Question: 'Where Is Husker Aerial Attack'

Chuck Klasek

Glaring Weakness . . .

The big question this week, or might we say for the last two weeks, has been, "Just what has happened to the Cornhusker passing attack?" In the last two games, Nebraska has attempted exactly 16 aerials (eight in each game) and has completed only one—a seven yard pitch to Andy Loehr. Against Minnesota the Scarlet completed nary a pass, unless you consider the three gathered in by Gopher defenders.

Per usual only one or two men are headed down field to act as eligible receivers, while anyone familiar with gridiron rules knows that a team is permitted to have five receivers down field. And per usual Husker passers were given little if any protection. Contrast this to the pin-point, bullet-like passing of Paul Giel (an All-American in anyone's book) who had all the protection in the world.

It was the same old story. Nebraska was content to grind away at a ground game that was successful in outdunning Minnesota 16-13 and outgaining the Gophers 313 yards to 157 yards. Still they were short six points in the final score.

One point of information—any team that has successfully scored against Oklahoma this year has done it through the air. Where does that leave Nebraska?

Look Magazine Predicts . . .

With only one football game remaining here at the Cornhusker school, the natural tendency is to look toward Nebraska's basketball opener with South Dakota on Dec. 6. Naturally national predictions are of prime interest.

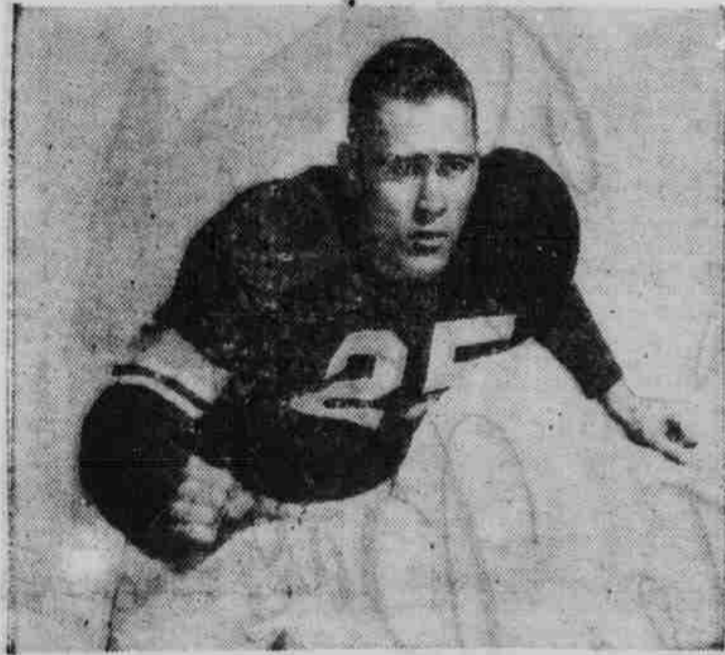

Tim Cohane and I. R. McVay released their forecast for the 1952-53 basketball season in this week's issue of Look magazine. As a result of their predictions, the Big Seven conference has a right to feel somewhat proud. Three Big Seven members are ranked among the top twenty-five teams in the nation.

Kansas State is tabbed to finish sixth in national rankings, Missouri is placed in sixteenth, and the graduation riddled Kansas Jayhawks are in the seventeenth position. Illinois is figured to be the top team in the nation.

But as far as Nebraska is concerned, the joy is short-lived. Messrs. Cohane and McVay have relegated the Cornhuskers to the cellar of the Big Seven loop. They have placed Kansas State in the top spot, Missouri in the runner-up, and Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Iowa State, and Nebraska following in that order.

The following were tabbed as star players. Seger, Good, Johnson of Nebraska; Knosman, Rousey, Priscoek, Carby, Smith of Kansas State; Reiter, Wilfong, Landolt of Missouri; Hoag, Kelley, Reich, Heitholt of Kansas; Gompert, Bunte, Harold of Colorado; Waller, McEchtern, Churchill of Oklahoma; and Diercks, Long, Byerly of Iowa State.

Crack Safety

LEADS SOONER SECONDARY . . . Larry Grigg, Oklahoma's speedy safety, will be a big cog in the Sooners secondary Saturday against Nebraska. The Huskers travel to Norman for their final game of the season in a game which will determine the final Big Seven standings.

Round Robin Tourney To Decide All-University Ping Pong Champ

Seven men still remain in the final round of the all-University ping pong tournament which will be completed this week in the recreation rooms of the Union.

Reaching the finals again this year were Ed Sarkissian, 1951 all-University champ, and El Meris Bergmanis, last year's city champion.

Sarkissian, a native of Iran, and Bergmanis, a Latvian, met in a playoff last year to determine this area's representative to the national contest at Chicago. Sarkissian edged Bergmanis in a best of five playoff and went on to place third in the national competition.

Every man in this year's all-University tourney will play a round robin of six games to determine the champ. This will not be a "sudden death" tournament.

The games will be played on Thursday and Friday evening beginning at 6:30 on Thursday and continuing until ten and beginning at 6:30 on Friday and continuing until the tournament is completed. All ties will be played off on Friday evening.

A medal will be presented to the winner of the tournament and a trophy will be awarded to the winning team. Stan Sipple, Union Recreation Committee chairman, is in charge of the tournament.

Giel Hits Paydirt

GOPHERS TAKE LEAD . . . Paul Giel, Minnesota's junior left halfback who is making a strong bid for All-America honors this season, drives over for Minnesota's game-winning touchdown against the Huskers. The triple-threat back led the Gophers in passing, running and kicking. His TD run covered only two yards, although his running and passing sparked several MU drives.

Few Upsets Staged In Nation's Top Grid Games Last Saturday

By BART BROWN
Sports Staff Writer

In one of the few upsets of the waning 1952 season Mississippi surprised third-ranked Maryland 21-14. This win put Ole Miss in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans to oppose unbeaten Georgia Tech.

Mississippi is unbeaten this year, but has ties with Vanderbilt and Kentucky. It was Maryland's first loss in 21 straight games. Ole Miss's defense was superb, holding all-American candidate Jack Scarbath to only two pass completions.

With a 14-14 tie going into the fourth quarter, Miss fought down into scoring territory four times before it managed the scoring punch on a 42 yard pass by Jim Lee to the four yard line, and two line plunges.

Michigan State justified its national rating lead by winning its 23rd game in a row with a convincing 21-3 win over Notre Dame.

After a scoreless first half, Notre Dame zoomed into the lead 3-0 on a field goal by Bob Arrix. The Spartans quickly assumed the lead then as they parlayed a fumble and a penalty into a touchdown.

Five minutes later the Spartans scored again, and Michigan State finished the scoring when Eevan Sloniac raced 24 yards through a dispirited Notre Dame defense.

The Irish committed 7 fumbles, four of them in the third period, all of which they lost. State also fumbled 5 times, but recovered 4 of them.

Oklahoma spiked Missouri's Big Seven hopes with a resounding 47-7 win. The Sooners drove to two easy first quarter scores, and were never in danger.

Oklahoma can win its fifth straight title by beating Nebraska this Saturday.

Interceptions proved costly to Missouri as they lost the ball seven times on them, and three were turned into touchdowns.

Merrill Green made three touchdowns to run off with scoring honors. High-scoring Buddy Leake and Billy Vessels failed to score touchdowns.

Missouri was able to roll only once, as Jim Hook took command of the Tigers in the second quarter and began a passing attack that gained 61 yards for a touchdown.

A strong defensive heart was all that saved Kansas from disaster as the Hawks narrowly edged Oklahoma A&M 12-7. The stout Kansas line stopped the Aggies on the six and nine yard lines in the first half, and responded to a game-saving stop on the one yard line after Kansas went ahead 12-7.

Kansas scored first as Gil Reich ran the end from 10 yards out. The Cowboys quickly fought back with Don Barbers pitching to John Davis for a touchdown climaxing a 71 yard drive. Davis's conversion put A&M ahead 7-6. Here they remained until late in the game when Kansas assembled what had been a shaky offense and marched 63 yards with Bob Brandeberry scoring from the one.

Kansas State jumped off to a startling 14-0 lead before Colorado recovered to win 34-14. The Aggies first score came as a result of a 73 yard drive after the kickoff. State's second score came when Veryl Switzer elected 4 of them.

Sooners Last Nebraska Foe

Nebraska winds up its 1952 season Saturday as they invade Norman for a tilt with the Oklahoma Sooners.

Mundell, Stern Lead Week's Game Pickers

The Pick Your Winners contest moves into its tenth week Saturday and it still remains a wide open race for first place. The way upsets have been rolling in this season nobody can be counted out of the race.

Bill Mundell and Arnie Stern continued to pace the pickers with nine winners, but the big news is the tie for first again between Bob Serr and sports editor Glenn Nelson.

Nelson pulled into a tie with Serr by tabbing the Michigan win over Purdue. Mundell, Stern, and Chuck Klasek also gained percentage points by picking the Wolverine victory.

Bart Brown still remains in third place, one and one-half games ahead of Tom Becker.

Stern and Mundell picked two of the three upsets of the week to pull up in a fifth place tie. They both picked the Ohio State win besides the Michigan upset. The Army one point win over Penn ruined their chances of a perfect week.

Howard Vann picked the O-State win also, but slipped on the Michigan and Army wins thus dropping him to seventh.

Ed Berg slid from a tie from fifth to eighth although he won out on the Army upset.

Still occupying the cellar are Klasek and Marshall Kushner who both hit 7 out of 10. Kushner also stuck with the service team and won on the Army win.

NCAA Picks Post-Season Bowl Games

Eight post-season bowl games will be witnessed by grid fans this year.

The NCAA committee on extra events approved eight bowl games as meeting their specific requirements.

The eight approved bowl games are the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Cal.; the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla.; the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.; the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.; the Salad Bowl at Phoenix, Ariz.; the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex.; the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.; the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, La.

out a loss although they have been tied by Kansas and Colorado.

Billy Vessels, Buck McPhail and Eddie Crowder power the Oklahoma offense and will be toughest assignment of the year for the vaunted Husker defensive line.

To date, 16 points or the equivalent of two touchdowns, are most markers any team has pushed across the Cornhusker goal.

Vessels and Buddy Leake first and second in the scoring column with 78 and 68 points respectively.

John Bordogna, Husker quarterback is tied for fourth with 48 points while Boy Reynolds is tied for seventh with 42.
