C.W. Rook, associate professor of electrical engineering, makes use of the electron microscope presented to the University by the University Foundation. The microscope, purchased at a cost of over $20,000, can magnify objects from 100 to 20,000 times. It is being used in research projects by University faculty members.

Powerful Microscope 'Bombards' Specimens

Electrons Give High Magnification

"The microscope opens a whole new field of study and investigation to the University," C. W. Rook, associate professor of electrical engineering, said of the new electron microscope purchased last year.

This instrument, purchased by the University Foundation for $22,000, is capable of magnifying an object from 100 to 20,000 times.

Rook is the only man on campus qualified to operate this complicated microscope. He went on to say that although it has this tremendous power, it can be operated on a standard current and needs no special electrical supply.

THE ELECTRON microscope is unique in that, instead of using light for illumination as do ordinary microscopes, it bombards the specimen with electrons, permitting the high point of magnification.

Rook said that the microscope is available to any department on campus but is used to a small extent.

W. E. Miltzer, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and C. E. Georgi, professor of bacteriology, are making use of the microscope in their study of bacteriological elements. It is also used in a study of plant viruses conducted by Ag College.

The microscope is located in Ferguson Hall. Anyone can see it by merely contacting Rook.

'Male Animal'

storm over the household, Tommy's wife Ellen asks why he wanted to read the letter and he replies: "Because it's a fine piece of English composition, and I'm teaching a class in English composition. An obscure little class." Pure Thurber and it was lost.

MOST OF the other characters are fairly stock but fun. Richard Marrs and William Klamm were ideally cast as the former All-American and the university trustee, both breezy extroverts who never permitted the action to lag for a moment.

Marrs' big scene where he explains the football game with dishes as players on the floor came off extremely well.

Again the arena theatre did not do justice to the final action of the scene when Tommy, whose presence is unknown, removes a teacup from Joe Ferguson's up-raised hand.

The comic situation was appreciated as the laughter testified, but some of us saw only the backs of the actors' heads.

Barbara Leigh as Tommy's wife does much to keep the plot moving, but it isn't by any means a role touched by Thurber's genius. To repeat, those who knew Thurber's drawings can recognize Tommy, but Ellen is not one of his females.

Both she and Ann Corcoran, enacting the role of Barbara Leigh's sister, brought the charm and good looks that are required. As a college girl type with a great deal of sparkle and vivacity and few inhibitions, I thought Ann Corcoran excellent.

Ruth Ann Richmond as Gwendolyn, the maid, received her share of laughs and the recognition was deserved.

New Fraternity Opens Exclusive Formal Season

Eight Attired In Tux's, Formals Eat Box Lunch En Route To City

By DICK FELLMAN
Staff Writer

The latest fraternity on the University campus, the first of a new hybrid variety, held an unusual field trip last week.

Omicron Epsilon Pi, a new organization, officially opened its own formal season. Since the avowed purpose of the group is to have a good time, they refused to wait for the normal social season opener—the Military Ball.

EIGHT MEMBERS, all highly regarded at the University, have formed the mutually inclusive and exclusive group. Many details of the new group are secret. However the members' names can be revealed, if they are listed in alphabetical order.

"We have no seniority over each other," one of the notable members stated.

In alphabetical order, as requested, the members are: Snooky Coryell, Frank Hallgren, associate dean of student affairs, Joyce Johnson, Cecilia Koehnke, Marshall Kushner, Shirley Ledingham, Stan Sipple and Van Westover, assistant to the dean of student affairs.

THE "OUTING" was held Nov. 20 when the group journeyed by train to the closest Midwestern metropolis—Omaha. Everyone interviewed spoke of the weird comments that passerby made as they saw the OEPi group en route. This was understandable, considering they were attired, rather inappropriately, in formal suits and tux's.

Nourishment was served in the form of box lunches. Each lunch, resembling "Fat Boy Elmer's" specialty, with one exception, consisted of one raw carrot, one piece of celery, one banana and one big, round cookie. Each course was taken, in turn, with adequate supplements between each delicacy.

ONCE IN the big town, the OEPi octette ventured a few blocks from the railroad station down to Caniglia's Pizzeria to partake of its famous speciality. After proving themselves gourmets, there remained but one stop.

They visited Angelo's, supposedly to see Nellie Lucher, then appearing as guest star. By this time, they had proved themselves more than gourmets.

THE ESPRIT de corps of OEPi is probably its most obvious trait. Beyond merely peeping up the normal mundane events of student life, (they consider them so) OEPi promises to do the University immeasurable good. It's a good thing it's immeasurable, too.

All eight members have pledged to stick together. Ostracism by the group would be a most terrible thing," one OEPi mused. "It must not be allowed to happen to any of the founders or founderesses."

On the agenda for the near future include such affairs as a balloon ascension, a feast of wild meat and others bordering on the unmentionable.

Returning to relatively quiet Lincoln, all participated in a bridge tourney.

CONCERNING FUTURE intentions, one OEPi said, "We have indefinite plans." As far as can be determined at this time, the group intends to participate in many worthy charity functions.

"We plan to send a CARE package to 'Strictly Kushner's' favorite 'amico in Italia,'" answered one of the members. "Seriously, though, we will help in some local charity drives," he added.

The ceremonies will be held at 4 p.m. in a local hotel. A banquet and program will follow the initiation.

Ting Lily, social chairman, announced that tickets are on sale at the Newman Club Center.

Yearbook Deadline
Cornhusker sales will close Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Cobs and Tassels may turn in their money at the Cornhusker office from 1-5:30 p.m. Annuals may be purchased from any Cob or Tassel till 5:30.

It was incorrectly stated in Wednesday's Nebraska that all money would be turned in at 5:30 p.m.

Father DeWitt To Speak At Newman Club Sunday

Father M. DeWitt, J.C.D. of Lincoln will be the featured speaker at the Newman Club initiation Sunday.

The ceremonies will be held at 4 p.m. in a local hotel. A banquet and program will follow the initiation.

Former Nebraskan Editor Tells Of Dramatic Interests

By SAM JENSEN
Staff Writer

"Nebraska revisited looks better than ever. I'm just as surprised at this as any reader might be," said Norm Leger, journalist turned dramatist and University graduate.

Leger, editor of The Daily Nebraskan in the spring of 1949 and a past Innocents president, is now "involved in the Circle Theater production of 'The Winslow Boy'."

He said that he is "enjoying this experience immensely. . . . rarely has it been my privilege to work with such a congenial and hard working director. Furthermore, all the years I went to the University I attended Circle Theater productions. I suppose you might say I'm finally getting a chance to undo a thwarted desire to act at the Circle."

THE FORMER Nebraskan editor graduated in 1949 and in the fall entered the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theater in New York City. He worked in summer stock and graduated from the New York school in the spring of 1951. He then engaged in another summer production.

Positions in dramatic production and a short tour on the New York stage where he "moved scenery" came up in the next few years. During his absence from the theater he worked for the United Nations and practiced his articularian as an announcer, disk-jockey and newscaster over a southern radio station.

HE SPENT the summer of 1953 in summer stock in Fayetteville, Pennsylvania, "just 20 miles from Gettysburg, which is noted, I believe, for some kind of warfare and a speech that got quite a bit of publicity."

After stock Leger decided to "return to Sterling, Nebraska, and pay the folks a visit. While home, not being able to put down impulses of ham, I got myself involved in the Circle Theater production."

When asked why an ex-Nebraskan editor should go into the theater, he answered, "I don't think The Nebraskan should take the blame. There are those who say that my term as editor saw more dramatic production in The Nebraskan office (and on the front page) than it did good journalism. This may well be true, and at this date I won't offer too hearty a denial."
