

Brownell To Speak At Graduation

the DAILY NEBRASKAN

Commencement Set For June 8

NU Alum Now Attorney General

Herbert Brownell Jr., attorney general of the United States and University alumnus, will be the principal speaker at the University's 82nd annual commencement June 8.

The Student-Faculty Committee on Commencements and Honorary Degrees announced that Brownell has accepted the invitation sent him by the Board of Regents and faculty.

Recognized as the best political strategist in the Republican party today, Brownell was named to a cabinet position 17 days after the Nov. 4 election. He has been described as "the mastermind of the Eisenhower campaign."

A 1924 University graduate, Brownell is the first Nebraska alumnus to occupy a cabinet seat.

As a 1922 undergraduate he was managing editor of The Daily Nebraskan. The next year he was appointed editor.

He holds a Phi Beta Kappa key, and as a student was a member of the Innocents society, Kosmet Klub and Delta Upsilon. Maintaining an A average, he was graduated as top man in his class.

Brownell received a law scholarship after his graduation and attended Yale law school where he edited the Yale Law Journal. In 1927, he was graduated Cum Laude from Yale.

Prior to enrollment at Nebraska, Brownell attended Lincoln High School. There also, he managed the student newspaper, in addition to being a student council member for two years, president of the senior class and spokesman at the high school commencement exercise.

Brownell has also been a speaker at University Charter Day ceremonies.

During Brownell's editorship, The Daily Nebraskan sponsored popular subscriptions for the construction of Memorial Stadium, a project then only in the minds of progressive Nebraskans.

Brownell's mother, the wife of the late Professor Herbert Brownell Sr., who was former chairman of the University Department of Science Education, is a Lincoln resident.

In 1948, she was given the Lincoln Kiwanis Distinguished Service Award; the next year she was named Nebraska Mother of the Year.

Brownell's sister, Mrs. Theodore Bullock, also lives in Lincoln.

Speech, Walkout Highlights Session

'Middle East Won't Turn To USSR,' Fatemi

"Czarism minus the ten commandments" is the concept of Communism in the Middle East.

Dr. Nasrollah Faipour Fatemi, Iranian representative to the Security Council and UNESCO conference in Cleveland, Ohio, expressed this opinion in a speech to a meeting of the Model United Nations Thursday evening in the Union Ballroom.

Dr. Fatemi gave reasons why the Middle East hasn't and won't turn Communist. He explained that the people there know Communism, the Russians and their system of government "as one should know it."

"It is our privilege to fight Communism," Dr. Fatemi said as he expressed that Iran and the Middle East are against being regimented and believe in individualism, having respect for men and a personality.

The speaker expressed the need for technical help from the United States rather than money for the Middle East. He said that "leave and let leave" was the "American deal" desired.

He discussed the Iranian-British oil dispute and the nationalization of the oil industry in Iran.

Dr. Fatemi cited nationalization of many British industries as one reason why Britain should be willing to reach an agreement with Iran over its own nationalized oil.

Comparing the revolution within the Middle East to that of America in 1776, Dr. Fatemi called it a revolution against foreign exploitation, poverty and a corrupt ruling class. He said that Russia has been exploiting the north of Iran, and England the south for the last 150 years.

During the discussion period following his speech, Dr. Fatemi expressed hope that in the future an "independent American view" will prevail in the oil dispute between Britain and Iran. He also claimed that Iran has not "thrown the British out to replace them by Russians."

No nation should sell oil to a nation fighting against the United Nations, Dr. Fatemi expressed, telling that Iran has not sold oil to Russia or Communist China.

The speaker praised the United States for its willingness to hear all sides of the issues of other countries. An American tradition is "to understand others," Dr. Fatemi said. He added, "Even leaders of great nations know so little about the problems of others."

Emergency Meeting Forms New Committee

The emergency session of the General Assembly of the mock United Nations Thursday in Room 315 Union, the group decided to abolish the North African Colonial Problem committee and in its stead form a General Sub-Committee.

The special session was called by the NUCWA board which served as the Security Council for the purpose of discussing the problem concerning the North African committee.

A vote was taken on reconsidering the resolution of India concerning the French territories but the reconsideration was defeated, 12-11.

Bernard Wishnow, assistant secretary general of the Secretariat, presented a recommendation that the North African committee be changed to the General Sub-Committee to discuss Russian, Belgian, Chinese, and South African proposals. The assembly unanimously approved the proposal.

The United Kingdom made a motion, which was voted on and approved that the General Assembly adjourn into committee meetings.

Members of the group then went to meetings of the Korean committee and the newly-organized General Sub-Committee. The latter adjourned, however, because of lack of a quorum.

The delegation from the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics stalked out of a committee meeting in the Mock General Assembly, Thursday afternoon.

The two student delegates, Wayne Johnson and Dale Johnson, participating in the Korea hearing declared the committee would not allow a recess, in which more information could be gathered and resolutions considered. After the proposal for a 30-minute recess was turned down, the Russian delegates walked out of the meeting.

Bob Ransch, Belgian delegate, opposing this move said, "When a nation refuses to enter into a committee meeting in which the reasons for a nation's stand are brought forth, it may be assumed that this nation either is ashamed of these reasons, or has no true stand on which to base its arguments."

"The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in its usual fashion, refused to take part in this democratic discussion," Ransch pointed out, "and has shown its lack of interest in arriving at fair and peaceful settlements of problems."

Later in an interview with the Russian and Red Chinese delegations, Murl Maupin, delegate from Red China said, he didn't feel members of the Assembly dealt with the seating of Red China in the proper manner during Tuesday's afternoon session.

"There was no discussion at all," Maupin added, "and we feel the United Kingdom was out of place when they interrupted the Russian resolution for seating Red China."

Russian delegate, Dale Johnson in commenting on this said, "The delegates of the Assembly were afraid to consider the merits of the People's Republic of China for fear facts and discussion would reveal that the Republic of China is a rightful representative of the Chinese people."

"Therefore, they are entitled to full participation in the UN."

The Soviet delegation cannot emphasize too much its disappointment with the action of the Mock United Nations General Assembly and its committees, declared Wayne Johnson, the other Russian delegate.

"Representing a new government, we came to the West," Johnson said, "expecting to be treated with elemental justice. The Western nations, who claim to be the international defenders of justice, Johnson said, have continually refused to ever take cognizance of the Soviet viewpoint."

Returning from its annual spring tour, the University ROTC Symphonic Band will climax the season with a Sunday concert at 3 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Band members returned Thursday after presenting concerts in Scottsbluff, Chadron and Alliance.

Donald A. Lentz, director, will conduct "Bravada" by Vaughan Williams; "The Sicilian Vespers" by Verdi; "Siegfried's Rhine Journey" by Wagner; and "Suite Française" by Milhaud.

Also on the program will be "Air Variations" by Pryor; "The Moldau" by Smetana; "Soirees Muciales" by Britten; "Atlantic Zephyrs" by Simons; and "Caribbean Fantasy" by Morrissey.

Band personnel includes: Piccolo: Sigrid Lewis; Flutes: William Krause, Shirley Ochener, Paul Cook, Martha Hill, Lois Eddy; Oboes: Dale Ground, Joyce Fricke; Clarinets: John Berigan, Wesley

Repatriation Of Prisoners Main Topic Of Discussion

The Indian proposal regarding the repatriation of prisoners in Korea was the main topic of discussion at the Korean committee session of the Mock United Nations general assembly Thursday.

This opening resolution was amended by France stating that repatriation must take place within 20 days after the prisoner's appearance before a screening committee. The screening committee, composed of members from Czechoslovakia, Mexico, India, Sweden, and the Philippines would be established for the purpose of interviewing all prisoners of war.

France also proposed that, should prisoners express no choice before the committee, they shall be returned to their original homes within 30 days after the first 20 days.

This first Indian motion, as amended, was reported favorably by the committee. In turn, it was passed by a vote of 22 to 2.

Next on the agenda was a ceasefire proposal by the USSR in opposition to the Indian proposal which the delegate maintained did not provide for peace.

The proposal also stated that, after the cease fire order is issued all non-Korean troops be withdrawn from both North and South Korea, all prisoners of war be exchanged and returned to their rightful command, and a general election be held to choose the officials of a unified Korean government after a period of two years.

France opposed the second provision because it did not give the prisoner the right to determine where he was to go.

Since a quorum of committee members did not vote when the proposal was brought before the committee, the USSR proposal is still not out of committee.

The second annual Dairy Royal will be held at the College of Agriculture March 27 starting at 7:15 p.m.

The Varsity Dairy club is the sponsor of the show. Included in the evening's events are a junior and senior livestock showmanship contest, a coed cow milking contest and free entertainment.

The contest for showmanship honors is divided into two divisions. The first is the junior division which is open to all who have not previously shown in the Dairy Royal or the Block and Bridle Spring Show formerly known as the Jr. Ak-Sar-Ben. The senior division is open to the students who have had previous experience in showing dairy cattle.

The first-place winners in each of the divisions will be eligible to compete in the Grand Championship and Reserve Championship contest.

Judges for the showmanship contests are Paul Reigert and Walter Robertson, Lancaster County dairy farmers.

The coed cow milking contest is open to coeds from the University. Each woman's organized house is allowed one entry in the contest.

The winner will be awarded a traveling trophy now held by the Kappa Delta sorority.

The winner of the coed cow milking contest will be selected on the basis of the one who gets the most milk into a bottle in an allotted time.

Delbert Merritt, a sophomore in the Ag college, is the master of ceremonies for the second annual Dairy Royal.
