Three Students Enter Royal Realm Of Pre-Lent Mardi Gras Festival

Parades titled Superstitions, Once Upon A Time, and Rex were main attractions during the festivities, he said. The Rex parade had about 17 or 18 floats from every state in the Union at the time of the Louisiana Purchase, he added.

"On each of the floats eight to ten people dressed in watermelon, Chinese, clown and various other types of costumes, threw out trinkets to the crowd.

"Fraternities from various colleges and universities had trucks participating in the parades to serve lunch and refreshments."

Attending an open house, Adams said, they obtained tickets to the Rex Ball. The Rex Ball is formal, he added, however they had left their evening clothes at home in the moth balls. Dressed in dark blue suits, they set off to the ball and two managed to get by the doorman but the other was not so fortunate.

While in New Orleans, they visited many famous landmarks, Adams said.

"We visited the French Quarter and watched the artists work and were shown through French buildings to see the various types of construction. We dined at world famous French restaurants including Antoine's and Arnauds. Antoine's was established in 1840 and is still in the hands of the same family. To become a waiter, it is necessary to serve as a bus boy for ten years and be able to speak perfect French.

The students also visited the St. Louis Cathedral, oldest in the United States, Adams said, and the Federal Customs Building, which has sunk three feet since it was first built. The Monterey, a medium sized aircraft carrier, was also another point of interest, he said. "We went aboard and rode up and down in the large aircraft elevators.

Adams said a great of the activity centers around the French Quarter at the party shops. After the parties people in taxis, taxi drivers, and street cleaners all go to the French markets for donuts and coffee.

Whooping Crane Display Opened In State Museum

A scene not too uncommon in the 1800s but a rarity in this century—Whooping Cranes migrating across Nebraska—has been depicted in the second of 16 planned natural habitat displays to be opened to the public at the University of Nebraska State Museum.

The display, three mounted Whooping Cranes in a Nebraska Sandhills setting, is part of the newly created Hall of Nebraska Wildlife, which is being financed by private donors through the University Foundation.

Three other natural habitat groups—Pronghorn Antelope, Beaver and Red Fox—are in the process of construction, according to Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, director of the Museum.

Dr. David D. Whitney, professor of zoology emeritus, donated the funds for the erection of the new display. Two of the three

Art Show Displays Nearly 300 Works

Eight Lectures To Highlight Show; Experts Milliken, Rathbone To Talk

Nearly 300 works of contemporary art, including paintings, sculpture, prints, drawings, and ceramics, are being exhibited on the second and third floors of Morrill Hall by the Nebraska Art Association.

The 63rd Annual Exhibition of the art association began Sunday and will continue through March 29.

The works, ranging from realism to abstraction, were brought to Morrill Hall galleries by the selections of Duard Laging, art department chairman, and Norman Geske, assistant director of the University galleries.

Saturday, Fred Conway, painter, will discuss the relation of painting to architecture at an open meeting of the Nebraska chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Sunday Conway will lecture in Gallery B in Morrill Hall.

March 10, "The Critic Looks at Contemporary Art" will be the subject of a panel-lecture by William H. Werkmeister, chairman of the department of philosophy; William F. Swindler, director of the School of Journalism and Hal T. Wilmeth, assistant professor of art history.

The Department of English will sponsor a panel discussion, "Twentieth Century Poetry," as a prelude to the 1953 Montgomery Lectures which will present Karl Shapiro, Pulitzer prize winner, and editor of "Poetry" magazine.

Participating in the discussion will be Walter F. Wright, professor of English and Bernice Soto, Robert Knoll and James E. Miller, assistant professors of English.

Norman A. Geske, assistant director of the University galleries, will give a lecture March 15.

William A. Milliken, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art and Perry T. Rathbone, director of the city Art Museum of St. Louis, will lecture March 22.

A panel lecture on March 24 will be "The Public Looks at Contemporary Art."

D. W. Laging will announce the acquisitions for the Frank M. Hall collection on March 29.

All lectures will be held in Gallery B in Morrill Hall. Lectures on Saturday and Sunday are at 3 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday lectures will be at 8 p.m.

Two Experts To Help Select Works Of Art

William M. Milliken, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, and Perry T. Rathbone, director of the city Art Museum of St. Louis, will speak in Gallery B University art galleries, March 22 at 3 p.m.

The two experts are invited annually to assist in the selection of works to be added to the Frank M. Hall Collection and will be guests of the University art galleries March 21-22.

Milliken is a graduate of Princeton and Western Reserve Universities and a member of the Archaeological Institute of America, the Medieval Academy of America, the American Ceramic Society, vice-president of the Council of the American Association of Museums, and trustee of the American Federations of Arts.

Rathbone is a graduate of Harvard University, and has been director of the St. Louis art museum since 1940. During New York World's Fair in 1939, he was secretary-director of the "Masterpieces of Art" exhibition.

Showmanship Filings Open Wednesday

Filings for the showmanship contests for the annual Block and Bridle Show open Wednesday.

Club president, Wayne Frost, said four divisions will be open for student participation. They are beef, swine and sheep showmanship and the coed riding contest. The filings close March 16.

Interested students may sign up for any of the divisions in Room 252, Animal Husbandry Hall.

The livestock for the events will be furnished by the University and the Block and Bridle Club.

Drawing times for the various divisions will be announced by the chairman of the divisions at a later date. The chairman are, for beef, Paul Krueger; sheep, Jack Lemon; swine, Dean Lintcott, and coed riding, Cal Lemon and John Ranney.

Filing Deadline Set March 9 For Selective Service Tests

The National Headquarters of Selective Service announced applications for the April 23 Selective Service Qualification Test must be submitted not later than Monday.

Information and application blanks may be obtained at the Selective Service Board, Room 202, Veterans Administration Building, 12th and O Sts.

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, has said on a number of occasions that a tightening of the deferment criteria by raising the standards are in the process of formulation.

The reason, he said, for the tightening of the deferment criteria is because the limited manpower supply no longer justifies deferment of so many students and because veterans are now returning in sufficient numbers to take the places of college students drafted.

General Hershey has urged all eligible students to take the test so they will have scores in their files when the local boards reconsider their cases to determine whether or not they meet the criteria for deferment as students.

Qualifications for the Selective Service Test are: the applicant on the testing date, must

(1) be a selective service registrant who intends to request deferment as a student

(2) be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time college course—undergraduate or graduate—leading to a degree

(3) must not previously have taken the test.

Results of the test will be sent to the student's Selective Service local board.
