High School

Music School Auditions Set For April 24

First auditions for high school students intending to enter the department of music next fall will be held April 24.

Auditions will be held in conjunction with the annual Fine Arts Festival, David Foltz, chairman, announced.

Auditions will also be given by appointment during the All-State High School Fine Arts Course, June 9 through 26.

FOLTZ ADDED that the University has removed all fees for applied music—piano, organ, voice orchestral and band instruments. University music students now pay the regular tuition of $80 per semester unless they are non-residents, then the fee is $160.

According to Foltz, the removal of fees—a new innovation in college circles—will make it possible for more talented and deserving high school and University students to consider majoring in music.

NU Students To Lose Campus Coffee Center

Days Numbered For Dirty Earl's

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of three articles concerning businesses frequented by University students which are to be torn down to make room for a new Pharmacy Building.

The days are numbered for The Campus Inn, familiarly known as "Dirty Earl's." "Coffee at Earl's" has become as much a campus tradition as Ivy Day or Friday afternoon clubs.

Approximately 2,000 coffee drinkers will have to find another congenial spot to relax between—and instead of—classes. The famous hot pecan rolls will become a legend, and Crib business will suddenly boom.

Despite the title, "Dirty's," the volume of business suggests cleanliness and good service.

Palladians To Hear Talk On Contemporary Art

Manfred Keller, assistant professor of art, will speak to the Palladian Society Friday at 8:30 p.m. in Temporary J.

Keller will speak on "The Roots of Contemporary Art." Barbara Freeman, music major, will sing several numbers. The meeting is open to the public.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY

"I didn't know there was such a job."

EMMETT SMITH, E. E., '50, never heard of telephone traffic work, but what he saw of the job intrigued him. He explains how it worked out.

(Reading time: 40 seconds)

Emmett Smith supervises operation of this training switchboard, which he originally helped to design.

"Communications have always been one of my main interests—in the Navy and at the University of Michigan. So I was very happy when the Michigan Bell Telephone Company invited me to visit their headquarters to talk about a job.

"In Detroit I had a chance to look at a number of departments, including one I'd never heard of before, the Traffic Department. I found that, in addition to the engineering of switchboards, its work involved the supervision and the actual handling of customer calls. It struck me like a wonderful opportunity to combine staff engineering and field management.

"My first impression was right, too, because my work covered both. First, I had on-the-job training assignments in several different kinds of offices—local, Long Distance, dial and manual. Then

I worked in engineering, translating estimates of future growth into the actual number of circuits and switchboard positions required.

"Now I'm supervising the operation of one of the boards I helped engineer. Briefly, my job is to see that my district gets the kind of equipment it needs and that what we have is functioning properly. Working with people is another major part of my job, too, because I serve in an advisory capacity to the supervisors of the Long Distance operators.

"Needless to say, I'm happy with my job. A job I didn't even know existed."

Emmett Smith's job is with a Bell Telephone Company. There are similar opportunities for college people with Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation.
