

Search Week Discontinued; Religion-In-Life Committee Formed

Search Week will be discontinued this year. At a retreat Friday and Saturday, the University Religious Welfare Council decided against holding Search Week this year because in the past it has shown itself to be an ineffective program. The Council pointed out that although 100 students helped to plan the program's activities last year only 82 attended the opening convocation. The Council decided that it was futile to bring in speakers who did not reach any more students than those who attended the meetings. THE COUNCIL instead decided to use study groups and college religious programs to bring religion closer to the individual students. A Religion-in-Life Committee was appointed to replace the Search Week committee of previous years. The committee, composed of Phyllis Knerl, Marvin

Friedman and Barb Crowe, will work on the religious program which was suggested by students at the retreat. NOTED AUTHORITIES for each college course will be asked to speak in classes in the college and to tell students how religion fits into their college and future professional career. The various colleges will have these programs at different times probably depending on the date which is convenient for the desired speaker. The Council also hopes to organize inter-faith study groups. Twenty-seven such groups which have already arisen spontaneously will be asked to send representatives to a meeting to help plan a more unified program. Eventually the Council hopes to have at least one of these informal study groups in each organized house. STUDENTS AT the retreat formulated a three-point objective for each study group. First, each discussion should be planned around the Bible or theological problem by students who studied the problem and references concerning it. Religious workers will be available to help all groups who desire it. Second, every discussion should pertain to student life. Third, members of each group should apply what they have learned in the study group to their everyday life.

Sauter-Finegan Band 'Out To Meet Public'

Recording Stars Slate NU Stop By SAM JENSEN Staff Writer Parades, football, decorations and crowds may highlight the Homecoming activity during the day but the final word for this year's celebration will be left to two respected gentlemen named Sauter and Finegan. The two maestros who head one band will put forth music Saturday night from 9 to 12 p.m. at the Coliseum. Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Artie Shaw and Ray McKinley owe some of their most famous dance band arrangements to the former arrangers, now leading their own band. THE RCA-Victor recording stars will bring with them their 25 piece orchestra and many featured soloists, among them Sally Sweetland who was featured on the recent recording, "The Moon is Blue." Ed Sauter and Bill Finegan had been thinking of combining their musical talents for over 10 years when an executive of RCA-Victor gave them a chance to record "whatever they wished, sound unheard." Thus a new band issued its first sounds in front of a recording microphone and an outstanding new group was founded.

world in the recording field, they decided to get out and meet their public. They started their nation-wide tour late last spring and Nebraska is one of the many college stops. Sauter and Finegan received considerable acclaim at two of their most recent college stops, Ohio State and Oklahoma Universities. TWO QUEENS will be presented at the dance: Norma Lotrop, 1953 Homecoming Queen, and the newly elected Pep Queen. Awards for house decorations and floats will be given during intermission. Advance ticket sales are "doing quite well" according to Doran Jacobs, Corn Cob. Tickets may be purchased from Corn Cobs and Tassels or at the booth set up in the Union lobby for $3.60.

Cook, research associate with the Atomic Energy Commission, will discuss "The Rearrangement Collision" in Room 211 of Brace Laboratory Thursday, November 12, at 4:15 p.m. Tea will be served in Room 209 at 3:45 p.m. prior to Dr. Cook's speech.

Lab Play 'Room Service' Proves Fast-Moving, Funny

Ups And Downs Of Show Business Portrayed; Ken Clement, Charles Klasek Outstanding Actors

By DICK RALSTON "There's no business like show business." And there's no play quite like one written about show business. The University Laboratory Theater presented Tuesday evening the first of two performances of "Room Service," a three-act comedy written by John Murray and Allen Boretz. Directed by Bill Walton, the play was extremely fast-moving and funny; though it was obviously a "college" production. The plot deals with the frantic and frequently fraudulent efforts of a financially insolvent producer attempting to get his play opened.

Though he finally succeeds, his frustrations are the background for many raucous laughs. The entire action takes place in the producer's hotel room. KEN CLEMENT turned in the most creditable performance of the evening. His natural portrayal of the producer kept the play from bordering on slapstick. An equally good performance was that of Marvin Stromer, playing a blustery hotel executive trying to evict the producer and his cast. Jim Davis turned in a good performance as the manager of the hotel and Ron Becker, Jim Boling and Amer Lincoln contributed generously to the laughs as the director, assistant director and author of the show.

By far the outstanding supporting performance was Charles Klasek's portrayal of a Russian waiter trying to get a part in the show. Other members of the cast were Kay Barton, Margot Hunt, Ron Green, Gene Scranton, Skip Greenlee, Philip Weingart and Dennis Knopnik. Beverly Engelbrecht is production manager for the play. Stage crew members are Joyce Fangman, Jack Parris, Cynthia Longsborough and Gary Lucore, scenery; Margot Hunt, Janet Kauffman and June Bachman, stage properties; Carol James, Nancy Pratt, Sue Rohrbach, Darlene Hooper and Gene Scranton, hard properties; Jim Davis and Ron Breen, make-up; Beverly Engelbrecht, Margaret Rickel and Charles Palmer, publicity.

Four-Division Mental Health Program At NU

Students Urged To Use Services

"Mental Hygiene has long been a realized problem in universities and colleges of the United States, but only recently have departments been formed to deal with it," said Dr. William Brill, chief of the Department of Mental Hygiene, Student Health Services. Dr. Brill went on to say, "There are many problems confronting the student other than those directly connected with his school work. This department is concerned with these problems encountered with the change from youth to adulthood."

DR. BRILL, a graduate of the Indiana University College of Medicine, said that most of the work this year has been limited. "A great deal of their work has been with talking with students and giving them various tests," Brill said. "I became interested in this work when I was a student and realized that I had many problems other than those directly connected with classes and would have liked to be able to work them out with a competent person." Dr. Brill said. "I would like to urge a student who has any problems other than those dealing directly with courses to come in and talk them over. We hope to be able to do him a great deal of good."

ship with other agencies and departments of the University, is the third division. SDX To Urge Press Survey

University Delegates To Submit Proposal At National Convention

A survey of the conduct of the press during the 1952 presidential campaign will be urged by persons attending the Sigma Delta Chi convention in St. Louis, Mo., this week.

Members of the men's professional journalism fraternity will offer a resolution that a committee of the national fraternity investigate means of making a survey of this kind. LYLE DENNISTON, president of the undergraduate chapter at the University, said in a Nebraska interview, that the proposed resolution is the expression of the undergraduate chapter and not necessarily of the professional chapter. Dr. Nathan Blumberg, assistant professor of journalism and member of the professional chapters, said he wholly approves a resolution of this type and commended the undergraduates for their interest in the subject. "We expect the resolution to show that the press is not trying to shield itself from public scrutiny," Denniston said. "We hope the results of the survey will refute criticisms leveled against the press for alleged partisanship during the campaign," he said.

in Denver, Colo. Its purpose was to determine whether a survey of press conduct during the campaign was feasible. The committee report completed in early 1953 expressed the opinion the survey was not feasible. Representing the professional chapter of the fraternity will be Dr. Blumberg and representing the undergraduate chapter at the convention will be Denniston, Ed DeMar and Dick Reid.

DENNISTON SAID the action of the chapter at St. Louis this year will be a move subsequent to a resolution adopted by the chapter last May. That resolution seriously criticized the report of a national committee set up at the 1952 national convention

Byrnes, present governor of South Carolina, said he suggested to Truman that the nomination of White be removed and he recalled the discussion about it. Byrnes and Truman have become bitter political foes in recent years. In the 1952 campaign, Byrnes supported President Eisenhower.
