

Ailing Kitzelman Left In Lincoln

Jerry Paulson Will Take Over At Guard For Injured Husker

By GARY FRANSEN
Sports Staff Writer

Another Husker is lost, at least temporarily. Max Kitzelman, the biggest of the Huskers at 230 lbs., was definitely ruled out of any possible action against Iowa State Saturday because of a reinjured ankle suffered during practice Wednesday. The giant Omaha guard will be left in Lincoln.

Replacing Kitzelman in the starting lineup will be Jerry Paulson, a two-year letterman who has seen only limited action this year. Outside of that the Huskers' opening lineup will be the same as in the Kansas game.

That means it will be Andy Loehr (180) and Bill Schabacker (180) at the ends, Ted Connor (220) and Jerry Minnick (220) at the tackles, Paulson (194) and Bob Wagner (195) at the guards and Bob Oberlin (200) at center. The starting backfield will consist of John Bordogna (180) at quarterback, Bob Smith (190) and Jon McWilliams (185) at the halves and Ray Novak (220) at fullback.

OTHER HUSKERS on the 35-man traveling squad which left Lincoln at 9:15 a.m. Friday included Jack Braley, Sylvester Harris, Don Hewitt, Dean Lux and Jerry Yeager, ends; Quinlan Anderson, Pev Evans, Bill Holoran and Dick Moore, tackles; Charles Bryant, Don Glantz, Jerry Korisko, Tom Kripal and John Machisic, guards.

Tedd Britt and Jim Oliver, centers; Dan Brown and Rex Fischer, quarterbacks; Max Kennedy, Dennis Korinek, Dirkes Rolston and Leo Scherer Jr., halfbacks; and Nick Adduci and John Edwards, fullbacks.

Coach Bill Glassford sent the squad through a light workout Thursday stressing the Huskers' pass defense, pass offense and defensive formations. After arriving in Des Moines early Friday afternoon, the Huskers will go through a final tuning-up at Drake Stadium.

QUARTERBACK BILL Plantan, the Big Seven's leading passer, will be the Iowa State ringleader as Abe Stuber's Cyclones, always tough in their own backyard, will be out to snap a seven-game losing streak to Nebraska. Others expected to cause the Cornhuskers some headaches are fullback Max Burkett and those two glue-fingered pass grabbers, halfback Gary Lutz and end Kim Tidd.

The tentative starting lineup for the Cyclones include Barney Allemen (190) and Tidd (190), ends; Ralph Brown (205) and Jack Lessin (213), tackles; Bill Wilson (188) and Gean Kowalski (187), guards; Jim Rawley (176), center; Plantan (182), quarterback; Lutz (165) and Dick Cox (184), halfbacks; and Burkett (190).

It will be the final home game for fourteen Cyclones as well as Parents Day at Clyde Williams Stadium Saturday. Officials expect a crowd close to 12,000.

THE CORNHUSKERS have had plenty of trouble during their last three games at Ames before finally winning out. In 1947 the Cyclones were leading 7-0 before two bad center snaps gave Nebraska a 14-7 triumph. In 1949 Iowa State had been getting the best of it although it was 0-0 before the fleet Harry Meginnis squirmed his way 70 yards in the rain and mud to give Nebraska a 7-0 win.

Two years later the Cyclones went into the third quarter with a lead, but the Huskers went on a four-touchdown assault in the next 15 minutes to win. Nebraska holds a 37-10-1 edge in the series which started back in 1892. In their last game at Ames the Cyclones startled everyone with a stunning 13-6 triumph over heavily-favored Missouri.

Gets Starting Nod

Big Seven favorite Oklahoma, whose only possible successors to the Conference throne are Missouri and Kansas State, is expected to sew up its sixth straight loop title Saturday when the Sooners battle Missouri on the Tiger field.

Missouri, beaten only by the Wildcats in Big Seven play, still has a chance of at least a share of the title, as does K-State.

THE CORNHUSKERS will be attempting to force the Cyclones into a cellar-spot tie on Ames sod this week. Other league contests pit Kansas State at Kansas and Utah at Colorado.

Nebraska passing ranks second only to Missouri in Big Seven comparisons. The Huskers have hit 43 of 96 attempts for a .477 mark. John Bordogna, NU quarterback, has connected on 38 of 88 tries, to rank second among league passers.

TOP PASSER in the loop is Bill Plantan of Iowa State, with 26 completions in 54 throws. Since the top two Big Seven slingers meet this week, the Husker-Cyclone tussle appears a possible aerial show.

Iowa State also boasts the second and third best pass receivers, Gary Lutz and Kim Tidd, who have carried 185 and 184 yards, respectively, with a completed pass. Colorado's Gary Knafelic leads the field with 305 yards, and Bill Schabacker of Nebraska is fourth with 168.

Lutz also ranks in a tie for fourth among Conference scorers. Leading scorer is Larry Grigg of Oklahoma with 48 points, followed by Wildcat's Corky Taylor (37), and Veryl Switzer (36).

BOB SMITH, starting left halfback for Nebraska, also has a scored 30 points to tie for fourth. Bordogna has 22.

Smith is second in Big Seven rushing, with 438 yards in 74 carries. Grigg leads the field with 538 yards in 76 tries.

Cyclone Bob Clark ranks second behind Homer Jenkins of the Buffaloes in punting averages. Jenkins holds a 43.2 average, while Clark's eight boots have averaged 38.1. Husker Ray Novak is sixth in this department, with 33.7 on 15 punts.
