

RIGHT ANGLES

Home Ec. 25 Offers Both A Hobby, Hours

By DICK COFFEY Feature Editor
The art of making cloth by interlacing two sets of yarns, one at right angles to the other, is a department unknown to many in the University.

This course known as weaving (Home Economics 25) is a popular course on Ag campus.

Weaving is included in the handcraft course taught by Miss Ruth Steele, associate professor of home economics. The course is excellent for teaching majors, occupational therapists and home makers, Miss Steele said. The course aims to give practical information and simple methods. The five basic steps for the beginner are:

- 1. Familiarization to the loom.
2. Dressing of the loom.
3. Experimenting with patterns.
4. Selection of satisfactory designs.

5. Working out design in cloth. The department has eight various kinds of looms and it is necessary for the student to familiarize herself with each type. The treadle loom operated by the foot, the table loom operated by hand levers are two types of looms the department has.

A less expensive loom is the two harness loom. This loom is limited to certain kinds of patterns, Miss Steele said, but the limitation is to advantage. Two other types are the four harness and ad-a-harness loom. Twelve harnesses may be put on the ad-a-harness loom.

After learning the mechanics of the loom, it is necessary to dress it. This is done by a shuttle, which is a means of putting thread on the looms.

The pattern of weave is determined by combinations of harnesses and innumerable combinations are possible. The student makes sample patterns to decide on the design for his project. By these experiments the student is able to originate a variety of patterns.

The tabby, or plain, is a more simple type of weave. This is a over and under of the warp and weft, Miss Steele said.

Various kinds of fabrics used in weaving are the products of animal fibers—wool and silk, the products from vegetable fibers—cotton, hemp, straw, reed, and artificial silk, and the products from mineral fibers—gold, silver, copper, and aluminum. The students experiment with all fabrics in their sample.

The students find it a very fascinating type of craft, Miss Steele said, and the satisfaction a student receives is all her own. They can create original things and strive for excellent craftsmanship.

The instruction they receive leads to profit as well as a hobby. Weaving is a two credit course and there is a possibility for an advanced course in Home Economics 125.

NU Foundation Reaches One Million Dollar Mark

The University of Nebraska Foundation has doubled its assets in the past five years and is now a million-dollar institution.

This report from Director-Secretary Perry W. Branch to trustees highlighted the annual meeting held Thursday noon at the Union. Almost half of the Foundation's trustees who live in all parts of the U.S. attended the meeting.

During 1952, Mr. Branch reported, the Foundation received $292,565.85 and boosted its assets to $1,068,810.65. The Foundation contributed $173,504 to strengthen the University's effort in higher education as follows: $44,486.20 for aids to 400 undergraduate and graduate students; $64,164.80 for research activities; $60,960 for $2 head of Holstein cattle given the Ag College's dairy department and $3,883 for miscellaneous programs.

Joint Program Slated Sunday For 2 Houses

A joint meeting of the Baptist and Cotner student houses is to be held Sunday at the First Christian Church at 16th and K streets.

A supper is scheduled for 5 p.m. with a program to follow at 6 p.m.

The program will feature Dr. T. K. Chang as guest speaker. Dr. Chang will address the meeting on the topic "China—Yesterday and Today."

A swimming party is also scheduled for the two student houses. The party is to be held Saturday, Feb. 14.

Replacements Selected For '53 Fair Board

Mary Jean Niehaus and Dora Hutfle were named Monday to fill the vacancies on the Farmers Fair Board.

Miss Niehaus is a junior in the Ag College and she replaces Barbara Spilker on the Farmer's Fair Board as one of the junior members.

The senior vacancy was filled by Miss Hutfle. She replaces Marilyn Bamesberger for the remainder of the semester.

The board is in charge of the planning of the Ag College Farmers Fair. This year's fair will be held April 24 and 25.

CC Filings Close On Friday, 5 P.M.

Filings for Coed Counselor board positions close at 5 p.m. Friday.

Applicants for the board must have a weighted 5.5 average. They will be interviewed by senior Coed Counselor board members Saturday.

Sixteen upperclassmen will be elected including eight sophomores. Of the sophomores, four unaffiliated and four affiliated women will appear on the ballot.

Twelve freshmen will be placed on the ballot. Four of these must be unaffiliated and four affiliated.

NU Coeds To Register For YWCA Commissions

Coeds may register for their preference of YWCA commissions at the YW Bazaar Friday from 3 to 5:30 p.m. at Ellen Smith Hall.

The new commissions are arranged for varied interests and at different times so that they may be more easily worked into students' schedules. Leaders of the groups will be present to explain the activities and functions of the commissions.

Each coed may sign up for as many commissions as she wishes. Those who cannot attend the rendezvous may have someone else register for them or they may register next week in the YWCA office.

Three new commissions have been added. They are jobs and future, led by Jean Steffen; Skiep-tics' Corner, led by Shirley Hamilton and the Life and Teachings of Jesus, led by Gail Wellensiek. Other commissions and their leaders are: noon discussion, Jo Knapp; leadership training, Hester Morrison; camp counseling, Helene Sherman, and news and views, Mary Sue Lundt. The remaining groups are: community tours, Lois Anderson; comparative religions, Shirley Langhor; student faculty, Lee Spencer; and community service, Mary Janet Reed. Instructions and information for summer projects will be available at the rendezvous. Janet Quinn, chairman of YWCA projects, and Nancy Hegstrom, membership chairman, are in charge of the rendezvous. Refreshments will be served.

Amendment

of voting by the voter to determine his eligibility. e. A voter will be able to cast but one ballot. f. A ballot is not to be included on the ticket of admission.

The action was taken as a result of a proposal submitted to the Council Nov. 19 by organized women's houses. The proposal pointed out that under the present system houses could "buy" a title with the result that the significance of the title would be less.

It recommended that the requirement for voting be a student identification card and that the ticket prerequisite be abolished. Miss Mary Mielenz, association professor of secondary education, feels that the amendment is an improvement, and if it is acceptable to the students, it is what they should have.

She pointed out that having the polling place at the entrance to a production might cause much confusion, because of the setting up of tables and the presence of many Council members to supervise the voting.

Miss Mielenz would like to see the ticket purchasing taken out altogether and have more honor attached to elections.

Harriet Wenke, junior, in Arts and Science, feels that the amendment is a "good compromise to the whole problem" and hopes that it is carried out as planned. Since the Council has studied the facts and history relating to the case, Miss Wenke believes that the new system should work.

"It is the fairest measure that could be taken toward all groups," said Rocky Yapp, junior in Ag.

Sylvia Krasne, senior in Arts and Science, called the amendment "a definite improvement over the old 'buy and ballot' system."

Barbara Adams, junior, in Teachers, expressed agreement with the law which requires each student to present his identification card before voting. "Since these are student elections for campus honors, only students should be allowed to vote," Miss Adams said.

The amendment is a "step in the right direction," according to Doris Carlson, senior, in Arts and Science. "It will help, but I'm not saying that it will correct it altogether."

Tom Beal, senior, in Law, called the amendment "ambiguous" and "at best, a poor compromise to the women's petition."

He claimed that "the threat incorporated in the women's petition for boycott action is yet to be carried out. I doubt if it will, because women aspiring to positions of regal splendor are rather hesitant to condone any action denying them such distinction."

SESSIONS AT UNION

Second Annual Air Age Clinic Ever Held In U.S. Scheduled For Friday

The second Air Age Education Clinic held in the United States will take place in the Union Friday and Saturday. All students are invited to attend this annual event.

The clinic sessions are designed to inform teachers, school administrators, and students of the latest educational aspects of aviation with regard to military, civil, and community airport operations. Of special interest to students will be the two demonstrations scheduled for 2 and 3 p.m. Friday. These demonstrations on weather and radio communications are designed to bring observers up-to-date on the latest aviation facts and figures.

Brig. Gen. James Walsh, Director of Intelligence of the Strategic Air Command, will open the session Friday with a discussion of the U. S. Air Force and its training program.

Speakers Ed Stapowich, meteorologist in charge of the Omaha airport weather bureau; Robert Titland, chief of the Grand Island airport communications station; and R. O. Mertes, director of the United Air Lines school and college service in Chicago, will discuss civil aviation with respect to weather, radio communications, and training at the Friday afternoon program.

The Friday evening meeting will be addressed by Dr. Frank E. Sorenson, former summer administrator of the University air-age division, who is now director of the Education and Technical Training Staff of the Technical Operation Administration. He will discuss the role of aviation in the progress of the Point Four program.

Discussions will follow each of the lectures. Participating panel members will be educators, air discuss civil aviation with respect to the Saturday morning meeting will be devoted to evaluation and planning.

Since each session will start on the hour, students may attend for class periods. The luncheon session will be held in parlors XYZ and the dinner session in parlors ABC. Luncheon will be $1.25 and dinner, $1.65. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Students not wishing to attend the meals may come to hear the line officials, and air force official luncheon address at 1:00 p.m. and the dinner address at 7:30 p.m.

Twenty Coeds To Model At Friendship Dinner

Twenty coeds will model fashions at a style show whose theme is "Beau Catchers" during the Coed Counselor Friendship Dinner to be held in the Union Ballroom Feb. 18, at 6 p.m.

The girls are: Audrey Howell, Alpha Chi; Paddy Wright, Alpha Omicron Pi; Sandra Ledingham, Alpha Phi; Betty Searcy, Alpha Xi; Shirley Decker, Chi Omega; Margaret Raben, Tri Delta; Mary Domingo, Delta Gamma; Alice Hanson, Gamma Phi Beta; Joan Claussen, Kappa Alpha Theta; Marge Antes, Kappa Delta; Daphne Young, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Natalie Nelson, Phi Pi; Elaine Novicoff, Sigma Delta Tau; Carolyn Lee, Sigma Kappa; Joan Reeling, Adelphi; Janet Lynch, Amikita; Connie Decker, International House; Eleanor Chapman, Loomis Hall; Janice Baker, Love Hall; Coral Thompson, Residence Hall for Women and Jeanette Hilyard, Wilson Hall.

Each coed will model the appropriate styles for special occasions such as teas, formals and cocktail dates.

At least 15 outstanding Coed Counselors will be presented at the annual banquet by Elizabeth Gass, president of the Coed Counselor board. The counselors will be chosen by the board members on the basis of their work during the year with their little sisters.

All big and little sisters, Coed Counselors, sponsors and housemothers are invited to attend. Tickets are $1.10. They may be purchased from big sisters and Coed Counselor board members.

The banquet committee consists of Sue Reinhardt, chairman; Joan Johnson, style show; Muriel Pickett, decorations; Darlene Goodding, tickets; Marlene McCullough, invitations; Jane Brody, menu; and Sue Gorton, publicity. Ann Launer and Jan Harrison are to be co-narrators. Sherry Clover will be accompanist.

Seven Initiated Into ProvoCorp

ProvoCorp, campus military police organization for advanced students, initiated seven new members at their meeting Wednesday.

New members are Thomas E. Day, Kent D. Phillips, Phillip O. Bridenbaugh, Gerald L. Adcock, Robert D. Ficke, Emerson Scott and Richard R. Whitman.

Guest speaker for the evening was Captain O. H. Witt, Deputy Commander of the Nebraska State Safety Patrol. He discussed the organization of the safety patrol and its history and pointed out the similarity of it and the military police.

Dr. P. R. White To Visit NU Conference

A pioneer in the field of plant tissue cultures, Dr. Philip R. White of the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory at Bar Harbor, Me., will visit the University of Nebraska campus next week for conferences and lectures.

Dr. White is being brought to the campus as a visiting lecturer by the University's Research Council and Cooper Foundation. His visit is under the sponsorship of the University's Institute of Cellular Growth.

Dr. White will discuss "Plant Tissue Cultures" Monday at 7:30 p.m. and "Synthetic Nutrients for Animal Tissue Culture" Tuesday at 2 p.m., both in Bessey Hall Auditorium on the city campus, and "Plant Tumors and the General Problem of Tumor Etiology" Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Agronomy Auditorium on the Agricultural College campus.

Formerly head of the division of general physiology of the Institute for Cancer Research in Philadelphia, Dr. White was the recipient of the American Academy for the Advancement of Science award in 1937 and also the Stephen Hales award.

AWS Filings Slated To Close Monday

Associated Women Student board filings will end Monday at 5 p.m. in Ellen Smith.

Election of officers and board members will be March 11. Each candidate must be a bona fide member of the class she represents. They must also have a 5.7 weighted average and no down slips, failures or incompletes at the time of the selection.

Ten candidates will be chosen from those filing to appear on the slate. From these, five board members will be elected from each class.

President and vice president will be seniors, secretary a junior and treasurer a sophomore.

Union To Sponsor Bridge Tournament

The Union will sponsor three bridge tournaments to be held in Union parlors from 2 to 5 p.m. on Feb. 7, 14 and 21. Participants will enter at least one of the first two preliminary tournaments to qualify for the National Intercollegiate Tournament Feb. 21. The winners will attend the Big 7 tournament to be held in the near future.

Entries must be turned in to the Union Activities office by Friday noon, Feb. 6. James G. Porter is to be the director of the tournaments.

Membership Drive For Ag Y's Ends Friday

The membership drive for the Ag YWCA and YMCA will close Friday. Students who wish to become members are requested to sign up in the Y booth in the Ag Union.
