All Juniors May Check On Credits

Analysis To Assure Correct Records

The office of records and registration is offering an opportunity to all juniors to check on entrance or requirement deficiencies.

"Most students can do a good job of checking themselves by studying their grade reports and catalogues," stated Dr. Floyd Hoover, director of admissions. "However," he continued, "in order to have an official check students should take advantage of this voluntary service."

BY CALLING room B9 in the Administration building and requesting that his record be checked, a student will receive an appointment to go over a detailed analysis of what credits he has and what he will need in order to graduate.

Reports will be made up in triplicate to be given to the student, the dean of his college and his advisor.

The program was started two years ago to insure juniors of having the correct requirements for graduation.

Freshmen Actor's Group To Begin

Dallas S. Williams, director of the University Theater, announced organization of the Freshmen Actor's Workshop would begin soon.

The workshop, each year sponsored by the speech department for Freshmen, is a non-credit course which holds meetings during regular University class periods.

Williams said freshmen interested should plan to attend the Nebraska Masquers open house Friday, Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. in Temple building to sign up for auditions. The auditions will be held Oct. 13, 14 and 15. Students' audition material should be five minutes maximum length, Williams said.

Where Your Money Goes

Tenth Anniversary Of AUF Marked By Approaching Drive

Proceeds Of 1953 Solicitations To Be Contributed To Heart, Cancer, WUS, Community Chest Charities

Persons, American Cancer Society and Crusade for Freedom.

In 1951 a new constitution was adopted for AUF which provides a basis from which the organization operates. Last year AUF soared over its $5,000 goal, realizing a record breaking total of $7,647.

PROCEEDS FROM the 1953 drive will be given to four charities, the American Heart Association, Cancer, including the American Cancer Society and the University Institute of Cell Growth, the Lincoln Community Chest, and the World University Service.

The basis for the selection of these charities, which will be explained in later Nebraskan articles, was: 1. Thorough investigation of each charity. This was accomplished by consulting the National Information Bureau, a nationally recognized authority on charities; 2. The student-faculty charity opinion poll. 1370 polls were returned this year as compared to 155 replies of last year; 3. The feeling that a balance must be kept among local, national and international charities, plus a balance among health, social and international charities.

Thirty-five cents of every dollar students contribute to the All University Fund will go to the Lincoln Community Chest. The Chest is one of over 1,600 independent chests throughout the United States organized for the task of financing the needs of private welfare agencies and their branches. It is responsible for the development of an orderly and well-rounded welfare program.

The Lincoln Community Chest benefits 30 welfare agencies in Lincoln, serving all races, religions and classes. Last year, the Chest raised over $35,632.

Six general types of services are given by the local Chest agencies: care of children and aged, military services, youth guidance, relief and rehabilitation, community health, and coordination services.

Among the youth guidance services supported by the Chest are the University YWCA and YMCA which last year received $8,000.

"All of us should contribute to the Lincoln Community Chest, for we are residents of Lincoln nine months of the year and receive the privileges of a Lincoln citizen. By giving to the Chest, we are helping to make Lincoln a finer city in which to live and to go to school," Rocky Yapp, president of AUF remarked.

The reasons given by AUF for supporting the Chest are: 1. It benefits 30 different charities; the students money is thereby spread over many worthy charities; 2. The Chest contributes $8000 yearly to the University YMCA and YWCA; 3. The Chest lends a community aspect to the drive; 4. It is financially sound.

Rector, YMCA Executive, To Reorganize NU Branch

More members is the main goal of the University YMCA this year, said M. H. Rector, Lincoln and Lancaster County YMCA executive, who has recently been appointed to assist in reorganizing the University YMCA.

Rector hopes to enlarge the YMCA from approximately 200 members to several hundred. In the past, the size of the YMCA has compared unfavorably to other colleges of similar enrollment, he commented.

He said that in past years, the YMCA handled such projects as the Student Directory, a get-acquainted week for freshmen and counseling. The University has assumed responsibility for these services. Because of these and other changes, the YMCA needs to reorganize to keep abreast of the changing needs and interests of the students, he added.

AT PRESENT, one of the YMCA's projects is helping foreign students. Rector thinks that a "Big-Brother" relationship between American and foreign YMCA members would be beneficial to both.

"Such projects would help a great deal in promoting good international relationships," he commented, "perhaps more than some of the political devices now in use."

Rector said that many people are confused about the YMCA's attitude toward religion.

"THE YMCA is not a Church," he noted. "We cooperate with all the churches through a program of Christian activity. We seek to develop young men's character through activity and the churches attempt to develop character through religion."

The present YMCA program includes discussion groups, intramural sports, conferences and retreats, and Search Week.

The YMCA Cabinet will meet Sunday at Camp Kiwanis, near Milford, to plan the activities for the coming year.
