

Prominent Coaches To Be Here For Coaching School

Eliot, Hickey To Head NU Faculty

Ray Eliot, University of Illinois football coach, and Eddie Hickey, basketball coach at St. Louis University, will head the faculty of the Nebraska Coaching School to be held at the University August 11 to 14.

Eliot's University of Illinois teams have won two Big Ten titles and twice were victorious in the Rose Bowl. The 1951 Illini rolled over Stanford 40 to 7 at Pasadena.

Eliot uses the T Formation. Since 1947, his teams have been the most colorful in Illinois history. The 1949 squad led the Big Ten in rushing and total offense. His 1950 eleven missed the Rose Bowl by one touchdown and was ranked as one of the nation's top defensive teams.

Eddie Hickey's St. Louis U. basketball teams have been nationally prominent for several seasons.

Louis Hanson of Basile, La., will teach the course in six-man football. A course will also be offered in training room techniques.

The University of Nebraska staff and trainers will also augment the teaching staff.

Odessa High School Wins Schulte Award

Odessa High School, for the second straight year won the Henry F. Schulte Numeral plaque, Track Coach Ed Weir announced.

This home course event was established in 1923 and only twice before has one school been able to repeat. Danbury won the event in 1930 and 1931, Lebanon in 1932 and 1933.

Odessa has an enrollment of seven boys and four of them won numerals. The award is figured on a percentage basis, using the number of numerals won by a school figured against its male enrollment. Full blue awards count two points, half-blue awards 1 point.

Members of the Odessa student body who won numerals were Donald Gale and Raymond Marlatt, full blue; Kenneth Marlatt and Harold Todd, half-blue.

Bill Hawkins of Beatrice, individual pentathlon winner, also scored the highest number of points among numeral winners this past season.

Dottie: I refused to marry Henry two months ago, and he's been drinking ever since."

Lottie: I think that's carrying a celebration too far!

Football Staff Reorganization Is Announced

Robert Faris, Fremont High School coach for the past six years, was named freshman football coach as Coach Bill Glassford announced a realignment of his staff.

Ray Prochaska, a member of the staff since 1946 and a University graduate, will replace Marvin Franklin, who recently resigned as end coach. Prochaska was a member of Nebraska's Rose Bowl squad.

H. H. Hanscom, freshman coach since 1949, will be in charge of the "B" team squad with Peter Janetos as his assistant.

Al Partin, wrestling coach and assistant in football, will help Faris with the freshmen. Don Strasheim and Tom Novak again will serve as graduate assistants.

The varsity staff will be composed of Coach Glassford, Bob Davis, backfield coach, Ralph Fife, line coach, and Prochaska, end coach.

Faris, the new freshman coach, is a native Nebraskan. He was born at Fremont, graduating from high school there in 1935. He was an All-American basketball player at George Washington University in Washington, D. C., where he earned a degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. He won letters in football, basketball, and tennis at George Washington.

'Building For The Nations,' Special Film To Be Shown

By MARILYN MOOMEY (Union Activities Director)

"Building for the Nations," a special film indicating the highlights of the fabrication and erection of the structural steelwork for one of the most important buildings in the world—the Secretariat Building of the United Nations Headquarters in New York City—will be shown next Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the Union ballroom.

The film, produced by United States Steel, is a candid, factual photographic record, in full color, of this process. Scenes showing the fabrication and erection of the framework will delight and thrill "sidewalk superintendents" everywhere. You will be amazed at the skill, daring and sure-footedness of erection

PE Department Says 'Lack Of Interest' Is Cause

A lack of interest in the summer sports program has forced the cancellation of the softball and table tennis tournaments.

The Physical Education Department announced that only two individuals signed for the ping-pong tournament and only one team registered for the softball tournament.

All of the individuals concerned will not be held. Last Friday was the final date for registration.

Entries for the tennis tournament may still be made at the P.E. building. The closing date for filings is July 2.

Mr. Higgenbottom reports that no one has registered for this competition as yet, but he does expect several persons to file the last two or three days before the deadline.

crews moving about on structural members hundreds of feet in the air with the New York skyline and the East River serving as dramatic backgrounds. And you will marvel at the high degree of coordination in planning, designing, engineering, steel-making, fabrication, and erection.

The final scenes show President Truman and representatives from all lands assembled with United Nations delegates in the formal dedication ceremonies. On completion of these ceremonies, the United Nations Secretariat Building took its important place in the famous skyline of New York—truly a "Building for the Nations"—not just a great and beautiful skyscraper, but a structure that symbolizes in steel and masonry the hope for Peace and Happiness for all the Peoples of all the Nations of the world.

The movie is open to the public.

Austrian Calls For Unification Of Europe

A unification of "the whole of Europe" would be the only way to better the living conditions and eliminate the "strife and strain" among the people of that continent.

This was the belief expressed by Dr. Hans Bobek of the University of Vienna, in his speech to the Phi Delta Kappa luncheon Tuesday.

In this country on an invitation from the State Department, Dr. Bobek spoke to members of the educational honorary fraternity on "Central Europe Today as Seen by an Austrian."

The United States, he said, can aid Europe by taking many of her modern conveniences there, but she can not expect to instill the American way of life within the European people, for the Europeans "have ways of their own."

Democracy is "very fine," he said, "if you can make a living, but it is of secondary importance if you are seeking a living and can not make one."

Asked what the dominant feeling is, in Austria, toward America, Dr. Bobek replied, "There are five percent Communists in Austria. I think you know how they feel." The rest, however, he said, have a "sympathetic feeling"—they feel that only with U. S. help can a change be made for the better.

"Don't forget, however," he said, that the Americans "split up" the Austrian empire after World War I. He said the Austrian people have not forgotten this. He called this "splitting up" of the Austrian empire a major reason why peace was not retained afterward.

The two world wars, he said, virtually destroyed the three former powers of Central Europe—Germany, Austria and Hungary. Now, he said, there are 14 or 16 major countries where these three formerly were, and Russia is the only remaining power on the entire continent.

Dr. Bobek described how, after the second world war, the Soviet occupational forces took over more than 300 large plants in Austria, which he said comprised almost the entire Austrian industry. Now, he said, these plants are furnished raw materials by the Austrians, but Russia refuses to sell any of the finished products back to Austria. He emphasized that Austria now must buy and import, at a very high cost, the products which she needs.

Dr. Bobek emphasized that there is great unrest among the European youth. He said the youth prefer to "stand aside." They do not consider the present situation, he said, as "their own."

He described the problem of how to make the youth understand that they are concerned with this situation one of the major ones regarding the present crisis.

And how does the older generation feel about the situation? "It looks," he said, "as if we were thrown back about a hundred years."

Dr. Bobek said he plans to stay in this country five months, to "learn as much as possible about the way Americans think." About the only specific objective he has in mind for the trip, he said, is to attend the International Geographical Congress meeting in Washington in August.

He said he is also interested in comparing social and geographical conditions in America with those in Europe, and in studying the "scientific discipline" used by educators in this country.

Dr. Bobek has been in this country three weeks.

THE LINEUP

By CHARLES KLASEK

During the past year a great amount of controversy has raged across the nation in relation to the professionalism of college athletics and the subsidization of athletes.

Fueled by the payment of college football players in the form of huge scholarships and by the gambling scandals which rocked Madison Square Garden and New York, athletes in general followed a rocky path during the latter stages of this year.

In fact the problem was considered great enough that a council of college presidents was appointed to discuss the various aspects of the controversy and arrive at some set of recommendations to give to the N. C. A. A. The council, of which our own chancellor was a member, did just this and formulated a series of suggestions concerning college athletics in the future and how they might be kept "simon-pure."

And now something has happened—something that we've been waiting for a long time. A conference on "Re-Emphasis of Athletics" was held June 22-24 at the University of Kansas. Prof. Henry Shenk, chairman of the department of physical education, summed up the entire conference in a nutshell. He said, "De-emphasis of athletics from the university levels down through the public schools has been so much in the public eye lately, that it's time for re-emphasis."

The University of Kansas, in initiating this conference, engaged such featured speakers as Paul Brechler, director of physical education and athletics at the State University of Iowa, and Matty Bell, director of athletics and former football coach at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. Brechler discussed "A Philosophy of Athletics" and Bell spoke on the subject, "What Steps Should Be Taken to Insure a Sane, Well-Balanced Program in Keeping with Educational Objectives."

Among the problems considered at the Kansas conference were athletics on the high school level, at what age competition should begin in various sports, whose responsibility is sportsmanship, intramurals programs, support of athletics by gate receipts or by school budgets, tenure for coaches.

Our congratulations to the University of Kansas for their work in beginning a move for the "Re-emphasis of Athletics." We have too long listened to what is wrong with athletics and now we have the opportunity to hear the values of athletics.
