RIOT' CONVOCATION

Council Plans Action
Students Express Views

By LOUIS SCHOEN
Staff Writer
The Student Council will hold a number of meetings in the summer and next fall, with representatives of the University administration, in an attempt to take action upon participants in the recent raids on women's residences and to prevent such future action on the part of any members of the student body.

COOPERATION . . . Chancellor R. G. Gustavson carried University discipline problems to the students in an all-University convocation Tuesday morning. He got a resolution against future rioting in the University. (Daily Nebraskan Photo.)

That was the promise of George Cobel, past Council president, terminating a discussion which followed a speech by Chancellor R. G. Gustavson at Tuesday's all-University convocation.

The promise was made after varying opinions had been expressed concerning the raids, and after an estimated 3,000 students, or approximately one-half of the student body, had given lackadaisical support to two resolutions placing the students and their representative groups on record as "opposing riots" and responsible to do "everything within our power to stop a riot in the event that one seems likely to occur."

Opinions which were expressed during the discussion varied from that of the student who said "boredom and tension" caused the riots, and that "as long as we have a University these things will happen . . . every so often," to that of the student who said the participants in the raids should be dealt with through civil law.

The discussion reached a dramatic climax when a student from Trinidad told the audience that he came to the University because in his native land "people do things like this." A deathly silence hovered over the audience as he emphasized that in that land, people are called "uncivilized" and "cannibals" because of such actions. He said that he "pays twice as much" as most students to attend the University, and now he must bear "part of this stigma." After appealing to the honor of the students, he received an enormous ovation.

Chancellor Gustavson told the audience that the rioters' actions had "serious implications," and described his own emotions concerning the raids as "disturbed." "This is not the thing we stand for," he said. "University students should be above mob action." He added that he believes that the University student body as a whole represents the "finest group of young people in the nation."

The chancellor emphasized that "less than one per cent" of the student body was involved in the riots.

Regarding the opinion which many people seem to hold, that the students who were involved should be "punished" by being induced into the armed forces, Dr. Gustavson said, "The armed services are made up of the cream of young America . . . service . . . should not be a penalty for misconduct."

The great public concern and disapproval of the raids which has been shown by Nebraska newspaper editors, the chancellor said, are "abundantly clear." He added, however, that no distinction is made between the raiders and the other, much greater percentage of the student body.

The chancellor outlined the action by the raiders, which started as a college prank and continued to grow in size, until the attention of the raiders was turned to the women. He said that a total of $714 damage had been done, and that only 75 male students were directly responsible for the riots. This is contrary to previous reports that over 400 men were involved.

The chancellor added, however, that contrary to previous reports, no physical damage was done to women students.

The action which the chancellor described as the most disappointing was that of witnesses of the riot, who he said made no attempt to stop the participants, and that of the girls involved, who he said showed only "friendly excitement." The participants, he said, showed "no evidence of insobriety."

The 75 students who the chancellor said were directly responsible for the raids will be put on probation, he announced. They will be deprived of their right to participate in extra-curricular activities; they will be liable for expulsion; and they will be forced to pay for part of the damages.

The letter of nomination included Gifford's activities: former senior class president, member of Phi Beta Kappa, N club, three-year golf letterman, individual Big Seven Golf champion in 1950, vice president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and recipient of the C. W. Boucher award for the outstanding senior letterman—scholastically.

Widmaier's nomination was based on his "spirit and leadership" in activities and his "working towards the end of the betterment of campus activities and campus leaders . . . not . . . himself."

Activity-wise, the letter continued, he "has held down some of the most important jobs on this campus." Widmaier is activities committee co-ordinator of the Union, member of Kosmet Klub and Corn cobs, president of Tau Kappa Epsilon, Chesterfield and campus representative and has participated in Red Cross and other activities.

Widmaier's letter was submitted by 15 students.

Miss Willey was nominated for her "creative leadership," her "insight into campus improvements and time devoted to the University." The letter stated that she has "helped create good faculty-student relations through work with joint student Council-faculty committees."

Her activities included being vice president of YWCA, judicial vice president of Student Council, Mortar Board, originator of the leadership conference, member of Pi Lambda Theta, Alpha Lambda Delta, Phi Beta Kappa and University orchestra and Lincoln symphony. For her YW work she was chosen one of two students to go to India next year.

As of Tuesday evening, George Cobel, former Student Council president; Jim Buchanan, basketball star; and Don Noble, business manager of the Cornhusker and president of Innocents society, had been nominated for the semester award in addition to Gifford, Widmaier and Miss Willey.

Nominations, listing the qualifications of nominees, are to be brought or mailed to the Nebraska office, basement, Union. All University students and faculty members, excepting former award recipients and staff members are eligible for nomination.

Former outstanding Nebraskans, since the inauguration of the award in 1949, have been Coach Bill Glassford, All-American Bobby Reynolds, Mortar Board president Sharon Fitz-

The lecture stopped and the instructor waited until the late-comer had taken his seat in the front row. Then greeted him briskly with, "Good morning, sir. We've been waiting for you—for three or four days."

CORN COBS

Smoker Set For Potential Cob Pledges

A smoker for Corn Cobs workers will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Parlors XYZ, Union, to acquaint interested male students with function of the organization.

Two representatives from each organized house and any number of independent students are asked to attend the smoker, according to Don Noble, Cobs president.

Prospective Cobs workers must have a 4.5 weighted average, be carrying University hours in good standing and be a sophomore next year.

According to Noble, workers should also have Saturday mornings free for Cob activities.

Keys will be presented to senior activities at the Wednesday smoker, and a film of the Nebraska-Iowa State football game will be shown.

Henry Deines, Gamma Lambda, band honorary member, in charge of the card section, will explain the part to be played by Cob workers in the distribution of cards during the football season.

Refreshments will also be served, according to Noble.

Houses whose representatives will be unable to attend the smoker are asked to contact Noble.

Raymond Edits Paper
Pieper Named Associate

Ruth Raymond was selected Tuesday evening to succeed Joan Kruger as editor of The Daily Nebraskan.

Following interviews continuing through the afternoon and night, Arnie Stern was named business manager with Pete Bergsten, Stan Sipple and Don Overholt as assistants. Stern succeeds Jack Cohen. Overholt is the only new member of the business staff.

Don Pieper was appointed associate editor, replacing Miss Raymond. In the managing editor positions are Sue Gorton and Ken Rystrom. Miss Gorton was reappointed while Rystrom replaces Pieper.

Five new editors were hired: Sally Hall, Sarah Severson, Pat Ball, Dick Ralston and Hal Hasselbacher. Miss Stevenson, Miss Ball and Ralston are new at this position. They replace Sally Adams, Janet Steffen and Rystrom.

Armed Forces To Show Six Movies In Union This Week

"Serving the Nation" is the first of a six short movies to be shown in the Union lounge during the noon hour Wednesday and Thursday in celebration of Armed Forces week.

The movie illustrates some of the armed forces activities that contribute to civilian industry.

"Front Line Air Force Chaplains" and "Once a Marine" are titles of the other two movies Wednesday. The former shows air force chaplains at work both at home and at overseas bases. The latter tells about some of the action performed by the marine corps.

Each of the movies lasts about 15 minutes.

On Thursday "Service Plus," a picture about army-moral training, "The Navy and Science" and "Women in the Air Force" will be shown. Highlights of navy research programs and women's air force training at Lackland air force base are the subjects of the last two films.

GIFFORD, WIDMAIER, WILLEY

Three More Students Added To Award List

Joe Gifford, Charles Widmaier, and Mariam Willey have received nominations Tuesday for this semester's Outstanding Nebraskan award.

The nominations brought the total of candidates for the honor to six. Nominations will close at 5 p.m. this evening, Wednesday. One student and one faculty member will be chosen by the Nebraska staff for "meritorious service in promoting the welfare of the spirit of the University."

Gifford received the award nomination on the basis of "his active and interested participation in worthwhile University activities, and his work to 'promote good public relations for the University.'"

The letter of nomination included Gifford's activities: former senior class president, member of Phi Beta Kappa, N club, three-year golf letterman, individual Big Seven Golf champion in 1950, vice president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and recipient of the C. About 1,500 Attend Gala Symphony

University Singers and a quartet of University people sang the music to Beethoven's Ninth symphony before a crowd estimated at 1,500 Monday.

The presentation of the music marked the 25th anniversary of the Lincoln Symphony orchestra.

Eighty students were groomed by Dr. Arthur Westbrook, retiring head of the School of Fine Arts, to sing the chorale. In the solo parts were Marjorie Murphy, soprano; Janice Wagner, contralto; Ray Schaumburg, tenor and Jack Anderson, baritone.

Leo Kopp directed the concert.

Instrumental soloists were John Shildneck, trumpet; Miriam Willey, flute; Frank Seraph, oboe; Myron Cohen, violin and Houghton Furr, piano.

Before the feature number the orchestra played the second of Johann Bach's six Brandenburg concertos.

Hershey Sets New SS Exam Date—May 22

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, announced that an additional selective service college qualification examination will be given May 22.

The examinations, to be held on University and Wesleyan campuses, are being held for those who were not able to attend the previous examinations.

To be eligible to take the test, an applicant must:

- 1. Be a selective service registrant who intends to request deferment as a student.
2. Be satisfactorily pursuing a full time college course—graduate or undergraduate—leading to a degree.
3. Not have taken the test previously.

Phi Epsilon Kappa Initiates Eighteen

'ON PARADE'

Band To Sell Albums At Houses, Unions

"On Parade," an album of records by the University ROTC band, will be on sale Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at a booth in the Union. Donald A. Lenz conducts the symphonic band.

Gamma Lambda, honorary band fraternity, has begun an extensive campaign to sell albums to students, faculty members and alumni. In charge of sales are John McElhane and Dave Cohen.

Band albums will be sold at organized houses during the dinner hour Wednesday and Thursday evening, at the alumni banquet May 31, at graduation exercises June 2 and at All-State conference in June.

The albums may also be ordered through the University Bureau of Audio-Visual Aids, University extension division or through Cohen or McElhane.

The Victor-recorded album costs $3 and contains the following numbers:

"Hail Varsity," "Dear Old Nebraska U.," "March of the Cornhuskers," "Chant," "The Cornhusker," "Hail Nebraska," "Thunder and Blazes" and "Purple Carnival."

The band's history is recorded on the inside of the album cover. "In 1879," the write-up says, "when there were fewer than 300 students in the struggling young institution, the first ROTC band was organized to furnish music for military drills. There were 12 members."

"Today 140 young men and women are members of one or more of the organization's three units—the marching band, which performs at football games; the symphonic band, which plays chiefly concert music; and the 35-piece brass choir," the write-up continues.
