

State Fine Arts Festival Set For Friday, Saturday

Annual High School Event To Include 770 Students

More than 770 students will take part in the 13th annual Nebraska High School Fine Arts Festival Friday and Saturday.

Each high school individual or group entry performs before a University staff member and receives suggestions and criticism, both oral and written. Speech participants will receive ratings.

THE FESTIVAL is presented by the University departments of art, music and speech.

Dr. George R. Kernodle, professor of speech and dramatic art at the University of Arkansas, will appear in a University convocation in Love Library Auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday. His subject will be "Beyond the Footlights."

On Friday he will present a special critique of a one-act play entered in the Festival, and at 8:30 p.m. in the Social Science Auditorium will address the Festival teachers and students on "Acting: The Spit and Image."

DR. KERNODLE has directed more than 30 major productions, including ten plays of Shakespeare and four of Moliere in his own translations. He received his Ph.D. from Yale University.

The speech section includes dramatic and humorous readings, interpretative and original oratory.

The music section deals only with individual performers but includes both instrumental and vocal divisions. The work of art students is evaluated individually. At the close of the intensive schedule, the students will attend a Festival luncheon at the Union Saturday noon.

STUDENTS FROM the following schools will take part in the Festival:

Two Art Exhibits To Begin Tuesday

Two exhibitions will open Tuesday in the University Art Galleries. One exhibition will show the work of a faculty member and the other, color reproductions of paintings by modern and contemporary artists.

The paintings, prints and drawings of Mrs. Freda Spaulding, assistant professor of art, will be featured. Her work has been widely displayed in Midwest exhibits, including several national print shows. In the last year she has had showings in New York, Seattle, Philadelphia and Wichita.

A University graduate, Mrs. Spaulding holds degrees from the Parsons School of Design and the University of Colorado. Her exhibition will continue through May 9.

The second exhibition will illustrate the latest techniques in color prints. Sponsored by the New York Graphic Society, the exhibition will include many prints being shown for the first time in this country. The exhibition will continue through May 2.

Last Audubon Tour Set For Tuesday

"Little Known New Jersey," the final Audubon Screen Tour of 1953-54 season will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Love Memorial Library Auditorium.

George Regensburg will lecture and show colored movies. Included in the movies will be such items as rare orchids, crystal streams, birds of the beaches and other wildlife activity that makes New Jersey one of the most colorful states in the country.

THE MOVIES are designed to be highly educational and at the same time entertaining.

Audubon Screen Tours are sponsored on campus by the Extension Division and State Museum and the National Audubon Society. Single admission tickets are still available and cost 60 cents.

Art Prizes Awarded To 3 Faculty Members

Peter Worth, acting chairman of the art department, and Rudy Pozzatti, instructor, have been awarded purchase prizes at the Midwest Exhibition, Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha.

Thomas Sheffield, assistant professor of art, has been awarded a purchase prize at the Cranbrook Academy of Art, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Hawaiian Trip Awarded To Lucille Cypreansen

Letter Nets Prize In Hearing Foundation Contest

By BEV DEEPE
Staff Writer

A letter relating the profit a 7-year-old boy could gain from a hearing aid resulted in winning a two-week, expense-paid trip to Hawaii for the writer and a hearing aid for the child.

Dr. Lucille Cypreansen, assistant professor of speech and speech correction, understood that the cause of Ted Thomas' inability to learn and defective speech was his severe loss of hearing. She discovered when she applied amplification to Ted's ears that he could imitate normal speaking better and learned more quickly.

SHE CONCLUDED that a hearing aid would fulfill Ted's hearing needs. "So I sat down at the typewriter and wrote a letter to a hearing foundation sponsoring a contest to determine those who could best profit from a hearing aid."

From Miss Cypreansen's letter the company decided Ted was the one who could most profit from a hearing aid. Miss Cypreansen was awarded a two-week, all-expense paid trip to Hawaii with residence at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel or the equivalent in cash, approximately $2,000.

Miss Cypreansen said she would accept the cash instead of the trip because she plans to visit Germany in the future.

MISS CYPREANSEN teaches two classes in speech development and correction to foreign students for credit. During the interview, two German students stopped in her office to visit her.

Both laughed. Miss Cypreansen explained she was constantly urging her students to read the bulletin board, but to no avail. Before winning the prize, she had jokingly said that before she left for Hawaii, she was sure she would be safe in posting an announcement in very small letters: those wishing to join Miss Cypreansen in a steak supper please sign below.

Farm Problem Termed 'Acute, Controversial'

Nourse Discusses US Ag Situation

The farm problem is acute, controversial and at the sharpest stage of discussion at the present time, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, senior fellow of the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation and former chairman of the President's council of economic advisers, said at the first of a three-day lecture series in the Union Monday.

Nourse spoke on "The Farm Problem" and said that the problem belonged to "every family on the farm and every farm manager." He said the farm problem could be approached in several ways. The "moralistic" approach Nourse said, is that the farmer should have as good a standard of living as corresponding laboring classes and should have a good return on capital invested.

THE "MECHANISTIC" method is the formula or method of delivering the equality sought in the moralistic approach," Nourse said. He said that the first two methods should be set aside because they attempt to "take care of the farmer's problem as he is" and do not take into consideration his potential.

A "modernistic" approach, Nourse said, was the "modern analytical approach" and would put into effect "full employment of the national income."

"The government," Nourse said, "has never had a laissez faire policy with agriculture, but has used a positive, affirmative policy." He said that he did not think it was possible to have adjusting operations for all parts of agriculture.

HE SAID that it is not a "sound policy that takes all the burden of responsibility off the farmer's shoulders." Government support should come, Nourse said, when the farmer's problem stems from something outside of his capability to cope with.

A question period followed the formal presentation. Nourse said that he believed that Denmark should be permitted to market its agricultural products in Russia.

Filing Open For 1954 All-State

Summer Course Events Planned

Applications are now being taken for the annual All-State High School Fine Arts Course to be held at the University June 9-27.

The special summer session for high school students will include instruction in art, music, speech and dramatic art. More than 300 students may enroll each year, Walter E. Miltzer, dean of College of Arts and Sciences, said. Deadline for registration is April 28.

AS IN previous years' students will be housed in sorority houses and University dormitories for men. Meals will be served in the Union. Recreational activities will be supervised by a selected staff. Students will be entitled to University health services.

In art instruction, students will participate in drawing, painting and sculpturing. At the end of the course, the work of the students will be publicly exhibited. Instructors will be Manfred Keiler, assistant professor, and Cynthia Tanderup, assistant instructor.

Courses in band, orchestra, chorus, operetta workshop and ensembles will be offered in the department of music. Music students will receive five applied lessons in either vocal or instrumental music.

Directors of large groups will be: Donald Lentz, band; Emanuel Wisnow, orchestra; David Foltz, chorus; Ivan Caldwell, supervisor of music in Albion Public Schools, operetta workshop, and Gordon Flood, supervisor of music in Loup City Public Schools, ensemble.

The department of speech and dramatic art will offer courses in dramatics, debate, radio, choric speaking, original speaking and interpretative reading. Speech students will participate in the verse speaking choir. Students will appear as readers or speakers in speech recitals.

Other plans are: dramatic students will produce two full programs of plays; debaters will present a public debate on next year's high school question; radio students will participate in broadcasts over Nebraska radio stations and appear in telecasts over local TV stations. The verse speaking choir will perform in the final All-State speech and music concert.

Instructors will be: Maxine Trauernicht, dramatic and interpretative reading; John Tolch, dramatic and interpretative reading; Bruce Kendall, debate and original speaking, and Paul Schuppach, radio and choric speaking.

$100 Prize Contest Ends On April 20

April 20 is the deadline for the Phi Sigma Alpha essay contest. The political science honorary is offering a $100 prize for essays or research papers written on any topic within the field of political science.

All papers must be submitted to Robert J. Morgan, assistant professor of political science, by the deadline, in Social Sciences Room 104. Papers will be judged by a committee of members of the department of political science.

Any undergraduate in the University may enter the contest. Each essay must be between 3 and 6,000 words and typewritten in three copies.

Veterans under Korean Bill (P. L. 550) must sign their monthly pay vouchers immediately in Room 109, Temporary I, in order to be paid by April 20.

Young Democrats To Elect Officers

Young Democrats will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Parlor B, Union, to elect officers. All paid-up members, including new members who join Tuesday night, will be eligible to vote.

Candidates for president are Bea Beutel and John Olsen. Seeking the vice president post are Kay Nosky and Don Dworak. Marianne Hansen and Janet Gordon are candidates for secretary and Allen Overcash and Charles Beal have been nominated for treasurer.

A historian will be elected by the group from the four candidates that were not named to an office.

Pre-Med Honorary Initiates 11 Men

Eleven new members were recently initiated into Theta Nu, pre-medical honorary.

They are: Gary Bannister, Thomas Calvert, James Carson, Robert Haag, Roger Hutchings, Bernard Lee, Rudolf Link, James Rogers, Les Rivers, James Wengert and Duane Young. Dr. Eugene F. Powell, associate professor of zoology and anatomy, is faculty advisor.
