dislodge the steady performing Gohde. He played in past scrimmages with a broken thumb. He seems to be playing with the knowledge that this is his op-portunity and is determined to make the most of the chance.

The switch to the single-wing is chiefly responsible for the Gohde surge. Playing fullback behind such veterans as George Cifra and Ray Novak, two of the best battering-rams in the conference offered little future for Gohde.

Under the single-wing Glass-ford shifted the 180-lb. Gohde to quarterback. This position is in no way related to the quar-terback position on the "T." The quarterback here is strictly a blocker. On him depends whether the single-wing functions smoothly.

UNDER THIS formation the quarterback is the unsung hero. He is a glorified guard stalking around in the backfield. On defense Gohde backs up the line nterback on the Cornhusker and his eagerness makes him a natural.

Odds and Ends . . . Jerry Yeager, Hastings senior end, is playing with a cast on his right Two Key Huskers wrist. The cast should be re-moved in time for the Oregon game. . . Those were the optimistic words of J. G. "Jake" Geier, head mentor of gymnastics at Nebraska as he summed up his 1953-54 team which officially opens its pre-season workouts on Sept. 21.

Geier stated that he couldn't help feeling strongly on the optimistic side, as everyone is back from last year's powerful eightman squad which tasted defeat only once. The team should also be strongly bolstered by sopho-

Oregon's greatest improvement is in the line, a weak point with the Ducks for some time. Emery Barnes at end, Hal Reeve at tackle, Jack Patera at guard and Ron Pheister at center lead a crew of veterans bolstered by one of the best groups of sophomores in recent years.
