Phi Psi's Still Pace All-U Race

IM Ratings Changed Little; DU's Lead B's

Intramural Sports Columnist The big-three of the All-University basketball ratings remain firm this week while the rest of the weekly ratings undergo their regular shakeup, typical in this year of topsy-turvey cage play.

Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Phi Epsilon and the Ramblers each held their respective one-two-three berths by keeping their records unblemished. The Phi Psi's racked up wins eight and nine by thrash-Theta Xi and then outlasting Beta Missouri has lunged back into the first division after strategic victories over Colorado and Iowa State, the last two Tiger foes. Exclusive claim to third place standing in the Big Seven race ride on the outcome of the contest.

Around the lague, they're continued now that Big Bob has outgrown the "jitters," and must be labeled a dangerous hook shooter. He has found the groove, with 19-point productions in his last two games, and has moved to the fore as M. U.'s best point-maker. His current average is 12.2, and his ride on the outcome of the contest.

Both clubs have passed the halfway point in a give-and-take Big Seven basketball race, and each now stands at 4-4. On the ledger, however, is a 73-62 Nebraska victory over the Tigers in their first meeting in the Coliseum on Jan. 19.

That setback sent Coach Sparky Stalcup's Tigers into a sudden decline. But they are seemingly out of the squall this week, after galning wins over Colorado and Iowa State.

Iowa State.

Sounder defensively, too, Missouri will have to guard against a relapse when the Huskers open fire against the Tigers Saturday. Nebraska currently fe a tures Willard Fagler, 6-5 forward, and Fred Seger, set-shot artist at guard, as top gunners on the squad. Last time the teams met, Fagler hit 22 points and Seger 16—more than half the team's total output total output.

Other Cornhuskers who wil start Saturday are Don Weber, forward; Bill Johnson, center; and Joe Good, guard.
