Missouri Hopes For Upset Win Over KU At Columbia Saturday

Senior backfields will be buckling on the harness for their last collegiate whirl at Columbia, Mo., Saturday when Missouri and Kansas play the big one that annually saps the old grads' adrenalin glands.

The Tigers and Jayhawks will hammer away at each other in a taut match which shouldn't lack for off-sive or defensive fireworks. Defense, surprisingly, has been a trademark of both clubs this season.

Kansas could open with an all-glenor backfield, if halfback Charlie Hoag—out two weeks with a wobbly knee—is ready by post-time. The probable Jayhawk assault crew then would have Gil Reich at quarterback; Bob Brandberry, right half; and Galen Fiss, newly-returned after a shoulder dislocation, fullback. Still another combination might have Jerry Robertson, senior sharpshooter, figuring as a starter.

With Bill Rowekamp due to reappear at right half after missing the Oklahoma game with a lame ankle, the Tigers will send three-fourths of their starting backfield to the front for the last time.

Top ground-gainer Jim Hook at left half, and fullback Nick Carras—rounding out his fourth campaign—also get in their closing legs. Two more years yet lie ahead of Tony Scardino, sophomore quarterback, who's already chalked up two seasons in football's big time.

Hoag's questionable fitness is giving K.U. adherents the most grief—and his injury dampens the prospect of a repeat Hoag-Hook duel. Last year, the Oak Park, Ill., flush wounded Mizou severely, scoring twice and hitting Bob Brandberry in the end-zone with a perfect pass for another touchdown. Hoag threaded Tiger defenses for 79 yards in 16 carries that day, as Kansas stopped Missouri, 41-28.

Hook, the durable shifty from Lee's Summit, has been—like Hoag—his club's toughest threat in clutch games. Third-high among the loop's ball-carriers, snub-nosed Jim—his broken nose encased in a plastic mask—has darted for 661 yards in 127 rushes. He trails only Bill Vessels and Buck McPhail of Oklahoma in this department.

A lusty competitor, Hook has come far this season. When Mizou and Kansas squared off a year ago, he was so lightly regarded as a spread formation tailback that Buddy Cox, pint-sized freshman, was named to start the Kansas game as stand-in for the injured Tony Scardino. Hook then came on when Cox was disabled in the first quarter, and figured in all four of Missouri's touch-

Sport Tickets Soon Available

Student and faculty All Sports tickets which admit to all remaining athletic events on the winter and spring schedule at the University of Nebraska will go on sale Monday, November 24, in the lobby of the Coliseum.

Student tickets will be $3, faculty tickets $4.

Reserved seats for basketball will be offered at $1.50 per game, or a season book for $15, which admits to the ten home basketball games.

Basketball season opens December 6 against South Dakota, Suringfield (Mass.) College, California and Harvard are on the home slate in addition to the Big Seven Conference games.

downs. He scored twice and passed for two more, racking up 319 yards in total offense.

Even though Missouri may shun a forward passing game after last Saturday's abysmal success—the Sooners intercepted seven M. U. heaves—the Scardino-Robertson aerial bout may pack the top appeal. Robertson has much the better completion rate, but it's close in total aerial yardage, 720 to 714, Robertson out front.

Scardino has hit only 47 of 120 passes, Robertson 45 of 98. There's little subterfuge about who does K. U.'s pass-catching.

Hoag and end Paul Leoni are 1-2 in conference receptions this week. Hoag's 380 yards on 16 nabs is still unchallenged after two weeks of inactivity. Leoni, loose on the shorter patterns, has snagged 22 passes for 258 yards.

Chief Tiger targets have been and Jim Jennings and Rowe-kamp—Nos. 7 and 8 on the league books. Jennings has 11 catches for 180 yards, Rowe-kamp 10 for 175.

Of the eighteen Mizou seniors, who come to the end of the line here Saturday, seven have been regulars on the offensive platoon all year, and two others were mainstays on defense.

It's the finale for these offensive starters: End Maurice Udell; tackle Don Borschulte; guards Bob Castle (co-capt.) and Jack Lord; halfbacks Jim Hook and Bill Rowekamp; and fullback Nick Carras.

Sooners Stay In Conference

Oklahoma's board of regents voted Thursday to leave the Sooner team in the Big Seven conference, eliminating the Oklahoma team's chances to play a post-season bowl game.

The football squad, which voted in favor of dropping from the league to accept an alleged Orange Bowl offer, turned the matter over to the board.

Ready For Finale

THREATENS OKLAHOMA . . . Bob Reynolds, Nebraska's left halfback who starred as an All-American in 1950, will definitely be feared by the Sooners Saturday when the Huskers play at Norman. Reynolds always seems to have his great game against Oklahoma. During both his sophomore and junior years against the Sooners, he has been a leading ground-gainer and scorer for the NU team. He will be game captain Saturday for his last game in a Nebraska uniform.

Iowa State, Kansas State Play For League Cellar

The two hard luck teams of the Big Seven conference, Iowa State and Kansas State, close out their football seasons in the Wildcats' Memorial Stadium at Manhattan Saturday. Although the battle will only decide which team escapes the cellar, the determination to win is of championship proportions.

For the Wildcats of Kansas State there is a chance to climb out of the conference basement for the first time since 1942 when K-State was fourth ahead of Iowa State and Kansas. And, Saturday also provides a chance for Coach Bill Meek and the Wildcats to score the first K-State win over the Cyclones since the 1942 Cats won 7-6.

Iowa State will attempt to protect the record of their coach, Emmett (Abe) Stuber, who has never dropped a game to Kansas State since he took over head coaching chores at Iowa State in 1947. The Cyclones also will be trying to avoid the cellar, a spot they have not occupied since they shared it with Kansas in 1942 and

Wildcat Sophomores Bolster Cage Squad

Sophomores hold the key to Kansas State basketball success this fall.

There are 18 men on the Wildcat varsity squad which will open its season against Drake in the Kansas State fieldhouse December 6. Of that total 13 are sophomores and five are lettermen.

Back to spearhead the Cats' drive toward Big Seven and national cage honors will be all-American Dick Knostman, the Wamego wonder boy who last year drove home 390 points and grabbed 311 rebounds in 24 games.

Also on deck to aid Knostman, a six-foot, six-inch lad, will be veterans Jesse Priscock, 6-5, and Jack Carby, 6-7, at forwards; clever Bob Rousey, 5-11, and Gene Stauffer, 6-0, at guards. That's an all-star cast.

Up from the freshman ranks will be 13 of the tallest men in K-State cage history. In fact, this winter's Wildcat team will be the tallest ever coached by Jack Gardner, K-State mentor. Seven of the sophomores are

Gophers Need Upset Win Over Badgers For Rose Bowl Chance

An upset victory over the title and Rose Bowl event University of Wisconsin eleven Saturday at Madison before a sellout audience of 51,200 could give the University of Minnesota football team its best Big 10 Conference season since 1941 when the Gophers came up with their last undefeated national championship aggregation.

A 4-1-1 mark would result from a Minnesota win over the powerful and highly-favored Badgers. The best league mark established by any Maroon and Gold grid squad since 1941 is the 4-2 record of the 1949 edition.

Rarely in the 62-year-old history of this neighborly rivalry has there been so much at stake. The Badgers won their last Big 10 title in 1912—just 40 years ago. They have come close in recent years but always "blew" a key game or two. The surprising Gophers likewise will be super-charged with incentive for it is mathematically possible for them to bring home the first Conference bunting since 1941.

A decision over Wisconsin while Michigan and Purdue were losing to Ohio State and Indiana, respectively, would give the Gophers the undisputed title. If Purdue and Minnesota both win while Michigan is losing, a title tie could result. It could even be a 3-way affair if Michigan and Ohio State were to tie while Minnesota and the Boiler-makers were winning.

While the "experts" are virtually unanimous in saying that a Gopher win is improbable, some 7,000 Minnesota fans think enough of the chances to make the trek to Madison. This is a post-war high in migrations in Big 10 territory.

Through much of the time since Wes Fesler took over as Minnesota's headman in football it has been oft-repeated that "it all depends on how the defense performs," as the Gophers have gone along from foe to foe.

In recent games the defensive unit has performed commendably. Against Wisconsin this Saturday it will be the offense that will be called on to step up its tempo as its contribution toward a winning effort.

So far this season in losses to Washington, California, and Michigan; victories over Northwestern, Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska; and a tie with Purdue the offense has produced an average of 22 touchdowns per game. It got 4 against Northwestern, none against Michigan, and two each in the other 6 games.

It is the general consensus that it is asking too much of the fast-improving Maroon and Gold defenders to expect them to hold the versatile, powerful, and explosive Badger attack to one or two touchdowns. Thus it appears by consensus of those "in the know" that All America Candidate Paul Giel and his backfield cohorts will have to make their best offensive effort to prevail in this climactic encounter.

The answer to this may be in the making this week as Fesler and his aides search for a right halfback capable of delivering against the rugged Wisconsin defense.

So far this season Wingbacks Kerm Kieftnas (now ineligible), Buzz Melghen, Mike Sullivan, and Ralph Goode have delivered only 91 yards in 8 games, an average of 11 yards per game. This has put tremendous pressure on the left halfback spot manned virtually full time by Paul Giel and on Fullbacks John Baumgartner, Mel Holme, and Ron Wallin.
