

Alums Seek First Win Over Huskers On All-Sports Day

Oldtimers To Provide First Test For NU's Single Wing

The Cornhusker Alumni football team, which has 30 minutes of spring practice every year (during pre-game warmups), will seek its initial win over the Varsity Saturday during the All-Sports Day annual grid tussle.

The Alums, who every year pack enough beef and finesse to give the Huskers a hard-fought contest, will be attempting to crack the Scarlet's new single wing formation in its first trial.

This year All-Sports Day attraction on May 2 finds the Varsity holding a 2-0 edge in victories over the Alums in previous contests. The first game ended in a tie. The record:

1950—Varsity 13, Alumni 13 (tie).
1951—Varsity 27, Alumni 25
1952—Varsity 7, Alumni 6

Fans who witness the coming clash will see Coach Bill Glassford's newly-installed single wing formation pitted against the as-yet-secretive Alumni. All-American Center Tom Novak and All-Big Seven Guard Don Strashelm head the Grads' coaching brain trust.

Sam Vacanti pitched Alumni touchdowns passes to Cletus and Ken Fischer in that 1950 contest to gain a 13-13 tie. Ed Weir, another Cornhusker All-American, booted the tying point.

Ron Clark tallied twice for the Varsity, one of the scores coming on a 64-yard jaunt.

In 1951 the battle was nip and tuck. With only a minute and a half left the Varsity held a 20-19

25 Huskers Compete In Two Sports

The age of specialization in sports appears on the way out at the University of Nebraska.

More and more athletes are competing in two sports instead of giving their complete attention to one.

At present there are 25 who are members of two teams at the Cornhusker school.

Elmer Dohrmann, who competed from 1935 through 1936, holds the all-time mark for letters won at Nebraska with eleven. Dohrmann won three each in football, basketball and baseball.

and two in track, rounding out his career with a fine performance in the East-West football game at San Francisco.

The current two-sport athletes include:

Stan Matzke, Lincoln, basketball and track; Ray Novak, Omaha, football and baseball; Jim Sommers, Lincoln, football and track; Jim Cederdahl, Lincoln, football and baseball; Fred Seger, Omaha, basketball and baseball; Don Muenster, Omaha, basketball and baseball; Charles Chamley, Flandreau, S. D., football and track; Ken Moore, Mt. Vernon, Ia., football and track; Murray Backhaus, Millard, basketball and baseball.

Dennis Korinek, Ulysses, football and baseball; Bob Reynolds, Grand Island, football and baseball; Gerald Sandulte, Sioux Center, Ia., basketball and baseball; Dean Lux, North Bend, basketball and football; Max Kitzelman, Omaha, wrestling and football; Leonard Rosen, Omaha, football and track; Charles Bryant, Omaha, wrestling and football; Lawrence Goll, Blue Hill, wrestling and football; Jerry Korisko, Omaha, football and wrestling.

Burrell McMaster, Beatrice, football and gymnastics; Max Kennedy, Beatrice, football and gymnastics; Dierkes Rolston, football and baseball; Bill Hawkins, Beatrice, football and track; Jon McWilliams, Sidney, football and track; Sylvester Harris, Kansas City, Mo., football and basketball.

SPORTS NOTES. . . Ty Cobb, former world-famous baseball star, was reported in "good" condition Wednesday at the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Tuesday for "rest and observation," a bulletin from the hospital said.

Norfolk businessmen purchased 500 All-Sports day tickets for the spring sports gala at the University of Nebraska. Jerry Kusy was chairman of the committee.

BOICH TWIRLS ONE-HITTER

Practical Arts, Ag Men Remain Unbeaten; Phi Psi's, Dents Win

By FRANK SORENSON Sports Staff Writer

As the sun broke through the almost ever-present overcast once again Tuesday evening, intramural softball play was highlighted by the one-hit pitching performance by Arnie Boich as Practical Arts swamped Navy R.O.T.C. by a 13-1 count in four innings.

In intramural play when one team is ahead by ten runs after four complete innings, the game is automatically over.

In that four innings Boich struck out nine out of twelve batters to face him while almost duplicating his great performance of last week. One week ago today, he pitched a no-hit, no-run game while fanning 17 out of 18 batters.

Boich was only two outs away from this feat again when a home run off the booming bat of Jim Skinner spoiled his hopes and provided the only hit and only run the hapless Middies could muster.

Meanwhile, the seven Practical Arts players were banging out nine hits and were crossing the plate 13 times. Numerous errors hurt the Middies considerably.

Jim Worth, while playing third base and short stop for the short handed P. A.'s, led their attack with a single, a double and two home runs in five trips to the plate besides scoring four of their runs. Seven P. A. batters reached base via the base on balls route to further hurt the Navy's cause.

Only two Middies drew walks. The win shot Practical Arts into first place in league VIII with a 2-0 mark while it was the third loss for the Middies holding them in the cellar and virtually destroying their hopes for a playoff berth next week.

In the fraternity division, the only action was in League II with Phi Kappa Psi edging out Phi Delta Theta by a 6-3 score. As a result, the Phi Psi's took over first place in their league and the Phi Delta's remained in fourth place behind the victors, Alpha Gamma Rho and Kappa Sigma with a 1-2 count.

Don Frei twirled for the S-Street boys, allowing only three hits while fanning nine in five and one-half innings. It is the first time Frei has performed on the mound this year, and it was an amiable debut.

Strangely enough, the Phi Psi's could only garner one single, but seven walks and five errors proved disastrous for the Phi Delta's, who led at the end of two innings by 3-1, and were only behind 4-3 going into the fourth frame.

The big bats for the Phi Delta's were wielded by Tony Winey, Dick Beechner and Keith Warner, who blasted a triple, a double, and a triple respectively. Chuck Betzeburger got the only safety for the visitors.

In other play around the circuit, the Ag Men strengthened their hold on first place in League VII by blasting the University Aggies 25-3. The win gave the Ag Men a 3-0 mark in the win-loss column, while the Aggies mark dropped to 0-3 as a result of the loss.

Facing the Aggies from the mound was Dick Jiskra who proved to be their downfall by fanning eight and allowing only three scattered hits. Meanwhile, his teammates were banging out 19 hits to further aid their cause.

Bill Stout was all the loser's could offer. He banged out a double. The Freshman Dent's eked out a 5-4 win over the Nebr. Co-op to bring them into a tie with Practical Arts in League VIII.

In amassing their five runs, the Dents garnered as many hits besides being aided by seven walks and four Co-op errors. Jack Larson got two for three to lead the winners while Duane Feichtinger and Bill Parsons each garnered two safeties in three trips to the plate.

In the other game, Vocational Ed Association hit and ran past the Ag Jokers by a score of 14-11. The win nor the loss caused any change in the teams' respective standings in the league.

Huskers Have Contact Drill Indoors; Alumni Game Near Glasford Names Starting Eleven For All-Sports Day Grid Contest

By GLENN NELSON Sports Editor

A steady drizzle and sluggish footing on the Husker practice field drove the Cornhusker spring footballers indoors again Wednesday as spring workouts neared completion.

But the inside workout did not keep the Huskers from staging another night of "rough stuff" drills, including contact work on fundamentals and play execution.

Coach Glassford has named three Varsity lineups for the All-Sports Day game Saturday, which will terminate spring practice sessions for the year. Game time is 2 p.m.

The annual Husker sports classic, which is one of seven athletic events scheduled to fill the All-Sports Day program, will be the fourth running of the affair. In all three previous contests, the Oldtimers have presented rugged competition, tying the Varsity once and losing close battles in the other two games.

But this year the Alumni appear in a more likely position to annex their initial All-Sports Day grid victory.

Handing passing chores for the Alums will be two of the greatest quarterbacks in NU's history, Fran Nagle and Sam Vacanti, who are determined to harass Nebraska's aerial defense. Receivers might present the greatest problem in the Oldsters' passing offensive, however.

Shallow-Aqua Cage Swimoffs To Begin Soon Only the swimoffs remain in the 1953 shallow-water-basketball action as the I-M season of sports rapidly draws to a close. With the deep-water champion already crowned, the shallow end of the Coliseum pool rounded out its league play last week and were well on their way to naming their 1953 champion via the swimoffs.

Beta Theta Pi and Pi Delta Theta enter the post-season battles with perfect records and are the co-favorites to capture the title. These are the same two aggregations that featured the deep-water finale in which the Betas won their third straight championship.

The Phi Deltas are perfect in the win-loss category in league III entering the shallow swimoffs while the Betas hold a similar position league IV.

Defending shallow-water champion, Sigma Phi Epsilon, holds the second rung in league III to date, losing only to the Phi Deltas in a close game. Alpha Gamma Rho with a 4-2 mark is the runnerup outfit of league IV in the regular-season play.

The final league standings: League III Phi Delta Theta 4-0 Sigma Phi Epsilon 3-1 Sigma Xi 2-2 Alpha Tau Omega 2-2 Delta Tau Delta 2-1 Beta Alpha Epsilon 0-4

League IV Beta Theta Pi 6-0 Alpha Gamma Rho 4-2 Bobbers 3-3 Navy ROTC 3-3 Theta Xi 1-5 Farmhouse 1-5 Theta Chi 0-6
