The Outside World

New Farm Program Announced

WASHINGTON—The new farm program under the Eisenhower administration would count present big surpluses of cotton, wheat and corn in fashioning future production control programs for these commodities. Points of the program were announced in an analysis prepared for a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing.

The provision for a variable price support formula under which prices for basic crops would be high in times of shortages to encourage production and low in times of surplus to encourage consumption is the main point of controversy. This plan would replace a present system of rigid, high-level supports which expires at the end of the year.

More Atom Bombers

LONDON—In order to guarantee peace by impressing "any potential enemy with the suicidal folly of aggression," a powerful force of atom bombers is being built by Britain, Prime Minister Churchill's government announced.

Britain's aim is to do everything possible to prevent war, but they wish to be prepared if it should come, said George Ward, Parliamentary Air Secretary.

Hawaii, Alaska Statehood?

WASHINGTON—The Senate will consider statehood for Alaska at this session after it acts upon the Hawaiian statehood measure, promised Republican Leader Knowland (Calif.). At the present time there is a pending proposal by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) to tie the two statehood controversies together for Senate consideration. However, Knowland and Republican leaders are opposing this because the House has already passed the Hawaiian bill but not the Alaskan.

Wilkins Nominated For Labor Post

WASHINGTON—J. Ernest Wilkins, Negro Chicago attorney, has been nominated by President Eisenhower to be assistant secretary of labor. This selection is subject to Senate confirmation. Wilkins would succeed Spencer Miller Jr., whose resignation is effective March 10.

White House Press Secretary James Hagerty said that this is the first time so far as they know that a Negro has been appointed to a Cabinet or sub-Cabinet post.

Wilkins, a native of Farmington, Mo., received his education in Illinois and Missouri and has been a practicing attorney in Chicago since 1924. He is a former president of the Cook County (Chicago) Bar Association. At present Wilkins is serving as vice chairman of the Government Contract Committee.

Students from overseas model the costumes of their countries at the 1953 Cosmopolitan Club Carnival. Over 175 students from 45 different countries will entertain at the fifth annual carnival Saturday.

Varsity Sportsmanship Discussed By TV Panel

Nebraskan Editor, Alum, Coach Disagree On Recruiting Policy

Various aspects of "Varsity Sportsmanship" were discussed Thursday by members of a panel discussion over KFOR-TV. They were: Sally Hall, editor of the Nebraskan; Bill Glassford, head football coach, and Daniel Bernd, University alum and former athlete.

The group discussed the possibility that athletic recruits from other states be excluded from the University, and that other states be encouraged to do the same.

DEFENDING the present policy of recruiting out-of-state athletes, Glassford asserted that "we must have something to attract people to the University." We must decide on what basis we wish to compete with other universities, he said.

Glassford added that "just because a boy has athletic ability" is no reason why he should be barred from the University.

Miss Hall suggested then that other colleges, such as journalism and home economics, should also go to other states to recruit students.

We must decide whether the purpose of the University is to provide education or public entertainment, Miss Hall emphasized.

BERND SAID that the attitude is wrong when "money is not paid out for developing leaders, but for providing a winning team..." in our University. He went on to say that the term "scholarships" is "wildly inappropriate" when used to refer to who are authorities on all subjects. "Self-appointed patriots," Beutel said, "are taxpayers who can hire and fire professors because they pay taxes." He cited the recent athletic situation as an example.

CIVILIZATION has flourished in areas of academic freedom, while examples of intolerance have ruined civilization, Beutel said. Some authorities, he said, have compared the decline of academic freedom in the U.S. to "beginning of Nazism."

Beutel gave examples of university administrators who failed to "protect their faculty," stating that many times where teachers were under attack, administrators had run for cover.

Because of a difficulty in defining truth, Beutel said, "it is the important duty of the professor to see that the facts are given impartially." A professor will be guaranteed academic tenure if he is "competent and fair in his teachings," he said. The right to be "judged by his peers" is a right that should be given instructors if their ability to present the truth is questioned, Beutel added.

Trouble from the public comes from ex-officio censors and self-appointed patriots, Beutel stated. He defined ex-officio censors as mainly "senators and editors."

Class Constitution Rejected By Council

Committee Named To Devise Substitute

The Student Council voted Wednesday to disapprove the proposed constitution of the All-Class Council and appointed a committee to work with class officers in preparing a workable constitution.

The constitution would enlarge the class council to include four officers of each of the four classes and would require that two women be elected for each class.

ELDON PARK, chairman of the judiciary committee, termed the constitution unworkable because the purpose of the class council was vague and the means for carrying out the purpose were inadequate.

Present at the meeting were Ted James, president of the senior class; Jim Collins, vice president of the senior class; Bill De Vries, vice president of the junior class, and Ellsworth Du Teau, president of the University Alumni Association.

The class officers defined the purpose of the council as being to increase loyalty to the University through encouraging class spirit.

Park pointed out that the University was too diversified and departmentalized to form an effective organization based on classes. He said that loyalty to the University could best be obtained by strengthening and uniting loyalty within the colleges.

MARY STROMER, member of the Council and junior class president, moved that a committee of three be appointed to work with class officers in forming a constitution that would be approved

Young Democrats Elect Don Searcy President

Eisenhower Criticized By Meadows

Don Searcy was elected president of the newly organized University chapter of Young Democrats Wednesday. More than 60 University students attended the meeting.

Searcy is a junior in Teacher's College. Other officers are Sandra Daley, vice president; Connie Gordon, secretary; Marshall Kushner, treasurer, and Don Waneke, historian.

DE MAR received a telegram from former President Harry S. Truman which read: "Congratulations on the organization of a Young Democratic Club at the University of Nebraska. Best of luck."

The club is operating tentatively under the October, 1951, constitution, which was approved at that time, by the Student Council.

Speaker for the meeting was Dr. Paul Meadows, professor of sociology, and former secretary of the Young Democrats of Lancaster County. Meadows emphasized the gap between "Eisenhower promise and Eisenhower performance."

MEADOWS ALSO said, "There are too many gumshoe artists of opportunistic compromise within the party—Eisenhower, who supported TVA during the campaign, now refers to it as 'creeping socialism.'" The growing disunity of the Republican party and the nation was emphasized by Meadows.

"Eisenhower's commanding personal prestige won the Republican victory," Meadows said.

Don Knutzen, state chairman of the Young Democrats, informed the group of clubs already set up in other colleges in Nebraska. He expressed a desire to set up an Inter-varsity Council to meet periodically so that the colleges could work together.

SEARCY NAMED the following committee chairman: Ed De Mar, publicity; Phyllis Kort, rally; Tom Henderson, membership, and Don Dworak, constitutional.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Union Room 313.
