

Colbert Asks Down-Hour Plan Change

Course-Number Change Registered By Senate

By GRACE HARVEY Staff Writer Changing the reports of scholarship delinquencies to the end of the 4th and 10th weeks of the semester and a renumbering of the catalogue courses were the main points brought before the Faculty Senate meeting Tuesday.

commended that Arabic numerals only be used to represent all courses.

J. P. Colbert, Dean of Student Affairs, emphasized this change in schedule would assist in determining scholarship. He asked that the first two reports will simply be progress reports.

By renumbering the courses, four-letter numbers could be eliminated. In order to carry out this scheme, the old system would have to be avoided entirely and the use of a new one initiated. However, in the case of a new renumbering plan, records of students and graduates would be difficult to keep.

An instructor can tell at the end of the first four weeks whether or not the student is doing satisfactory work by his written reports, class attendance records, and other signs of his interest in the course, Colbert said.

The committee's recommendation was voted on favorably by the Senate.

These mid-semester warnings will enable advisors to meet with those students receiving down ships before they go home for the holidays. This plan will salvage students who otherwise would be lost.

The committee on Boulder's Awards recommended that C. Peters Peterson be given the 1953 award. Mr. Peterson attended the University and afterwards spent seven terms as a member of the state legislature. In 1945 he was speaker of the unicameral. In recent years he helped found the Nebraska Reclamation Association and was president of the National Reclamation Association in 1951-52.

The renumbering of courses and reasons why our system is inadequate to deal with the use of the IBM machines were reported on by a special committee headed by James L. Sellers, chairman of the History Department.

The committee on scholarship appeals stated that 233 students were dismissed from the University last semester. Of these, 31 were re-admitted after appealing the requirements.

It is sponsored by the Home Economics Club. Members of design classes have planned special decorations and foods students are taking care of refreshments.

The next meeting of the Senate will be held in April.

The author of "A Game of Chess," Anton Checkov, is considered one of the outstanding Russian authors. The drama is laid in pre-revolutionary Russia and deals with the attempt of a member of the revolutionary party to assassinate one of the members of the ruling class.

Tryouts for three one-act plays to be presented by the Laboratory Theater will be held in room 201 of the Temple Building Thursday from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Student directors of the plays stressed that all University students are eligible to try out, regardless of lack of previous experience. Students who are unable to try out Thursday may contact Max Whitaker, assistant professor of speech and dramatics, to make arrangements for another time.

The plays to be presented are "A Game of Chess" by Anton Checkov; "The Browning Version" by Terence Rattigan; and "The Monkey's Paw" by W. W. Jacobs.

Terence Rattigan's "The Browning Version" treats the retirement of a school teacher in an English public school. The teacher is a Mr. Chips in reverse, a failure, disliked by faculty and students, cuckolded by a colleague, and tormented by his wife. The plot consists of the going away events of this crusty old schoolmaster whose emotions are untouched until a grateful student presents him with a gift of the Browning translation of the "Agamemnon."

The three plays will be presented March 5 and 6 at the Temple Building.

Those named as finalists will be interviewed Thursday, Feb. 19. At this time the TNC will be selected and presented at Coed Folies Monday, Feb. 23.

Judging Wednesday night will be Miss Elsie Jevons, assistant professor of commercial arts, Miss Mary Ellen Michaud, home economics instructor and Jake Geir, gymnastic coach.

Also serving as judges will be: Hester Morrison, Sallie Mattison, Jean Loudon, Janet Steffen, Marilyn Brewster, Donna Elliott, Phyllis Kort, Betty Hrabik, Gertrude Carey and Sylvia Krasne, AWS board members.

Men's Views Basis Of Coed Designs

In planning their traditional style show, the University home economics students decided this year that they could use some expert advice from campus males.

They asked some 250 men to fill out a questionnaire telling what they thought of women's clothes. The answers form a basis for the show, which will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Union ballroom.

still busy with finals, in order to get the show ready by Feb. 12.

The show is divided into eight sections: full skirts, straight skirts, bat-wing sleeves, high standing collars, tailored clothes, feminine clothes, low waistlines and color.

Members of the second-semester Fashion Merchandizing class taught by Mrs. Mary Hall chose the costumes to be modeled in the show. These seven seniors began their class work two weeks early, while other students were

Applications For Hughes Plan Due Sunday

Sunday is the deadline for re-questing application forms for the Hughes Master of Science degree plan.

Billoni

By BILL DEVRIES Staff Writer The visitor paid his bill at the fashionable hotel, and as he went out, he noticed a sign near the door. "Have you left anything?"

So he went back and spoke to the manager. "That sign is wrong," he said. "It should read, 'Have you anything left?'"

He: "Well, baby, what's the good word?" She: "No!"

Bootblack: "Shine sir? I'll shine your shoes so you can see your face in 'em!"

Ugly-looking man: "No thanks." Bootblack: "Coward."

Then there was the sorority girl who was so dumb she thought a buttness was a female goat.

Officer (to couple in parked car): "Don't you see that sign, 'Fine for parking'?"

Driver: "Yes, Officer, I see it and heartily agree with it."

WORDS OF WISDOM: Age should be respected—especially if it's bottled.

Mike: "Tell me the story of the police raiding your fraternity." Pete: "Oh, that's a closed chapter now."

Don't let this mild weather fool you, for the weather man says to look for increasing cloudiness and snow, snow, snow by Thursday.

Wife: "Dear, I paid the doctor ten dollars again today." Husband: "Wonderful! Just think, honey, only three more payments and the baby will be ours."

"Well, there goes another pupil," said the professor as his glass eye rolled down the drain.

Interested students should write for application forms to Committee for Graduate Study, Hughes Research and Development Laboratories, Culver City, Los Angeles County, California, with the final date for submitting completed applications Feb. 28.

Under the plan, successful candidate will spend half their time in advanced study to complete their Master's Degree either at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California.

During the school year, the individual's remaining time will be spent working in the Hughes laboratories in Southern California.

During the summers of 1953 and 1954 students will be employed on a full-time basis in the laboratories with advancement on the same basis as for full-time engineering staff members.

Approximately 100 cooperative awards will be given if sufficient candidates make application.

Student Council The regular weekly meeting of Student Council has been canceled, Wayne White, president, announced. The next Council meeting will be Feb. 18.

the best shape in years." Important in University construction has been rehabilitating the old building.

A board of faculty members de-termined the past biennium as well as in plans for the next two years," he continued.

Selleck commented, "If we can't keep up our old buildings, we shouldn't be talking about new ones."

The committee visited modern Ferguson Hall, electrical engineering building, where they saw electron microscopes and specialized infra-red equipment.

"If they could see the many things being studied and done in these departments, they'd be reassured about how the tax money is being spent," Sen. Anderson added.

The group also toured the Dental College and watched students at work on bridges and molars; inspected the chemical engineering laboratory; stopped at the new botany green house; visited new museum rooms in Morrill Hall; and viewed archeological artifacts in the laboratory of anthropology.

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson showed the group where the new $1 million Teachers College High School is to be built on Vine St. This building and an estimated $800,000 addition to the Teachers College building are two of the major structures planned for the coming biennium. The third is a $1.5 million psychiatric unit at the Medical College in Omaha, the Chancellor said.

Sites of the new men's dormitories, upon which construction will start this year, were shown to the committee. Including 220 housed in University men's dormitories already, these buildings at 15th and S Sts. will provide quarters for 1,000 men. These are revenue bond structures, the Chancellor said.

Comptroller John Selleck told legislators that the Social Sciences building, "renovated from top to bottom what buildings will get repairs, the chancellor explained. Funds are from a "deferred maintenance" portion of the 1.1 mill state institutional building levy.

Sen. Arthur Carmody of Trenton, Budget Committee chairman, said that the idea of having a board to study these matters is good. "I think its value is shown in the wise expenditures made in bottom two years ago, is now in current during final week. Mayor Victor Anderson told this paper that he wants the students, and all the young people in Lincoln—to know what the law and the procedure is. "We don't want to trap anyone," he emphasized.

Anderson explained that the city has raised the maximum fine of $100 for minors purchasing beer or liquor for adults making such purchases for minors.

The Mayor said that the city will institute a card system whereby an individual buying liquor must sign a card and give his birthplace. The card would then be sent to the birthplace and the records checked for his age.

The city, he said, has suggested that liquor dealers get hold of Cornhuskers so that they can check students' pictures with the name given. This, he feels, would stop the practice of giving IDs to minors.

When asked about the number of violators, Chief of Police Joe Carroll told The Nebraskan that there have been three or four violators in the past two weeks.

The Chief said that a crackdown on students' violations of liquor laws was, "possible and probable."

Barbara Adams, junior in Teachers, said that restrictions are necessary. She feels that students are given more blame than other people their age, which is unfair considering the number of underage Lincoln residents who purchase liquor and are not students of the University.

She considers the $100 fine fair, and believes that the present laws should be enforced.

Chuck Ferguson, freshman in engineering, also believes that the age limit should be lowered, but for boys only, because girls "lack the capacity to drink." "If boys are old enough to fight, they are old enough to drink legally," Ferguson said.

University pressure would control the drinking problem, Rex Fisher, freshman in Arts and Sciences, said. He suggested that extensive checking of fraternities and removal of social privileges be enforced as a penalty for drinking.

Fisher also believes that students should be removed from the University for violating the city's beer and liquor laws. "Students would drink more moderately if they were clamped down on," he claimed.

Harry Wallace, sophomore in Business Administration, believes that University pressure might slow up illegal drinking for a while, but it would not stop it.

He feels that the $100 fine is too high, as the exact amount is irrelevant to the problem. He cited that the majority of students are supported by their parents.

The parents, as well as students who are self-supported, Wallace said, are more likely to be concerned with the principle of being arrested, rather than with the amount of the fine.

Europe's Needy To Get AUF Aid

"If, when the AUF drive closes Friday, the peoples in the flood-stricken areas of Europe need the clothes we have gathered, we will send them the clothes—if they need money more than clothes, we will sell the clothes and send them money.

This is how Rocky Yapp, AUF president, answered questions raised in a recent controversy over the medium of aid which would be most effective in the relief of the disaster-ridden countries of Europe.

AUF is sponsoring a drive requesting students in the University to contribute clothes for shipment to the flood areas.

FRED WARING

Advance Sales Of Tickets End Today

Advance ticket sales to the Fred Waring Concert end Wednesday. Tickets are on sale in the Ag and City Unions for $1.50.

Waring and his Pennsylvanians will present their concert in the Coliseum Tuesday, March 3. The group is taking a leave of absence from television to tour the country for the first time since 1937.

The Pennsylvanians were first organized in 1916 by Waring and his brother, Tom. It began as a four man group and later grew to 11 who were known as "Waring's Twelve Collegians." The Waring organization, as it is known now, was first introduced on radio in 1933 and in 1949, Waring began his television series.

Waring organized a music workshop which last summer toured across the nation and was attended by fifteen hundred choral directors.

Waring is a trustee of Penn State, his alma mater, and is an active member of the Lambs Club.

Hergenrader Elected ASME Chairman

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers elected Wilmer Hergenrader as chairman, Herbert Saxton as vice-chairman, Conrad Stahly as secretary and Glenn Vest as treasurer for the second semester.

The society will meet jointly with the Nebraska section of ASME Friday at 6:15 p.m. in Parlors A and B of the Union to hear Prof. Jesse Ormondroyd of the University of Michigan speak on "Vibration Measuring Instruments."

The society invites non-members, both faculty and student, to make reservations for the speech with Keith Newhouse, assistant professor of mechanical engineering.

Student members may purchase their tickets from ASME committee members as listed on the bulletin board in Richards Laboratory.

Outstater Should See NU Projects—Anderson

"It's too bad that people outstate can't be with us today and see the wide variety of things the University of Nebraska is doing."

So stated Sen. Lester Anderson of Aurora after he toured the University city campus with the Budget Committee of the Legislature, Monday.

The committee visited modern Ferguson Hall, electrical engineering building, where they saw electron microscopes and specialized infra-red equipment.

"If they could see the many things being studied and done in these departments, they'd be reassured about how the tax money is being spent," Sen. Anderson added.
