

Neighbors Claims Illinois As Home

Bandleader's Drumming Started With Grandfather's Tobacco Tins

By LOWELL VESTAL
Staff Writer

Bandleader Paul Neighbors, like most professional musicians, did not start at the top.

Neighbors, who will play for the Military Ball, Dec. 4, began his musical career playing a drum to the sound of phonograph records at a state fair. His father had bought him a set of drums because, as a child, he had sat in his high chair and pounded on his grandfather's tobacco tins.

NEIGHBOR'S FAMILY encouraged him and soon he was playing with bands in his home town of Verdun, Illinois.

"I'd get $5 for a job, give a dollar to another kid to drive me to work and set up my drums, keep a dollar for myself and give the other three to my mother," he said.

At the age of 16 Neighbors went to Detroit, where he played and sang with several bands before leading one of his own.

LATER, IN Los Angeles, he worked six hours a night, seven nights a week for less than $25.

In 1939, Neighbors joined a band in Hollywood. The band was fired after two weeks, but Neighbors remained. Two weeks later the second band was fired, and again Neighbors stayed on.

Neighbors asked to organize his own band and did so. His band stayed for a three-month engagement.

In 1942, Neighbors planned a long run as house band in the Palladium Ballroom, but he was called into the Army within ten days.

WHILE IN THE Army, Neighbors did not abandon music. He toured the world with a show called "Hey Rookie."

Since the war, and again with his own band, Neighbors has played in Reno, Las Vegas, Los Angeles and other cities in the South and West.

"How was the applause after your speech?" asked the fond wife when her husband returned after an evening engagement.

"Terrible," he moaned. "It sounded like a caterpillar in sneakers romping across a Persian rug."

An unexpected visitor broke the monotony of a Psychology 70 lecture Friday. Just as the instructor was expounding on experiments with animals involving learning and responses, a cat walked across the stage.

Said the instructor with a gleam in his eye, "This cat evidently doesn't know about psychologists."

NU Profs To Present TV Show

Program Scheduled For Monday Night

The seventh broadcast of "Trouble Spot," a weekly University program over KFOR-TV, will be presented Monday at 7:30 p.m. The trouble spot discussed will be the Suez Zone and Egypt.

University faculty members Dr. Leslie Hewes, chairman of the geography department; Wallace C. Peterson, economics instructor, and Dr. Carl J. Schneider, assistant professor of political science, interpret the situations of a political hot-spot each week. Background comes from recent texts, magazines, papers and their acquaintance with the problems of the different regions.

GERMANY, RUSSIAN satellites in Europe, Yugoslavia, Trieste, France and French North Africa were the topics covered in the past six programs.

Future programs will be: Iran, Nov. 30; India, Dec. 7; French Indo-China, Dec. 14; China, Dec. 21; Korea, Dec. 28; East vs. West, Jan. 4.

Ag Tri-K Club Named Winner Of National Agronomy Award

The Tri-K Club, agronomy organization at the College of Agriculture, was named winner of the National Agronomy Achievement Award Wednesday at the American Society of Agronomy Convention in Dallas, Texas.

The University was chosen for the award as the nation's "best student agronomy club" of 1953. Clubs were judged on the basis of student participation, club activities for the year, participation in the national essay contest and the crop judgment contest.

AN ENGRAVED loving cup, donated by the American Plant Food Council, was presented to the Nebraska club. Dale Nitzel, junior in the College of Agriculture, and Marvin Coffey, sophomore, represented the club at the convention.

Don Hanway, assistant professor of agronomy, is faculty adviser of the 50-member club.

The Tri-K Club was recently renamed the Agronomy Club to include the Soil Conservation Club. Officers are: John Stammer, president; Dick Wiese, vice-president; Art Kuhl, secretary; Rolla Swanson, treasurer; Nitzel, Ag Exec representative; and Howard Hall, reporter.

Damon Named Winner Of Drill Competition

John Damon, Infantry ROTC sophomore at the University, was named the individual winner of the ROTC drill competition.

Other finalists in the freshman and sophomore competition were Robert Jensen, Military Police freshman, and Darrel Degraw, Military Police sophomore.

In battalion competition, the Military Police placed first and the Infantry second.
