Authorities To Discuss Body-Mind Relationship

"What Minds Your Matter?" will be discussed in the fourth of a mental health series of discussions, entitled, "What Makes Up Your Mind," Thursday at 4 p.m. in Rooms ABC in the Union.

This week's topic will be a practical discussion of the inter-relationship of the mind and body and the influence it plays on our daily living.

S. L. Fuenning, M.D., director of the University health service, will be the moderator. I. William Brill, M.D., chief of mental hygiene department of the University health service, and Jack Stemper, M.D. University health service staff will be the main speakers.

Dr. Stemper will consider the body itself, as influenced by the mind and its function. Dr. Brill will discuss the mind, which has been defined as the functional entity that adjusts the total organism to the demands of the environment, what takes place in the mind and how the body influences the mind.

Emphasis will be given to the forces which influence our body, and therefore our mind, such as the effects of a hot, humid day, a defective physical organ, or conditioned reflexes. All are definite factors contributing to our ultimate behavior.

Also there will be discussion of the common complaints of students, such as fatigue and inability to do good scholastic work, and the part the teacher plays in this situation.

A question period will consume approximately half of the period. The audience may submit written questions and time will also be devoted to oral questioning.

"The degree to which we have acquired emotional maturity will determine the extent to which we are able to control our interpersonal relationship," Dr. Fuenning commented.

The last of the series will be July 16 when "Are You Really Living" will be probed by Miss Dudley Ashton, Ph.D., director of physical education for women; Rev. ## Orchestra Will Give Concert

The Seventh Annual "Pops" Concert will be presented by the University Summer Orchestra, Wednesday, at 8 p.m. at the East Stadium entrance.

The concert, presented by the Union, and conducted by Emanuel Wishnow, professor of violin and conductor of the University Orchestra, will feature seven numbers.

The orchestral performance will open with "Stradella Overture," by von Flotow. It is one of the many overtures which have survived their respective operas and are now done separately as concert works.

The second number is "L'Arlesienne Suite" by Bizet, the author of "Carmen." The suite is a collection of dances and incidental music and includes the "prelude,"

"minuetto," and "carillon."

"Saturday Night," is a barn dance by Sanders. The composer won the New York philharmonic prize and is director of music at Indiana University. "La Vie Parisienne" is likewise in the lighter vein. Composed by Offenbach and arranged by Dorati, who is the conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony, it is a ballet suggesting a French flavor.

Rossini's "Matinee Musicale" will be fifth on the program. Rossini is remembered as composer of "The Barber of Seville," and the "William Tell Overture." This number includes the "march," "waltz," and "moto perpetuo." It was completely reharmonized by Britten.

The last two numbers are "Shepherd's Hey," which is an American folk tune, by Grainger, author of "Country Gardens," and the final movement of Tschai-kowsky's "Symphony No. 4."
