

It's not taking too much of a risk if you crawl out on a limb, especially if the branch is fortified with names like Dick Knostrman, Bob Rousey, Jesse Priscock and Gene Wilson.

Kansas State will not only win the conference championship, but will monopolize the national basketball picture in 1952-53. Coach Gardner has the material to win every invitational tournament they participate in.

Coach Forrest "Phog" Allen will face the "dry year" period every tutor has nightmares about. Gone are the playing days of Bob Kenney, John Keller, Bill Lienhard, Clyde Lovellette and Bill Hougland. A quick check at the Kansas starting lineup will bear out the fact that Phog will have one returning starter.

He has been busily grooming B. H. Born to take over the pivot duties and has Dean Kelley returning for more guard action. However, let us not shed tears for Professor Allen; he always seems to pull something out of the fire.

The Cornhusker outlook is brighter—it almost has to be! Coach Harry Good had a building period and his foundation should be built around a squad of more experienced sophomores and juniors.

We might inject this bit of second-guessing. As far as I'm concerned, Joe Good has been a magnificent example of coolness under heavy pressure. Always faced with shouts of "oh well, he's the coach's son," Joe turned in some fabulous performances last year.

Consistency and coolness is the keyword of Joe, who will be a senior next year. He's a slick ball handler and will take over the floor leadership obligations left by Buchanan.

Fraternity Team Wins Benefit Tilt

By RON GIBBON
Sports Staff Writer

Our hats are off to the Beta Theta Pi fraternity!

The Beta basketball team journeyed to Nebraska City last Friday to play that city's national guard for a polio benefit.

Of primary importance was the fact that the gymnasium was packed to capacity for the cause. Of secondary importance is the outcome of the game which brought the University students a 58-46 victory.

The fraternity quintet pulled to a quick lead in the first few minutes of the initial stanza and were never headed. The Beta's rushed to a 34-18 halftime command as the home team seemed to be having difficulty hitting the hoop.

Tom Harrington, the Beta's flashy center, poured in 23 points to top the scoring performances for the evening. Clark Smaha and Bob Howey were Harrington's main source of support. They scored 13 and 9 points respectively.

Bill Thurman led the Nebraska Citians with 11 points. The game was marked by numerous fouls.
