

Just Between Us . . .

By DON PIEPER
Editor

If there has been a Student Council meeting this year where our student legislators worked over some basic University problems, that meeting was held Wednesday, April 15 in Room 313 of the Union.

Perhaps the most basic problem in this school—or any other school—is where should the line be drawn between student and faculty responsibility. That was just one of the questions the Council discussed in the red-hot two-hour session Wednesday.

A motion to re-open filings for class officers started the fireworks. After that, everything from class spirit to the work of this year's class officers was debated.

When the question was finally called, the Council voted (15-6) to re-open filings but there is nothing to indicate that applications made during the new filing period will be valid. That decision is up to the Judiciary Committee and the faculty. Fifteen of 21 voting Council members thought that the move was within the constitution.

Here are the facts, decide for yourself. The by-laws to the Council constitution say (Article IV, Section 2, Sub-section g) that, "at least two candidates must file for each position." Only one student filed for Senior Class President, Vice President and Treasurer and Junior Class Secretary and Treasurer. Therefore, there can be no election for these offices unless filings are re-opened. Now, can filings be re-opened constitutionally?

Miss Mary L. Mielenz, associate professor of secondary education and long-time faculty advisor to the Student Council, feels that it would be contrary to the constitution to attempt re-opening.

Several members of the Council agree with her. "If she is right, the Council was wrong when the filings were re-opened several weeks ago. At that time every class officer position and two college positions for Council representation had only one student filings. Dean Linscott, Elections Chairman, decided to extend filings then. He did it with the approval of Don Noble, Council Judiciary chairman.

During that extension, one person filed for Senior Class Secretary, Junior Class President and Vice President and the Pharmacy and Dental College Council positions were filled. If the Judiciary Committee and the faculty decide that re-opening is wrong, these filings will have to be invalidated too.

What, now, is the constitutional provision which says that filings cannot be re-opened. Article V, Section 2, Sub-section b of the constitution proper says that "filings will open the first Monday in April and shall run for one week, closing on Saturday noon of that week."

The majority of the Council feels that this provision does not mean that filings cannot be constitutionally re-opened if necessity dictates. By its vote Wednesday that majority (15-6) indicated that the re-opening was necessary.

NEBRASKAN EDITORIALS

Ignore The Charge

About a year ago the Omaha World-Herald published an editorial which began with these words:

"Because Mr. Truman failed to deny a report that he offered Gov. Stevenson his support for the Democratic Presidential nomination, 'the report will be accepted as true.'"

The reasoning, according to the World-Herald, was that of the New York Times political writer, Arthur Krock.

The logic, in other words, is this:

Mr. A charges Mr. B with "being something" or "doing something."

Mr. B fails to deny the validity of the charge. Therefore, Mr. B is guilty of "being something" or "doing something."

Perhaps Mr. Krock is right in his reasoning when it is applied to politicians and their charges against one another.

But certainly he is mistaken if the logic is extended to include persons accused of being Communists or fellow travelers.

We hate to believe that every charge of "subversion"—no matter how unfounded—must be met with loud screams of denial. Charges are now flying so fast and are so absurd that the man who ignores the charges runs a far better chance of establishing his innocence in the minds of the public than the man who avidly denies every rumor.

A University professor, realizing this, has wisely refused to comment on a recent cloudy

Now, you ask, where do the Judiciary Committee and the faculty come into the picture? Article VII, Section 2, Sub-section a of the constitution says that the Judiciary Committee shall have the duty of interpreting the Student Council constitution and by-laws. Since this problem is a constitutional one, it comes under the jurisdiction of this committee. And Section 3 of the same article says that "all rulings of the Judiciary Committee shall be final except for appeal to the proper University Senate Committee." The "proper University Senate Committee" is the Committee on Student Affairs through the Subcommittee on General Organizations. Article IX, Section 2, Sub-section a and b of the by-laws say that this sub-committee has the responsibility "to review and pass upon the actions of the Student Council" and "to receive appeals from actions of the Student Council."

That's where the decision lies. The Student Council can haggle for two hours over this question, the Judiciary Committee can dig up facts and prepare a ruling but the final answer depends upon the faculty.

In some cases, this is as it should be. Now, is this one of those cases? In this particular instance, is a faculty decision needed? I don't think so. Of course, I'm prejudiced because I think that the Council is going down the right road on this matter. But this is the first time this year that the Student Council of the University of Nebraska has really looked into a problem of major campus importance. A lot of worthwhile debate preceded the final vote. In fact, a motion to call the question was voted down twice before the original motion was voted on.

I think that the Council made a responsible decision in this case and the students should be allowed to let their own decision stand. I will grant that situations might occur when it is good to let Council decisions go to the faculty, but I think that these situations must include obvious irresponsibility. And I don't think that this was one of those situations.

That is the picture. You students have the right to read this editorial and listen to Council meetings. But, if the faculty committee decides to make the final ruling, you can do no more than come to your own private conclusion.

I think, however, that we are extremely lucky that the faculty sub-committee which will make the ruling in this case is composed of very level-headed members. It is a little unfortunate that some minds have already been made up but it would be impossible to find anyone interested in student affairs who hasn't come to some conclusion on this matter. I think, however, that the students will get a fair decision from the faculty committee. I do not argue with the committee or its ability—only with the fact that the committee has to make a decision on this matter.

This whole affair will be especially ludicrous if there are no filings. Let's hope that some of our outstanding students file for class government posts.

charge that he is a "sponsor" for a "Communist-front apparatus unit." He is wise because the magazine writer who made the charge never defines "sponsor," "Communist-front apparatus" or "Communist-front apparatus unit."

Perhaps the author realized that the professor could not disconnect his name from the red tinge—no matter how little the label of "apparatus unit sponsor" means.

Perhaps the author operates on the logic Mr. Krock employs.

If he does, the logic may work inversely, for to ignore a charge today is to demonstrate that the accused is above the mud-throwing tactics of self-appointed vigilantes.

The professor is to be congratulated for ignoring an unexplained charge based on guilt by association.

If the public and the newspapers could follow his example, charge-mongers would soon die out for lack of publicity.—K. R.

This Time, Scholars

Earlier this year there was a banquet honoring Cornhusker athletes. At 6:30 p.m. next Tuesday there will be a banquet honoring Husker scholars—an equally important venture.

The Honors Day Convocation Committee—composed of both students and faculty—is to be congratulated for instituting this idea. It is one that should become a NU tradition.—D. P.

The majority opinion was typified by one representative:

"We've seen 10 cent corn and 30 cent wheat. I'm calling attention to the taxpayer's ability to pay. I'm representing the taxpayer's first of all. I want to preserve the schools, but first of all we must preserve the home."

One of the more economy minded representatives even proposed abolishing teachers college for additional saving.

On the other hand, the minority argued: "The amount recommended would be the lowest this legislature has ever appropriated for the University since it first started making general appropriations. This is in spite of an increase of 3,000 or more students."

NATO May Turn Into Dead Pigeon

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, by Frederick Steinhilber, appeared in the April 14th edition of the Cleveland Press.

For the first time in nearly two years, the Big Four meet in Berlin. It is a meeting of generals, to take their fingers off the triggers, and the shooting incidents in the air patrol.

It is a small beginning, but a beginning. If the generals reach a sensible agreement on air patrol, they may then take the next step and deal with the cause of the patrol.

It starts with the provocative maneuvers of the Russians on the German frontier, which we have had to match with constant alerting of ground and air forces.

If the Russians cut out the offensive maneuvers, we can cut out the responding alerts. That would do quite a bit to end the tension in Central Europe. The best thing the Russians can do is to put the mid-German frontier asleep.

If Malenkov & Co. have taken a fresh look at NATO, they can see it is nothing for them to worry about. NATO has destroyed the easy Russian intimidation of Europe. So there is nothing more to be gained in that line. But it has no offensive ability and no likelihood of achieving it in the present mood of our European allies.

Before Winston Churchill went back into power, he denounced the demands of Aneurin Bevan, Laborite left-winger, to cut back rearmament. Today (as the London Economist observes), he has cut back the rearmament program farther than Bevan proposed.

The French fail in their promises to create forces in being, divert what they can to overseas jobs, balk at German rearmament. The other Europeans do as little as they can. Supreme Commander Ridgway frets and it does no good.

If Russia puts the German front to sleep, how long will the NATO countries' embargo on shipment of "strategic" materials to Russia last? United States has imposed the embargo on NATO. The Europeans accept the principle but object to our definitions of strategic materials.

In a few years of unprovocative conduct, Russia can turn NATO into a dead pigeon. Our overseas buildup is foreign to us and there will be growing disgust with the one-sided burden. The pressure for tax relief and the pressure on the budget will curb the military's efforts to keep on extending the buildup, eventually bring the military structure down to a level we can live with through a long period.

Russia, I've felt since last October, is making a new start on its problems, will not be ready for war (if it intends war) before 1965-75. That's too long a time for us to continue in a virtual state of emergency. We have other business to do in this generation of ours.

After the mass protest of the student body against the proposed University budget slashing, the controversy was pretty well confined to the capitol building, where it continued to rage for five weeks. After the investigating committee recommended greater cuts than those recommended by Governor Bryan, a battle ensued in the House of Representatives (this was before the Nebraska two house legislature was merged into the present unicameral) between a small, but articulate, minority in favor of the governor's recommendations and the majority, who favored the committee's proposal of greater cuts.
