Sooner-Irish Game Tops Week's Slate

BY BART BROWN
Sports Staff Writer

The only game between top-ranked teams this Saturday takes place in South Bend, Indiana, where fourth-ranked Oklahoma meets up and down, 10th ranked Notre Dame.

Oklahoma reigns in its usual niche as the Big Seven powerhouse, with only a tie in its opener with Colorado to mar its record. Two weeks ago the Sooners downed the currently 7th ranked Kansas Jayhawks 42-20.

Notre Dame has a tie with Penn and a loss to Pitt spoiling its record. The Irish proved their ability to upset early in the season as they handed a highly regarded Texas a 14-3 loss, and beat Purdue, 28-14.

Oklahoma has one of the most powerful offenses ever assembled this year. Sooner quarterback Eddie Crowder has a special knack for spotting a weakness and tearing it apart for long gains.

Notre Dame's offense has hinged mainly on the shoulder of sophomore quarterback Ralph Guglielmi's passing, and the running of Johnny Lattner.

The Kansas Aggies oppose a strong Skyline Conference team in the Wyoming-Cowboys. Wyoming lacks its usual power-house this year, but still has been tough.

The Aggies played an outstanding first half against Kansas U. last week, being tied 6-6 at the half, but State folded in the second half to lose 26-0.

Iowa State meets Drake Saturday in the 52nd meeting of the two schools. Neither school has much of a season to boast of, but in this bitter rivalry the record books are discarded.

Drake has the top pass catcher in the nation in Joe McClaren who has snagged 30 passes for 555 yards and 6 TD's this year.

The Golden Buffaloes of Colorado journey to Columbia, Missouri Saturday to meet the team that upset the Huskers last week 10-6. Missouri had one other supreme moment in an otherwise dismal season. In an opener the Tigers nearly defeated Maryland, before succumbing, 13-10, in the final moments.

Colorado has a rugged battle before stopping a salty Utah U eleven 20-4 last week. Colorado has a good record in spite of a loss to Kansas, and ties to Oklahoma and Nebraska.

UCLA marches on in the Pacific Coast Conference as it meets Oregon State this week. The Bruins have seven straight wins and are rated 5th on a national

OU Swim Team Gains 5 Stars

Five South Africans will bolster the Oklahoma swim hopes when the defending Big Seven swimming champs begin preparation for the 1953 season.

Peter Duncan, South African 200 and 400 meter free-style swimming champion; Lin Meiring, 200 meter backstroke champ; Mel Van Helsing, runner-up to Meiring; Julian Dyanson, 200 meter breast stroke champion and Ernst De Jongh, a diver, have accepted scholarships to the university and will be eligible for this year's competition.

The five new additions make a total of six South Africans on the Oklahoma roster. Last year as a sophomore, Graham Johnston shattered records for the 220, 440 and 1500 meter free-style events at the Big Seven meet.

Men's Dorm Wins Cross-Country Championship; Hunley Runs Top Race

By BILL MUNDELL
Intramural Sports Columnist

The Men's Dorm captured the 1952 Intramural Cross Country Run championship Tuesday afternoon as Harold Sampson of the Dorm rounded the final turn and won the second heat of the event, the mile and a half distance. Sampson thus joined Charley Hunley of Phi Delta as the two champions, Hunley winning the first heat, a mile distance, last week.

The Dorm finished on top of the team point scoring with a 54-point total, 13 counters ahead of second-place Pioneer House who finished with 41 points.

Sampson took the lead early in the three-lap run and carried it on to the final wire. He outdistanced Lyle Wolfe of Pioneer who took the runnerup position at the finish.

Sampson's 13 points for first, coupled with the eight points garnered by Johnny Dunney his running made produced 21 counters for the victorious Dorm men and padded their early lead in the team-totals. Don Wilcox and Forrest Deling represented the Dorm in the mile run last week and captured second and sixth places.

Following Sampson and Wolfe in the Tuesday event came Gary Gaines of Brown Palace, Jim McLean of the Ag YMCA and Hugh Osmera of Acacia to round out the first five finishers. Gaines had captured fourth place in the earlier event while McLean had garnered eighth and Osmera seventh in the mile distance.

Charles Hunley, who had finished on top in the first heat, found the extra half mile a little too much for him, but still gave the Phi Deltas valuable points by winding-up in sixth place Tuesday. His points helped the Phi Deltas into a third-place tie in the final team standings with the Ag YMCA with 35 counters. Since this is the first year this event has been staged, the times turned in by Hunley and Sampson will stand as I-M records. Hunley's time for the mile was 5:04.8 while Sampson churned the mile and a half in 8:02.2.

Team standings were figured individually for both races, each organization being allowed to enter two men in each event. Some teams, however, only had a single man in one or both runs and therefore their team total was correspondingly lower.

The final team standings for the 1952 event are:

Grim Huskers Ready For KU

By GLENN NELSON
Sports Editor

A determined Nebraska football team will invade the Kansas University stronghold at Lawrence Saturday. The Huskers, twice-beaten and rated an easy win for the powerful Jayhawks, are looking forward to a rough game. We're not going down there just to show up for their Homecoming crowd," Coach Bill Glassford said, "we're going down to play a game of football."

The Nebraska squad went through a light practice Thursday night. No contact work was in store, as they received their defenses and spent quite a bit of time working on their offensive plays.

Glassford's charges went through rough scrimmages Monday and Tuesday following their 10-0 loss to Missouri last week.

Sophomore halfback Jim Yeisley is the lone casualty this week. Yeisley injured a knee in scrimmage this week, and will be out for the Kansas game. Aside from the loss of Yeisley, the team is in top condition for the game.

Bob Smith, another sophomore halfback, will replace the ailing Yeisley for Saturday's contest. Smith has been starting at offensive right halfback this season.

Charlie Hoag, ace Kansas left halfback, and star linebacker Galen Fiss have been listed as injured by KU Coach J. V. Sikes, and may not see action against the Huskers Saturday.

Hoag injured a knee against Kansas State last week. Fiss was not able to play against the Wildcats, and may still be sidelined for the Nebraska game. Both have been major factors in the impressive Jayhawk victory record.

Other injured Hawks who may not be fully ready for action Saturday are Gil Reich, John Konek and Morris Kay.

Reich, starting defensive halfback and semi-regular offensive half, will probably be able to play. The ex-Cadet was shaken up last week against K-State.

The traveling squad: Ends — Ted Connor, Dennis Emanuel, Andy Loehr, Emil Radik, Bill Schabacker, Jerry Yeager.

Tackles — Don Glantz, Harvey Goth, Ed Husmann, Jerry Minnick, Jim Oliver, George Prochaska.

Centers — Bob Oberlin, Verl Scott, Dick Watson.

Quarterbacks — John Bortogna, Dan Brown, Duane Rankin.

Halfbacks — Jim Cederdahl, Charles Chamley, George Gohe, Dennis Korinek, Dierks Rolston, Bob Reynolds, Bob Smith, Jim Sommers, Bill Thayer.

basis. After State this week they face 6th ranked Southern Cal in a battle that will probably determine the West Coast representative in the Rose Bowl.

However, the Beavers of Oregon State proved plenty tough for Michigan State earlier in the season. The Spartans narrowly eked out a 17-14 win.

Southern Cal faces a test this week when it meets the Bob Mathias-led Stanford Indians. Stanford has had a long season since winning its first four games, losing to Washington and UCLA, but have shown real football prowess.

Injured Defender

HALFBACK ON SHELF . . . Jim Yeisley, starting right halfback on the Cornhusker defensive team, will not be ready for action against the Kansas Jayhawkers at Lawrence Saturday. The sophomore speedster received a knee injury during practice earlier this week. Although he has been used entirely on defense since the first of the season, Yeisley leads NU rushers with a 6.0 average per carry.

Tigers Dig In To Defend Big 7 Lead Against Buffs

If Missouri's re-aligned backfield is ever going to start "knocking down the fences," in baseball parlance, the Tigers had best be at it, beginning this Saturday.

Through last weekend, Colorado—the upcoming foe—had averaged three touchdowns a game; Oklahoma was clipping along at a 43-point-per-game rate; and Kansas owned a 35-point mean. From top to bottom, those are the worthies, Missouri must encounter on successive Saturdays.

All of this means that the Tigers' penchant for stout defense won't mean too much against these highly-tuned offensive clubs—if Mizou's attack doesn't begin to come. Coach Don Faurot's entry has outscored the opposition over the season by a narrow 13.3 to 12.3 margin.

After a two-week trial run at their new hangouts, the Mizou quartet of Tony Scardino, quarterback; Jim Hook and Bill Rowekamp, halfbacks; and Nick Carras, fullback could start to roll.

half position, Hook has fitted in quickly and smoothly. The blond senior, who was coaxed into reporting out for varsity ball a year ago last spring by Backfield Coach Clay Cooper, "takes a handoff like he's been doing it for years" in Cooper's opinion.

Rowekamp, originally at fullback, is better cast at right half. The ex-West Point speedster was just a strider, or a block, away from galloping for long gains against both Iowa State and Nebraska.

Scardino is a more deceptive ball-handler at quarter, than was Hook—and a good passer out of the T, as well as the spread. He ran the keep for 45 yards against Iowa State. Hook still calls signals.

Solid blocking and a pounding up-the-middle threat are two basic requirements that Nick Carras fulfills from his fullback post. The veteran senior was moved over from left half. On the league's ball-carrying tables, Hook is sixth, Rowekamp eighth, and Carras tied for 14th.

Purdue Invades Gopher Stadium As Favorite

The headline football contest of the week in the Big 10 Conference finds top-rung Purdue with an imposing 3-0 record in league play invading Memorial Stadium in Minneapolis, bent on eliminating one of its foremost challengers of the moment for loop supremacy—a surprising Minnesota eleven that owns a 3-1 mark in Conference competition.

The Boiler-makers sit alone at the top of the well-scrambled Big 10 heap by virtue of victories over Ohio State (21-14), Iowa (41-14) and Illinois (40-12). The Gophers are tied with Michigan for second place and have a 3-1 status as the result of wins over Northwestern (27-26), Illinois (13-7), and Iowa (17-7) and a loss to Michigan (21-0).

A Dad's Day crowd of 50,000 is expected to witness this 20th meeting between Minnesota and Purdue since the series began in 1894. Through the intervening years the Gophers have built up a 11-6 margin in wins, with two encounters ending in tie scores. Minnesota fans are praying that their favorites, substantial underdogs in the upcoming clash, will reverse the 1949 situation when the Engineers from Lafayette flabbergasted the football world by taking a 13-7 decision over the powerful Maroon and Gold eleven that was favored to represent the Big 10 in the Rose Bowl that year. The loss knocked them out of the picture.

This time it is the Purdue combination that has an edge over the rest of the Conference teams in the chase for both the league championship and the Holiday trip to Pasadena. On the basis of comparative scores Minnesota doesn't stand a chance in Saturday's meeting for it has barely squeaked by Illinois and Iowa, both of whom were overwhelmingly crushed by the potent Purdue offensive machine. However, this is a season in which comparative scores have meant virtually nothing in the rash of reversals that has swept the Big 10 in particular.

Fullback Battle Continues

A POWERFUL PAIR . . . George Cifra (left) and Ray Novak have given head football coach Bill Glassford a problem all season long in deciding who to list as starting offensive fullback for the Huskers. Cifra, a sophomore from Turtle Creek, Pa., will get the nod against Kansas, although the two men will be alternating at the spot. He is third in rushing for the team with a 4.8 average per carry, has thrown two of four passes complete, and has caught six passes for a total of 58 yards. A junior from Omaha, Novak ranks third in the scoring department for the Huskers, with a total of 24 points, as compared to his fourth-ranked rival who has 18 points to his credit. Novak's yards-per-carry average is a hefty 4.4, to place him fourth among team runners. He leads all Nebraska punters with a 39.8 yards average. Both men are lettermen from last year's team.
