Colbert Letter Names Educational Criteria

Dean Says Student Well-Roundedness Important

In a letter to the University student body, J. P. Colbert, dean of student affairs, set forth the principles which he believes to be the criteria of a college education.

Colbert listed four scholarship rules which will enable the University student to meet the requirements of graduation and endorsed campus activities as contributing to the rounded development of each student.

Colbert's letter reads: "The University is primarily a community of scholars, of which the greater number are students and a lesser number are teachers. Since the primary purpose of this community is the imparting and acquiring of knowledge and skills, it behooves both teacher and student to do his very best.

"By doing his very best, the student is rewarded with acceptable grades, with the satisfaction of a job well done, and eventually with the final stamp of approval, a degree. In order that the degree may be of value to the recipient, it is necessary for the University to require a certain minimum of scholastic achievement.

"Although most of you are familiar with the University's rules on scholarship, may I repeat them, particularly for the benefit of our newcomers. To begin with it is the obligation of the Office of the Dean of the Division of Student Affairs to see that students make normal progress toward graduation. To this end the following criteria prevail:

SCHOLARSHIP RULES ARE:

"1. The student is expected to be making satisfactory progress in at least twelve credit hours of registration at each reporting period, namely, at the end of the fourth week, the tenth week and at the end of the semester.

"2. A student is expected to maintain a grade average of four (4), or better, at all times.

"3. A student should be advanced from the Junior Division to the college of his choice not later than the end of this third semester of college attendance, including attendance at other collegiate institutions. To this end, he should familiarize himself with the requirements of his particular college.

"4. A student who fails to meet any of the above requirements may be placed on probation, or he may be denied the privilege of continuing in the University. A student who has been placed on probation, but continues to make unsatisfactory progress, is especially subject to dismissal.

"STUDENTS thus dismissed may appeal from the decision of the Office of the Dean of the Division of Student Affairs to the Faculty Scholarship Committee for a hearing regarding reinstatement.

"Life at the University, however, is not all work; although study comes first. Participation in athletics or campus activities and in the social life of the University will help to make you a well-rounded individual. Just as good behavior and good citizenship are expected of all individuals in a community, so is good behavior and good citizenship expected of those of us who make up the University.

"Please remember that intoxication, drunken driving, and cheating in schoolwork are serious offenses and must be dealt with accordingly by University authorities. Please remember that the possession of alcoholic beverages by a minor is against State law and is dealt with accordingly by the civil authorities.

"THE FOOTBALL season is under way and all of us will play host to many visitors from all over Nebraska. Let us conduct ourselves so that no one can accuse us of bad manners or bad conduct. The thoughtless action of a few can bring ill repute on all of us.

"In closing may I ask that all of you work hard when it is time to work, play when it is time to play, and above all boost for Nebraska and be loyal Cornhuskers.

"With best wishes for a happy and successful year, I am

Sincerely yours,
J. P. Colbert, Dean."

An exhibition football game will be played by two of the University intramural football teams at the penitentiary.
