Patterson Book Examines Old Testament Ideas

Dr. Charles H. Patterson, professor of philosophy, is the author of a new book, "The Philosophy of the Old Testament," which is an examination and analysis of the Old Testament.

No Signature Required

The Daily Nebraskan erroneously announced that students in the College of Agriculture or Arts and Sciences must have the signature of the dean of their college on the worksheets for spring registration.

it happened at nu

ROTC units of all branches were waiting, standing stiffly at attention before passing in review for the "brass" at Tuesday's drill. Cadet officers bawled commands and instructions to the waiting men. One officer, suffering from a cold, squeaked, "last week, we were the worst looking flight of the entire unit."

The nearby groups roared at the remark. The officer, suddenly realized what he had said and turning to the still laughing group on his left squeaked, "but you guys weren't there!"

Silence reigned supreme in the squelched laughter.

Opposition To Faction Discussed

Tuesday evening a group of students, most of them interested representatives of organized women's houses, attended a "Fact Meeting."

The meeting, which was advertised as the "Fact Meeting" on the Union bulletin board, was called by Dave Tunnell, a junior in Engineering College and a resident of the Men's Dorm, to discuss plans to form an organization which would oppose the Faction in campus politics.

Representatives of six sororities (all sororities were invited) attended the meeting but indicated that they did not come because they were sympathetic with Tunnell's idea. They just wanted to find out what was going on, the women said.

The main objection to the Faction, the women indicated, was the methods which the fraternities used. Coed representatives made it clear that they did not believe that a campus party opposing the Faction should use Faction tactics.

The women described these tactics as complete cooperation of the members of men's organized houses or bloc voting.

Tunnell pointed out that if the sororities banded together and put up a slate, the independents would support it.

He promised to organize the independents even if he could not get sorority help. He called the meeting to see how the women felt about his suggestions, he said. Many of the coeds hesitated to speak.

He promised that, if he does organize a party, he will select the best candidates from organized men, organized women and independents.

The women desired more complete information about his plans and Tunnell promised to work on a program over the summer months and call another meeting in the fall.

Neither Tunnell nor coed representatives at the meeting could be contacted Wednesday by The Nebraskan.

Bizad College Reports Retail Sales Increases

An estimated dollar total of retail sales in seven principal cities in Nebraska shows a 12 per cent increase since 1948, the University's College of Business Administration reported Thursday in its monthly publication, Business in Nebraska.

The retail sales of the seven cities in 1952 totaled $603,800,000, compared with $539,400,000 in 1948.

The publication said, "Most of this increase must be ascribed to the increase in retail prices. The net increase in the physical volume of sales, after the price increase has been taken out, is about 2.5 per cent."

Actually, sales ran ahead of prices until 1950, so that the physical volume of goods sold increased rapidly from 1948 to 1950, and has been on the decline since then."

Regents To Discuss Newly Planned Education Degree

'Problems Need Clarifying'

A special meeting of the Board of Regents is tentatively scheduled for May 23 to discuss points involved in approval of a proposed doctor of education degree to be administered by the University Teachers College.

This degree was established April 18 by the Board of Regents on recommendation of Teachers College and without the recommendation of the Graduate College, of which Robert W. Goss is dean.

The main objections of the graduate council of Graduate College pertained to the program outline which would be necessary to obtain the degree.

"There is in motion an effort to clarify some points involved in approval of this graduate degree," said Bruce Nicoll, administrative assistant to Chancellor R. G. Gustavson.

Nicoll made the announcement immediately after a morning conference with Dean Goss, who also confirmed that the matter of clarification had been suggested.

Dean Goss emphasized that he had no communication whatever with the Regents since April 18 and if the graduate council had a meeting to discuss "reconsideration" he had not called the meeting.

Nicoll said, "There are some procedural problems that have arisen and they need clarification."

Dean Frank E. Henzlik of Teachers College had no comment on the possible discussion of the degree by the Regents. Objections to the degree were transmitted to the Board of Regents.

Establishment of Doctor of Education degree, University spokesmen said, furnished but another outlet wherein educational ideology of the teachers colleges and arts and science colleges seem to issue in institutions the country over.

Involved is the problem of "professional degrees" versus "graduate degrees," the granting of which turns on the same basic and divergent ideology as that come into even sharper focus of the problems of entrance requirements established by institutions of higher education all over America.

Suspended Sentence, Probation Received By Six NU Students

Suspended sentences, 90-day probation and orders to make restitution were given six University students by Lancaster County Judge Herbert Ronin. The men pleaded guilty Tuesday to malicious destruction of property.

Delta Upsilon fraternity and the six men involved will do numerous deeds for Lloyd C. Jenkins, 2501 Calvert, in order to make amends for damage caused in his lawn.

Authorities said approximately $150 damage had been caused to the lawn of Jenkins when the boys "rolled up" newly-laid grass sod and removed it to the Delta Upsilon fraternity house, 17th and D, last Saturday night.

Harry D. Lewis, acting as spokesman for the men, said that the six guilty youths and the fraternity, as a group, would hold a work session at Jenkins' home before this school term ends. The group will do whatever jobs Jenkins has for them. This might range from cleaning out a basement to painting the garage. As another compensation to Jenkins for the damage to his lawn, the group will keep his sidewalks clear of snow this winter.

"Almost double the number of bushels are now produced on less than half of the acreage used 50 years ago, and these bushels are produced with many fewer hours of labor. The quality of the potatoes has improved comparably."

He pointed out that the time interval between important scientific discoveries and their extensive use in the industry has been much shorter with the potato than with any other crops.

DEBUT TONIGHT

Rarely Seen 'Scarecrow' Opens At 8

Marking the eighth time ever produced since 1911, "Scarecrow," a four-act fantasy drama will make its NU debut Thursday night at 8 p.m., 201 Temple.

Given as part of a thesis for a master's degree, the play is being produced by Jack Babcock who will also direct.

Recognized by critics as one of the finest plays in theatrical literature, the play is, nevertheless, rarely given because it calls for trick staging effects which are difficult to produce.

Babcock has received word from the author, 78-year-old Percy MacKaye now of New York City, expressing his interest in the success of the production.

MacKaye wrote the play in 1911 after reading Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Feathertop." The stories are similar.

Cast as leads in the play are two faculty members. This is the first time in 10 years that a faculty member has participated in such a production.

The cast for the play is as follows: Lord Ravensbane, David Hayes; Dicken, Richard Thompson; Goody Rickby, Lynne Brown; Rachel, Joyce Fanning; Richard Talbot, Morrel Clute; Justice Merton, Charlie Peterson; Mistress Merton, Sue Neuen-swander; Micah, Ron Becker; the Mirror Image, Ebenzer, Dick Coleman; Captain Bugby, Jim Davis; Gov. Reddington, Hal Cohen, and Fanny, Margot Hunt.

Also: Amelia, Valerie Hompes; Minister Dodge, Ernest Enke; Mistress Dodge, Nancy Pratt; Master Rand, Bill Walton, and Master Todd, Amer Lincoln.

Werner Lauds Agriculture Increases In Food Production

Dr. H. Werner, professor of horticulture at the University Tuesday night outlined the agricultural achievements of the past 50 years in connection with the production of potatoes. He spoke before the annual banquet of Sigma Xi, honorary scientific research society.
