The Outside World

Wilson's View Optimistic

WASHINGTON—A military victory, rather than a negotiated peace, would be perhaps both possible and probable in the Indo-China war. In a news conference, Wilson was asked if he thought Indo-China would become another Korea.

"I see no reason to think it will," Wilson said. He was also asked if he thought aid to the French in Indo-China would have to be stepped up beyond the present program.

Wilson said he thought it was not necessary to "give aid at any higher level" at this time. Wilson added that there was no intention of sending American pilots to that area.

Reds Near Indo-China Capital

HANOI, INDO-CHINA—French Defense Minister Rene Pleven arrived Indo-China prepared to terminate Communist aggression. Red forces are at present within artillery range of Luang Prabang, the ancient capital of Laos.

Civilians of the Laotian capital, Buddhist monks, and King Sisavang Voag are prepared for battle when the Reds approach.

Tax Changes Probable—Butler

WASHINGTON—Congress will adopt most of the tax changes recommended by President Eisenhower in his recent budget message to Congress, predicted Senator Butler (R-Nebr.) Any disagreement between Congress and the President will be concerning minor revisions and will not slow down the process, he said. If Congress does adopt all the changes recommended by the President, there would be no disastrous effect on the treasury revenue, Butler said.

Benson To Speak In Omaha

OMAHA—Secretary of Agriculture Benson will appear before a "friendly" Farmers Union convention in Omaha tonight. There are few Farmers Union organizations which would welcome Benson since his reorganization plan was presented.

However, the Nebraska unit has supported Benson and his programs. Chris Miller, who heads the Nebraska unit, is a member of President Eisenhower's agricultural advisory committee and is an enthusiastic supporter of Benson and the administration's new

On March 2, 3, and 5, tryouts will be held in the Union Ballroom. On March 3, they will be in Parlors XYZ. There are 16 speaking parts and a dancing chorus.

In addition to the 16 speaking parts, there will be 32 in the singing chorus and 12 dancers—six male and six female. Three male Negro singers are needed.

Those interested should contact John Tolch, director of the show, at his office in Temple Building. Students who wish to check out a script for "Finian's Rainbow" should contact Al Anderson at the Phi Delta Theta house any noon. A deposit of $1 will be required until the script is returned.

"FINIAN'S RAINBOW" is a musical play in two acts. The music for it was written by Burton Lane, the lyrics by E. Y. Harburg and the book by E. Y. Harburg and Fred Saisy.

The plot revolves around Finian, a 60 year old Irishman, who knows that all Americans are millionaires because of the soil at Fort Knox. So Finian travels to the United States to bury a bit of gold near Fort Knox in order to become a millionaire.

Replica Of St. Peters Basilica Displayed In Lincoln

Basilica Required 3 Years Labor

The first true replica of Saint Peter's Basilica in Rome—known to many as the world's most beautiful church—is on display until Saturday in Miller and Paine auditorium.

It took Italy's foremost model maker, Attilio Savoia, and his son, Lucio more than three years of painstaking research to complete the model—including climbing over most of the huge Cathedral taking thousands of photographs, notes, and sketches for an accurate set of plans.

ACTUAL CONSTRUCTION of the model began in 1948 and required two years to complete. Upon its completion in the Holy Year, 1950, it was blessed by the Pope.

The replica of Michelangelo's greatest work is 15 feet long, nine feet wide and 8 feet high. To depict the stone and marble portions of the Church, the Savoias carved more than 400,000 pieces of beech, birch and cirmo wood in micrometric accuracy.

THE BUILDERS copied the Basilica even to its identical colorings. The grey weather markings found on the original building can be seen on the replica. Wherever metal was used in the original Church, built around Saint Peter's Tomb, the same metal was used in the Savoia model. The fountains were recreated in bronze, while the lights were fashioned from brass. The model is complete with electric lights, miniature fountains spouting water and a recording of the actual ringing of the bells of the Basilica.

THE REPLICA has been exhibited in Rome and other Italian cities. In September, 1951, Lucio Savoia brought the model to the United States for a nationwide tour. Lincoln is the last city included in the two and one half year tour of 45 cities.

Lucio studied five years at the University of Architecture in Rome. He gave up his studies to help his father construct the model, for the project required the lifesavings of the Savoias.

The exhibition, which contains a documented history of the two states and a collection of photographs, will be on display through April 26.

Coach Denies Grant Proposal

New Big Seven Scholarship Ruling Sets Higher Grade Requirements

Coach Bill Glassford told the Nebraskan today that he has made no proposal regarding grants-in-aid for athletes, except that the new Big Seven scholarship requirements be carefully used in screening new students entering the University.

The new ruling, raising scholarship requirements, was initiated the first of September and will go into effect at the University next fall.

UNDER the new requirements, students entering the University may be given grants-in-aid only if they rank in the upper two-thirds of their class. If the student does not meet this requirement, he may take a psychological examination. If he ranks in the upper half of freshmen students, he may be awarded a grant.

Glassford pointed out that any boy graduating from an accredited high school was previously eligible for a grant from the University.

STUDENTS ALREADY attending the University who apply for grants must have a four average and 60 per cent of their grades a four or above.

Glassford said that the requirement was actually higher than a four. "For example," he said, "if a boy takes 15 hours and receives a nine in two courses and a three in the other nine hours he would be ineligible. Although his average would be 5.4, he would not have 60 per cent of fours."

Glassford said he hoped the new ruling would raise the grades of athletes. The reason for the change, he said, was probably to give men an initiative to make higher grades in school.

However, he pointed out that the ruling would place a burden on the men, and that they would have to do a better job in school.

Glassford said a careful study of all high school seniors would be made before granting scholarships or grants-in-aid to insure that the students fell within the Big Seven requirements.

"Should there be any doubt in our minds as to the qualifications of the boy, we are going to require him to take the examination to see if he can meet the scholastic requirements."

Students in the Journalism 181 class were looking over the lists of meetings for the daily assignment, and discussing what sort of news would come up in the meeting.

One of the assignments was to cover a meeting of the Aerial Applicators. The instructor asked the students what they thought the group was.

As student raised his hand. "Is it a group of television aerial installers?"

(They are actually men who spray plants with chemicals from airplanes.)
