Ribbons Cut; New Museum Dedicated

With a snip of the scissors, Gov. Robert Crosby concluded the Sunday afternoon dedication ceremonies for the new Nebraska State Historical Society building at 15th and R Sts. More than 400 persons attended the dedication luncheon and heard J. E. Lawrence, Historical Society president, present the building to the people of the state.

In his speech, Lawrence paid tribute to Daniel Garber of Red Cloud. Garber introduced the legislative bill in 1943 which provided revenue for construction of the building.

THE NEW building will induce students to become more familiar with the history of Nebraska, C. Y. Thompson, president of the Board of Regents of the University, said at the dedication ceremonies.

Thompson, who welcomed the Society to the University campus, said, "It will make them (students) more loyal Cornhuskers and give them faith and confidence in the future of Nebraska." Thompson said the museum provides an architectural and spiritual link between the University and the state capitol building.

English-born NU Student Renews Acquaintances

Valerie Hompes Says That England Has Changed Little In Five Years

Fading memories were sharpened and old acquaintances renewed for Valerie Hompes, a sophomore and member of Delta Delta Delta, when she returned to England this summer. English-born Val came to the United States five years ago and this summers visit was her first trip back.

Miss Hompes, who spent five weeks in London and the remainder of the summer in Leeds, found that nothing had changed very much—except that there, as here, prices were considerably higher. She reported that London, a modern city, resembles New York City except for the noticeable absence of skyscrapers. In comparison to Lincoln, Leeds her birthplace, is larger—about one-half million—and dirtier.

THE UNIVERSITY of Leeds, Val felt, is almost a twin to Nebraska University. Even the Student Union was much the same, complete with free Sunday night movies. Val attended a Saturday night hop at the University and found that "bopping" was the rage. She saw more jitterbugging in England than she had ever seen here, although the English students thought jive was the most popular form of dancing in America.

Val became acquainted again with the familiar British sights, from the soapbox orators in Hyde Park to the Queen and the royal family. She described the Queen as "fascinating" and the orators as "very beautiful, much more so than her pictures." English entertainment is about the same as American, with perhaps more emphasis on legitimate theater in preference to movies, she recalled. This especially pleased Val, who has a lead in "The Little Foxes" and is active in University Theater work.

away and 75 French musicians, her return trip proved exciting. Regarding the stowaway, Val remembered a nervous man who pulled a toothbrush from his pocket one day while reaching for a hanky. He jumped ship in Quebec; but the Frenchmen turned out to be fascinating friends.

Although the Frenchmen could not speak English and Val's knowledge of French was limited to a high school course, sign language and a few stock phrases enabled them to become acquainted. Part of the French National Band the musicians are making a three-month tour of the United States and Canada.

Val has already received a postcard written in French from one of them. Now all she needs is a French translator—or, "anyone have a French book I can borrow?"

Park Rated 4th In 3,200 Midshipmen

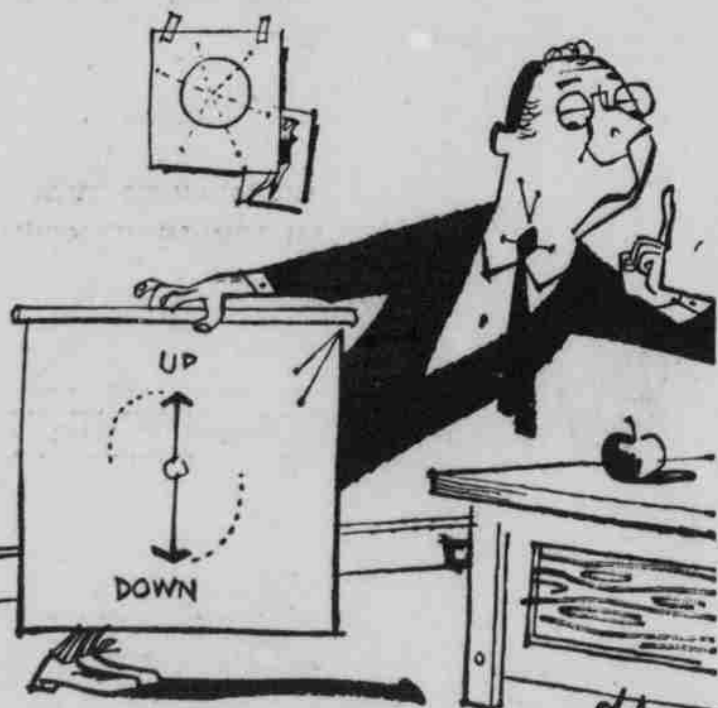

Eldon Park, University senior, ranked fourth among a group of 3,200 Annapolis and Naval ROTC Midshipmen during a training cruise to Brazil and the Caribbean this summer.

Park was rated by both fellow classmates, and regular Navy officers as outstanding in attitude, performance of duty, leadership, bearing and dress.

Capt. W. O. Gallery, commander of the University program, said the unit "was extremely proud of Park. This is the highest rating that a University student has received on a summer training cruise."

PARK WILL be commander of the University's naval battalion during the coming year.

During the six week cruise, Park served as gunnery officer during the first phase and assistant navigator in the second phase aboard the heavy cruiser Macon, one of 26 ships making up the task force.
