

Students To Rally Tonight As New Vote Of Confidence Fighting Attitude Essential—Clark

University students will rally tonight as a vote of confidence for Coach Bill Glassford and the University football team.

The special rally was called by the Rally Committee because of the undercurrent of student disension resulting with the Husker's football loss to Kansas State Saturday.

Faculty members and Rally Committee members described the need for such a rally as "urgent."

Kansas State beat the Huskers 27 to 0 at Manhattan. Following the defeat, signs appeared on University sidewalks and buildings saying "Goodbye, Glassford" and "Bye, Bye, Bill."

UNIVERSITY OFFICIALS, disturbed by this student action, believe a serious decline in team morale may result.

The special rally will begin at 7 p.m. at the Coliseum, continue on Vine, up 16th St., down R St. to the Union steps. There the entire coaching staff, football team and Col. C. J. Frankfurter will meet for the rally.

"The team is fighting for the student body, it's about time the student body returned the favor and started fighting for the team, either in victory or defeat. We've got seven games yet to play this season," said Marv Stromer, Rally Committee member.

"THE TEAM will play them, win or lose. The student body attitude is that we've already lost. We haven't, and we've got to prove that to the team and to ourselves," Stromer said.

George "Potsy" Clark, director of athletics, said, "We want every house, hall, dorm and co-op to turn out for this rally. They should unless they're ashamed of having men on the team who are members of their group. We've got to give that team something to fight for."

LLOYD F. KLINE, assistant athletic director, said, "Students must see the importance of getting in back of the team and coach. Football is like any other school activity. The students plan it and the students make it work; not just the students taking part but the whole student body pulling together."

Gary Hill, 1953 Yell King said, "We've got to make it up to the team for the raw deal we've given them by rejecting them for losing a game. They didn't try to lose and we act like they've deliberately offended us. We not only blame them but the coach too."

"THE COACH and team are synonymous throughout the football season and if one is not supported by the student body then the other will suffer. We as University students must support both team and coach in order to have a unified, working and spirited athletic organization," said Jan Harrison, another Rally Committee member.

"University loyalty has approached a crisis. Either the student body will rally to support its coach and team giving them something to fight for or we will continue to lack the fire and spirit to bring home winning football scores," said Danny Fogel, assistant Yell King.

SENNING, TATE DEBATE CHANGE IN LEGISLATURE BICAMERAL ELIMINATES LOBBIES—THONE.

BICAMERAL legislation versus unicameral legislation in Nebraska was the topic of a debate between John Senning and John Tate at a Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon Tuesday.

SENNING is the retired chairman of the political science department, and Tate is a member of the Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce.

SENNING, long a supporter of the unicameral legislature in Nebraska and a member of the original committee who drafted the plan for the present legislature in 1897, spoke for retaining the present unicameral system.

TATE took the side of the proposed return to the two party, bicameral legislature.

"IN THE state of Nebraska, the governor is like a general without an army," stated Tate. "There is no direct tie-up between the governor and the legislature, and the legislature is not responsible to him. Because of this, there is no cohesive leadership in the government."

IN REPLY to Tate's statement, Senning said the theory is unsound that a two-party system with both governor and legislature elected on a bi-partisan ticket will result in a closer tie-up. "The label of a party is no inclination of how a man will vote," said Senning. He pointed out that in Illinois, only three per cent of voting was on a partisan basis.

TATE ALSO mentioned that a two-party system would result in a more informed citizenry as "it is the duty of the opposition to point out the other side of the issue."

HE SAID it was the duty of a "loyal opposition" to make sure the public is informed of both sides of the question, other than lobbies are taking the place of party interests in Nebraska at the present time.

SENNING mentioned it takes seven days for a bill to pass through the legislature. Thone believes a 43-member legislature operates too fast to allow each bill to receive proper consideration, while in a bicameral it would have to pass through both houses.

HANSEN WRITES ARTICLE ON POLITICAL ISSUES. Comments On Truman, Clement Given

Dick Hansen, junior in law school, has recently written a political composition for publication.

THE ARTICLE, including comments and suggestions from former President Truman and Governor Clement of Tennessee, explains the position of young people in politics drawn from Hansen's six-year background of political experience and work with the Lincoln Young Democrats.

HANSEN, county Young Democrat publicity chairman, participated in the Kefauver surge for the Presidency and traveled through the south-eastern part of Nebraska as an advance scout of the Kefauver troupe.

THAT SAME year, Hansen also had his first "political nervousness" when interviewing former Gov. Val Peterson and perhaps his "greatest thrill" in drawing up a non-partisan bill designed to revamp the present Nebraska primary system.

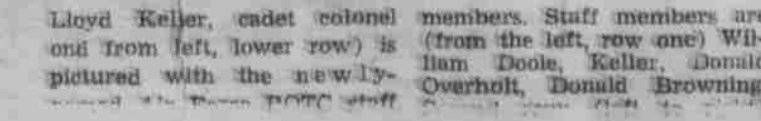

HANSEN authored the legislation which would do away with more or less nation-wide controlled delegates and would, in Hansen's favorite words, "let the people nominate."

THE BILL was defeated by one vote. Hansen hopes that it may be placed in the hands of the people under initiative proceedings.

HANSEN, A veteran poll-taker and political promoter, has currently tackled another bill—that of retaining Nebraska's unicameral legislature.
