Bonn Rector To Speak At Convocation

Scholar To Discuss Re-Education Of Germany Tonight At 8 P.M.

Re-education of Germany is the problem to be discussed Thursday by Dr. Werner Richter, a European scholar and educator who is now the rector of the University of Bonn in Germany.

The University convocation at which Dr. Richter will talk will be held in the Union Ballroom at 8 p.m., Thursday. This is sponsored by the University and the Union convocation committee.

Richter, a native of Berlin, has been primarily interested in theology, philosophy, and literature, (particularly German language and literature), which he studied at the Universities of Berlin, Marberg and Basle. He took his doctorate in theology at Koeningberg and in philosophy at Berlin, and has since achieved an international reputation in these fields.

The educator was under-secretary of education for Prussia in the ministry of education of the Weimar Republic. Later he took a faculty position at the University of Berlin. The Nazis dismissed him from his position in 1938.

He eventually became a citizen of the United States after fleeing to this country to escape Nazi rule. While he was in this country, Richter was a member of the faculty of Elmhurst College, then Muhlenberg College. He also lectured at California, Wisconsin and Yale.

Following the war, Richter returned to Germany on a temporary basis in the hope of helping to rebuild the country's universities.

Meanwhile he was elected to the rectorship at Bonn, the first American citizen to be named to this high post in the major German University.

At first, the educator indicated he could not accept "if it means giving up my American citizenship." He was assured it did not and was inaugurated on October 19, 1951.

Richter has received five honorary degrees from German Universities, all attained before he reached the age of 45. He has held teaching positions at the Universities of Greifswald, Constantinople, Marburg and Munich.

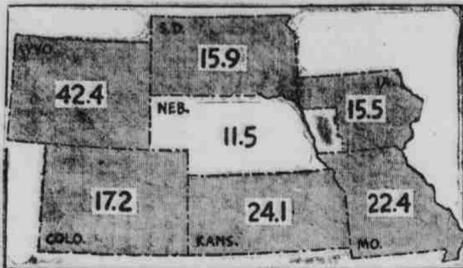

At the special invitation of the British government, he undertook and has just completed an extensive lecture series at the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburg. He has also held recent guest lectureships at the Universities of Stockholm, Uppsala and Lund.

Richter will be lecturing in the United States from May 2 to 24, sponsored by the Universities of Iowa, Nebraska, Southern California, Oregon and Muhlenberg College, and the Institute for International Education.

Richter is the author of a number of books including "Goethe and the State" and "Re-educating Germany."

Grad Student Talks To YW, YM Members

Communist teachings are forming resistance to missionary work in India and the Far East.

Paul Fenske, who attended the World Conference of Christian Youth in Transzore, India in Dec. told this to Ag YWCA and YMCA members Tuesday evening in the Home Ec Building lounge.

This resistance, Fenske continued, is founded on a feeling of fear that their newly acquired independence might be lost by attaching themselves to the West.

A graduate of the University in June, 1952, he believes this fear is a threat to Christian life as well as the Western nations.

Fenske based his statements on his experiences at the conference in India and on a four month tour of the Asiatic countries which include a month in Japan.

Serious Auto Accidents To Professional Drivers Occurred Only One In Four

In nearly every field, the professional is admired for his polished skill. This should hold true with the professional driver.

Last year, only one out of four motor vehicles involved in serious accidents was driven by a professional, according to the 1953 Book of Street and Highway Data.

True, there are fewer professionally driven vehicles, but the average commercial car is driven nearly four times the mileage of the average passenger car.

Professional drivers are generally good drivers because they take driving seriously. It is their job to know exactly how to steer, brake, take care of their vehicle and avoid trouble.

There is a valuable lesson here for you who drive for pleasure or convenience. You may not earn your living behind the wheel, but you earn your life there.

5 Ag Recipients Announced

Five University students have been granted fellowships totaling $4,214 for advanced studies in agriculture at the University during the 1953-54 school year.

The awards, all of which are given through the University Foundation, and the recipients are as follows:

Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben fellowships ($1,100 each): Howard D. Wittmuss, Papillion, and John S. Russel, Semaphore, South Australia.

Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben fellowships ($507 each): Edward H. Sautter, Lincoln, and Wybe Kroontje, Lincoln.

Charles Stuart fellowship in Agriculture ($1,000): Richard L. Monson, Saronville.

Wittmuss plans to work toward the Ph. D. degree in agronomy, combining the study of agricultural engineering with that of soil physics. His special interest in research is soil, water and plant relationships.

Russel, who came to the University in September 1951, expects to finish work for the Ph.D. degree next year. He is engaged in a study of the wet meadow areas of the Nebraska Sandhills.

Sautter began graduate work at the University in February, 1953, after completing nearly two years of Army service. He is working toward a M.S. degree in agronomy, studying the relationship of the content of certain minerals in the soil to its fertility.

Kroontje is beginning work in soils which will lead toward the Ph. D. degree. He is studying ways of improving the quality of alfalfa grown in Nebraska by increasing its content of carotene.

Monson is a senior in the University's College of Agriculture and plans to start work this fall toward a M.S. degree with the major in agronomy. He has worked as a research assistant at the University for three years, helping with sweet clover breeding work.

At the University he earned a master's degree in zoology in 1950. Then, aided by a grant from the Atomic Energy Commission, he began a study of the effect of irradiation on living matter, particularly on the female fruit fly. When he finishes work on his Ph.D., probably in June 1954, he expects to devote his time to teaching and research.

George R. Dachs, Lincoln, the recipient of a $1,000 Donald Waiters Miller fellowship, is a junior in the University's College of Dentistry.

Between 1936 when he was graduated from high school in Deer Lodge, Mont., and September 1948, when he entered the University of Nebraska, his varied career included work for the Montana Highway patrol and as a railroad engineer and fireman. He also spent five years in the navy during World War II. He is married and has three children.

Annan, Dachs Obtain Pro Training By Fellowships

For at least two recipients of University fellowships and scholarships for 1953-54, the end of the next school year will mean also the end of a long effort to obtain professional training.

A Franklin E. and Orinda M. Johnson fellowship will enable Murvel E. Annan of Lincoln to complete work on a Ph.D. degree in zoology. Annan graduated from high school in Coin, Ia., in 1938 and went to Nebraska State College at Peru the next fall to major in music.

When the war came he entered the army and served for four years. After being discharged in 1946 he taught a year at Coin. Then, having decided that he was better suited for a career in science, he returned to Peru. He graduated in 1948 with a major in biology, but with more hours of college credit in music than in science. He is still actively interested in music, and sings in the choir of the First-Plymouth Congregational church in Lincoln.

At the University he earned a master's degree in zoology in 1950. Then, aided by a grant from the Atomic Energy Commission, he began a study of the effect of irradiation on living matter, particularly on the female fruit fly. When he finishes work on his Ph.D., probably in June 1954, he expects to devote his time to teaching and research.
