

Nebraska Salutes

There was a feeling of pride as students, teachers, mothers, fathers and interested Cornhuskers arose to give fellow Cornhusker, United States Attorney General Herbert Brownell a thunderous welcome at the University's 82nd Commencement exercises.

Nebraskans were indeed proud of their native son whose impressive political record has brought him one of the top administrative posts in the nation.

As Nebraskans saluted Brownell they saw in him a spokesman for the Middle West who has assumed his duties in an administration filled with Eastern businessmen. An administration which at times has not seen eye to eye with the Midwestern farmers on the agriculture policy.

However, there was only a feeling of sincere joy and respect as Nebraskans listened to the short message on government affairs delivered by Brownell.

It was indeed fitting that Brownell, who was graduated in 1924 from the University of Nebraska, return and interpret the government's policies to his Cornhusker colleagues.

The Summer Nebraskan salutes Herbert Brownell and hopes that his outstanding record of personal integrity will not only be a source of inspiration to the graduating seniors but will be a hopeful link between the state of Nebraska and the officials in Washington.

 Congratulations Mr. Selleck on your recent appointment as acting Chancellor of the University!

As Mr. Selleck himself said, it is a great honor and responsibility to be asked to serve as acting chancellor if only for a tenure of a few weeks. The Nebraskan believes that it is an honor rightly confirmed and that the job is in the hands of a man who is capable of accepting that responsibility.

As an administrative staff member for 32 years, Mr. Selleck is undoubtedly one of the finest administrators in the country. He is now general manager of the University.

As well as an administrator of the University, Mr. Selleck is also a University alumnus. He received a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering in 1912. After graduation he was an engineer for the Illuminating Electric Company in Chicago from 1912 until 1921 when he entered Army service in World War I.

In 1921 he became assistant purchasing agent for the University. He assumed the position of business manager for the University's department of intercollegiate athletics in 1923.

In 1948, the Board of Regents ordered a reorganization of the University's administrative offices and Mr. Selleck was named general business manager. He has served as Corporation Secretary for the University since 1941, a position he still holds and which includes the duties of secretary to the Board of Regents.

Mr. Selleck has not only had wide experience in the field of education but has continued to show his wisdom in all the work he has done.

The University is presently in several crucial circumstances. One problem that will fall directly at the chancellor will be the coordinating and cooperation of the various colleges and divisions of the University. This is a question that has appeared many times, and particularly in the discussion of the Doctorate of Education Degree.

Mr. Selleck is a man who can handle these problems. We are counting on you.

A New Look

As new faces appear on the Nebraska campus the Daily Nebraskan will also take on a new appearance.

The issues will be reduced to a weekly edition which will become a tabloid size. In addition the paper will be more appropriately called the Summer Nebraskan.

The new staff is composed of two co-editors whose job will be to serve the students during the summers months.

This paper is for the students, and it is hoped that you will want to express yourselves through this medium. The Letterip column will be continued in the Summer Nebraskan so that you may voice your opinions.

If you are interested in joining the writing staff you will be welcomed anytime in the Summer Nebraskan office located in the basement of the Student Union.

If you wish news in the paper please contact the Summer Nebraskan office on Monday or Tuesday afternoon or evening.

East, West Unite In Marriage At NU

East met West Friday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Gustavson.

Farida Fallah of Teheran, Iran and Burbank Kristjanson of Gimli, Manitoba, Canada, both graduate students at the University, were married in an afternoon ceremony. Dr. Gustavson gave Farida in marriage and the Rev. I. J. Domas performed the ceremony.

Burbank is studying agricultural economics and Farida is a student of political science and international relations. After they get their masters' degrees in August, they will go to Canada for a few years and then both hope to get their Ph. D.'s at Harvard.

The couple have found no barriers of nationality or religion. Mrs. Kristjanson said that she and her husband found the least of their problems in his being born a Christian and her being a Moslem.

Burbank studied at North Dakota State College before coming to Nebraska. Farida received a scholarship to study at the Teachers College at Kirksville, Mo. Her scholarship was extended a year and she chose the University of Nebraska because of family acquaintance with Chancellor Gustavson.

When asked if they found their fields of study related Farida and Burbank said they did and Farida, smiling, said, "He knows of my field, but I know little of his." Burbank entered emphatically, "But we're not going to compete with each other."

MR. AND MRS. BURBANK KRISTJANSON

Certain permissions were necessary for Farida and Burbank to be married. The Iranian government, through the Iranian embassy, had to issue her a marriage permit which would be recognized by the Iranian government. And Burbank had to get permission to take Farida into his home country.

Their parents approve of the marriage. Farida says, "They think we are old enough to decide ourselves." Burbank's family have met Farida—and she was heartily received.

Farida lived at the International Student House this year.

By BILL DEVRIES
 Staff Writer

Well, here I am at my typewriter again, banging out my 157th column for the Summer Nebraskan. I guess that makes 156 columns behind me and that is probably a good place for them. But really, I have had a lot of good comments about this column during the past year. Here are a few of them: "Your column is so full of corn that it should be sold in cans."... SAM HILL (of the what in Sam Hills); "I started laughing at the first joke and didn't stop until the second".... BASIL METABOLISM: "Your material is just perfect for parlor entertainments—pool parlors".... HUGH NEXT: "Personally I prefer Red material".... GEORGI MELENKOV: "Devries has done it again — word for word".... G. WHIZZ.

And so it goes. But I must have had something in mind when I started this introduction, oh yes, I wanted to welcome all of you summer school students to summer school. I hope you all have an enjoyable time and learn something too. I'm taking ART this summer. The other day I found a model that I wanted to paint in the nude—but she wouldn't let me take my robe off. But seriously, I knew you're going to like it here and we of the Summer Nebraskan feel very proud that you selected the University of Nebraska to be your school this summer.

I know you're going to like Lincoln. It is very quiet and peaceful. The only guy who doesn't call it a one horse town is the street cleaner. He knows better. But there are lots of things to do in Lincoln. There are parks and museums and libraries and taverns and drive-in theaters.

I went to the drive-in the other night and now I know why they call them passion pits. I spent two minutes watching the picture and two hours watching the audience.

Lincoln also has night baseball. Night baseball—that is when one man is out at home and another's trying to get to first base.

For the rowdier students, there are a few taverns. I never will forget the time I was stranded in a little dry town in Kansas. It was awful! For days I lived on nothing but food and water. But I understand in Lincoln you're not considered drunk as long as you can lie on the floor without hanging on.

Well, enough of this nonsense. What I really want to say is: work hard, but save enough time out so that you can have an enjoyable summer. And above all, remember that old proverb: "Success has turned more heads than halitosis."
