Facilities To Serve NU, Public

By MARIANNE HANSEN Copy Editor

With memories of overcrowded carloads, lost or damaged articles, problems of organization and the difficulties of moving still fresh in the minds of all of us, the task of moving 40,000 books, 35,000 bound volumes, 50,000 photographs, thousands of manuscripts and countless museum items from tiny lusterware cups to iron safes that six men can't lift seems pretty hopeless.

During the summer the Nebraska State Historical Society has accomplished just this feat and all the articles formerly contained in the Capitol building, plus dozens of new displays, have been successfully transferred to the new State Historical Museum next to the Union.

FORMAL CEREMONIES, part of the 75th Anniversary meeting of the Society, will officially dedicate the museum Sunday afternoon. By this time, the principle displays are expected to be completed.

"We want students to feel welcome to use the facilities of the museum to the fullest extent possible," James Olson, secretary of the Society, said. "One of the principal reasons the building was built on this location was to make the story of Nebraska history available to University students." He stressed that a museum is constantly growing and changing and urged not only visiting the museum, but returning again and again.

THE BUILDING has been open for visitors to come in and have a "look-see" since early this fall. Library facilities are available to all students Monday through Friday from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and until noon Saturday.

Twenty-four units are being installed in the circular foyer. The encased displays will provide an introduction to the museum itself and present a panoramic view of Nebraska development for over 10,000 years. Still in construction are the west gallery of early Indian relics and the east gallery of pioneer articles.

Special galleries on second floor will be entirely new, with furnishings exactly as they were during the period depicted. Included will be a typical sod house, the John Carson parlor from Brownville, and an early colonial bedroom furnished by Professor Emeritus W. W. Whitney.

THE TRANSPORTATION of the assorted and numerous contents of the museum was done by a crew of four boys from the Nebraska State Reformatory. Working from 7:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. each day, the boys finished the last of the moving on Sept. 4. They were supervised by Roger Walker, University student from Seward.

Almost completed, the new "storybook" museum is waiting to serve the people of Nebraska. According to the inscription beside the entrance, "The spirit of a people lives in its history. Here open to all is the history of this people."

Main Hall Displays

The main floor hallway of the Museum, flanked by the main exhibit rooms, is filled with smaller displays resembling department store windows. These displays show how Nebraskans lived in years past. Receptionist Lauretta Griffin also has her desk here.
