A father shook his head sadly as his son left the room. For the second successive semester his grade report showed nothing but 1's and 2's.

"I am finally convinced," he told his wife, "that our son must have a sixth sense. There's certainly no sign of the other five."

A great scientist had finished his lecture to a Bronxville ladies' club, and the members were buzzing around him as he descended from the podium.

College Of Pharmacy Calls Council Status 'Unfair'

By DICK RALSTON
Feature Editor

The stand on the Student Council issue of the College of Pharmacy, said Joseph B. Burt, dean, is that if the principle of single representation is valid, why is it not applied to all colleges?

When asked why no student from Pharmacy college had applied for Student Council for the coming election, Dean Burt said, "We have been offered a position which we believe to be inequitable and unfair. A student filling for Student Council under the present status," he said, would be "an admission of the status quo."

Under the present constitution, the College of Pharmacy is represented jointly with the College of Dentistry with one representative on the council. An amendment to change the constitution to specify one representative from each college will go before the student body in the coming election.

There will be no candidate to represent either the College of Pharmacy or Dentistry, however. No one filed from Pharmacy, and, although there was one filing from Dentistry, the election rules state that there must be two filings for a valid election. Therefore, neither college will be represented on the Student Council for the coming year.

If a student filed for Student Council from Pharmacy college it would be an acceptance of the present representation, Dean Burt said. Although he openly discouraged any student from filing, he said that filing was strictly voluntary and there had been no discrimination.

"Our position is that either we accept our position as it is," he said, "or we forego representation for a year and try for a change."

Dean Burt outlined the reasons he gave to the University senate on Oct. 9, 1951, for changing the system of representation:

1. "The proposal (having both colleges represented with only one representative) is discriminatory, since all other undergraduate colleges are provided with one or more representatives.
2. "The proposal of one representative for two colleges is impractical because choice of representatives would depend solely upon which college had larger enrollment.
3. "If the principle of college representation is to be recognized, then in all fairness it should be extended to all undergraduate colleges. Failure to do so is undemocratic and at variance with accepted procedures of representative government.
"The Colleges of Dentistry and Pharmacy are as official as any others," he said. "Size doesn't make any difference. If the Student Council representation is by colleges, then the present system is unfair."

Ridgway Succeeds Ike

PARIS—On the recommendation of the U. S., the North Atlantic Council named Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as supreme allied commander in Europe.

At the same time President Truman announced from Washington the appointment of Gen. Mark Clark as successor to Gen. Ridgway in the Far East. Clark will also assume the leadership of the UN command in Korea.

Occupation Ends In Japan

JAPAN—The rising sun flag once more flies over Japan. This outward symbol is only one of the many changes now making themselves evident as Japan takes her position as a state instead of an occupied territory.

American troops removed the occupation insignia from their shoulder patches and the now sovereign Japanese government issued a "white paper" to explain its policy toward Russia and Red China.

The Associated Press points out that we are gambling on the Japanese being more valuable to the Far East as citizens than as occupation subjects.

Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, rumored to be a candidate for the supreme European post, will remain in his present position, that of chief of staff in Europe.

Meeting under the new NATO secretary-general, British Lord Ismay, the north Atlantic nations gave unanimous approval to Gen. Ridgway's name. It was no secret that most Europeans would prefer Gen. Gruenther as their commander, but by agreement the U. S. picked the officer.

Heavy seas and murky skies combined to take their toll of the Hobson's survivors. Only 61 of the Hobson's 237 crew members were rescued.

E-Week Committee Chairmen Describe 1952 Version 'As Good As Last Year's'

By SARA STEPHENSON
Staff Writer

E-Week was a success and as good as last year's in proportion with the drop in enrollment, agreed co-chairmen Paul Chismar and John D. Krogh at the last E-Week committee meeting Monday.

The event was described by one committee member as being a "big program spread out pretty thin" because of the reduction in people in Engineering.

Suggestions for 1953's event included the idea of working the program around the establishments the tops were suggested by George Cobel, publicity chairman. The publicity through the high schools was handled very well.

Other comments concerned sales portion of the event. More salesmen and each selling tickets to every affair and posters before the sales begin to promoter greater interest in purchasing were the major suggestions.

E-Week ribbon sales totaled 2,451 and it was approximated that the engineers cleared about $20 on the event.
