

AUF Charity Poll To End Saturday

Most Deserving Of Fifteen Groups To Receive Donations From Fund

All University Fund is distributing polls to students this week to students to give them an opportunity to help in the selection of charities.

Polls are being sent to organized houses and are available at a Union booth. The poll lists fifteen charities to which the students are to select the four which are most deserving of AUF help. All charities listed have first been checked with the Better Business Bureau.

Some of the charities listed are:

National Association for Mental Health, which aids in the prevention of mental illness and improvements in the care and treatment of those afflicted.

Nebraska Medical Association which contributes to the University Medical School for such things as scholarships and equipment.

American Friends Service Committee which sponsors a Korean relief program and an educational program in racial and economic relations.

THE LINCOLN chapter of the Community Chest is also represented on the list. The Community Chest supports wholly or in part 29 recognized private welfare agencies, including an eight thousand dollar grant to the University YWCA and YMCA. Also listed are:

American Foundation for the Blind, which is dedicated to the blind and helping them to adjust to a normal life.

World University Service which gave relief to University students abroad and foreign students here.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society, which supports a clinical and basic research in its field and other neurological disorders, is under the student's consideration. The Near East Foundation which demonstrates improvements to Near Eastern governments and then persuades them to adopt them, and the National Urban League which is a national social agency devoted to the employment, health and welfare of the Negro, are also listed.

THE NEBRASKA Heart Association aids in research and education for the control of heart disease, the nation's leading killer, and the National Association for the Prevention of Blindness which is dedicated to the prevention of blindness through research in blinding diseases are on the AUF poll.

American Cancer Society, which underwrites 14 tumor clinics throughout Nebraska, conducts research in oral cancer and grants for general research. Last year, the American Cancer Society received 20 per cent of the AUF proceeds.

TWO AGENCIES listed on the poll, the National Society for Crippled Children and the National and Lancaster County Tuberculosis Association, are not permitted to participate in fundraising activities such as AUF.

Last year, AUF divided its proceeds among four charities, giving 35 per cent to the Lincoln Community Chest, 25 per cent to the World University Service, 20

During a political science class discussion, the professor was vainly trying to explain the usage of the word "dissolve" in connection with a parliament being dissolved.

Finally he sought to explain the word with a simple illustration. Trying to get a student to use the word, he asked what happens to sugar when it is put in coffee.

Apparently misunderstanding his intention, the girl replied, "It makes the coffee sweeter."

Two NU Press Publications Given Awards

Two books published by the University Press last year were chosen as Top Honor Books by judges of the Chicago Book Clinic.

Books are "The World's Kim," by Hartley Burr Alexander, professor of philosophy at the University during the 1920's; and "Beyond Criticism," by Karl Shapiro, winner of the Pulitzer prize for poetry in 1945.

THE BOOKS were among 35 Top Honor Books selected from the 500 books submitted by mid-western publishers, according to Emily Schosberger, editor of the Press.

The 35 Top Honor Books will be on display in the fifth annual exhibit of Chicago and Mid-western bookmaking at the Chicago Public Library in May.

Books were selected on the basis of design intention; readability and attractiveness; illustration; production intention; printing impression and register; and binding workmanship and materials.

Proposed SC Constitution Brings Student Comment

Freshman, Sophomore Class Council Representation Advocated By Three

Should the class councils be enlarged to include freshmen and sophomores, and should female representation on these bodies be assured by a constitutional specification? Recent action by the Student Council to postpone action on the constitution submitted by class officers has largely centered around these two points.

Harriet Wanke Campbell, past member of the junior class council, didn't believe it "fair to just have junior and senior officers, as more representation could be gained by having all classes represented." As a result she said that "all classes would work together and school and class spirit could be built more easily." In connection with the addition of women to the council, she said, "this is necessary if you want University women to support the council."

THREE OF the four students interviewed were not too sure as to the exact function of the class Council. Among these was Carole Unterseher, sophomore in Teachers College, who said that freshman and sophomore class officers should be elected because "if this were the case, junior officers would not jump into class organization with cold feet."

"Better representation could be gained," she said, "and freshman and sophomores would feel they were more a part of the student body. Representation on the class Council 'shouldn't be monopolized by men,' she said, "and if the Councils are to be truly representative of the two Councils, both sexes should serve on the organizations."

"FEMALE REPRESENTATION on class Councils," stated Phil Wiske, Business Administration junior, "should be up to election by the student body, and not be caused by a clause in the constitution." He believed the freshman and sophomore offices to be "truly unnecessary" and could see "no reason" for their existence.

Gamma Alpha Chi Initiates Sixteen

istration student Randall Bixler said, "All students should have a right to participate in the governing of anything that affects them, and if this holds true of class officers, freshmen and sophomores should be represented. "More active participation by freshmen and sophomores in activities and University life in general could be another result," he said.

BIXLER DIDN'T believe it necessary to insist on female representation on the councils and said, "I don't think it is fair to control who can or cannot be elected in a constitutional provision, for election to office should go to the most capable person."

A motion to disapprove the constitution was tabled at the last meeting of the Student Council. The problem will probably be brought up at the next meeting after Council members have had more time to study the proposals.
