Colbert Appointed To Danforth Group

Former Chancellor R. G. Gustavson named J. P. Colbert, dean of student affairs, liaison officer in connection with the Danforth Foundation graduate fellowships. The fellowships are offered to college seniors and recent graduates who are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1954, for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation is particularly interested in students of natural sciences, social sciences, humanities and other fields of specialization in the undergraduate college. STUDENTS WITH or without financial aid are invited to apply for the appointments which are primarily "a relationship of encouragement," carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions. All Danforth Fellows will participate in the annual Danforth Foundation Conference on teaching to be held at Camp Minnowanica in Michigan next September. The qualifications of the candidates, as announced by the foundation, are:

1. Evidence of superior intellectual ability in college.
2. Good record of health and emotional stability.
3. Outgoing personality and a concern for people which is essential for successful teaching.
4. Choice of teaching vocation as a form of Christian service.
5. Deep religious convictions and growing religious perspectives.

Horizons... Unlimited

In March, 1953, the Department of Defense disclosed the existence of the Chance Vought guided missile, the Regulus, designed under the sponsorship of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics for launching from submarines, surface ships and shore bases. In May, 1953, the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics announced that Chance Vought had won a design competition for a new Navy Day Fighter, it being selected as the design best suited for Navy requirements from designs submitted by eight aircraft manufacturers. This engineering work was added to the current Chance Vought projects, the F7U-3 Cutlass and the attack airplane, the A2U-1. Moreover, other research and development programs which will shape the aircraft designs of the future are being carried out at the present time.

These engineering projects offer excellent long-range employment opportunities in many fields of engineering and science as Chance Vought enters its thirty-seventh year designing and building military aircraft. Newly graduated engineers and scientists from the Bachelor to the Doctor's level will find interesting futures awaiting them in the design and production of these aircraft.
