Hardin Takes Over Duties As NU Chancellor Today

Dr. Clifford Morris Hardin, former dean of agriculture at Michigan State College, officially took over the duties of Chancellor of the University today.

"It is difficult to say what my first official action will be," the chancellor said in a Summer Nebraska interview, "until I have a chance to become acquainted with the University better."

He expressed a deep interest in finding a way to meet University students personally and becoming friends with them. He said that he had thought some of doing this through University student organizations.

The friendly, somewhat quiet man outlined some of the things he considers important to the University. The heart and soul of a university is teaching, he said, and the number one qualification of a great university is that it must have good teachers.

"We must also have a strong research program," the new chancellor said, "and it should be developed in co-operation with the departments of the University."

HE SAID that intercollegiate athletics should form an enjoyable part of college life, and that he does not wish to see athletes either persecuted or coddled.

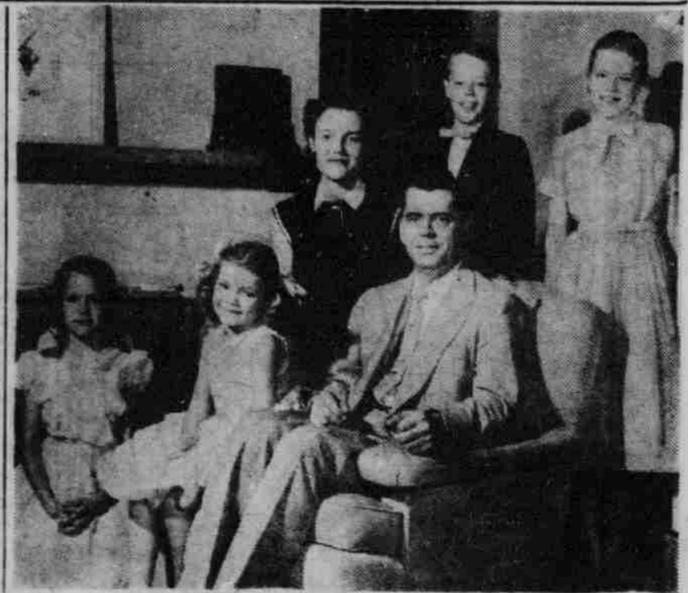

With Dr. Hardin were his wife and four children, a closely-knit group who joke among themselves and with visitors.

"I hope all women's organizations of the University use this home for their meetings," Mrs. Hardin said. She said that they also hoped to entertain students in their recreation room.

Dr. Hardin said that his new job would keep him busy and that there wouldn't be much time for leisure activities. "I don't play golf," he added with a smile.

"ACTUALLY, THE children are our hobby," the Chancellor's wife said. Their four children are Sue, 12; Cynthia, 6; Nancy, 5; and Cliff, whose eleventh birthday is the day his father takes over his new job.

The Hardins arrived in Lincoln Thursday and are almost entirely moved into the chancellor's residence.

Smart To Give Address At Religion Convocation, Englishman Author Of Eight Books

The minister of one of the largest congregations in west England and author of eight books will be guest speaker at the first Religion at Home and Abroad Day at the University Friday.

Dr. W. J. Smart, pastor of Taunton Methodist Temple at

Some of his books have been translated into German, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, and parts into Japanese and Chinese. His book on London during World War I brought him an invitation from the United States to tour the states lecturing on London in wartime.

The Rev. Smart will spend six weeks in July and August occupying the pulpit at Pearl Memorial Methodist Church in Omaha, in an exchange arranged by the Methodist World Council. The pastor of Pearl Memorial Methodist church, the Rev. Glen W. Marshall, will preach at the Methodist Temple in Taunton during the same period.

Union To Sponsor 'King Richard II'

"King Richard II," a kinescope television production of Shakespeare's famous drama, will be presented Thursday, July 8, at 8 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

The Maurice Evans-NBC production is sponsored by the Union as a special addition to the summer artist series. It is the first major live television production to be made available for educational distribution.

MAURICE EVANS is the producer and star of the two-hour film which received favorable comment from critics and viewers at its initial presentation over the Hallmark Hall of Fame.

Teachers Discussion

Members of a Teachers College Conference panel ask questions of William E. Hall, (standing) professor of educational psychology and measurements, who spoke at the second and general session of the conference. Panel members are (l. to r.) Walter K. Beggs, (hidden by speaker) professor of school administration; Sam Dahl, dean of Wesleyan University; W. C. Meierhenry, associate professor school administration; Charles Ford, editor-in-chief of Compton's Encyclopedia, and Florence Jenkins, instructor at Lincoln High School. Story of conference on Page 4.

Second Public Affairs Clinic To Feature Pakistan Diplomat

The Pakistan ambassador to the United States, Syed Amjad Ali, will be featured in the second All-University Public Affairs Clinic scheduled for July 12.

Because of the large attendance at the last clinic featuring Nebraska's Representative Carl Curtis, the clinic will be held in the Union Ballroom at 8 to 10 a.m. instead of Love Library Auditorium.

AMJAD ALI came to Washington in February of 1953 to represent his country's interests in the U. S. Emergency Wheat Aid to Pakistan. His mission was completed when President Eisenhower signed the bill on June 25, 1953. He has been ambassador since his return to the United States last September.

The 45-year old statesman first entered diplomatic life in 1949 when he was appointed Minister of Economic Affairs at the Embassy of Pakistan in Washington. Since then he has been active in United Nations affairs, having served as chairman of the Social, Humanitarian, and Cultural Committee and as president of the Economic and Social Council of that organization.

In 1952 he was elected to a committee of nine experts appointed by the U. N. Secretary General to draw a plan for an International Fund. In 1950 and 1952 Amjad Ali took a leading part in the activities of the International Bank and Monetary Fund meeting in Paris and Mexico City.

He led the Pakistan delegation to the International Cotton Committee and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the U. N.

In his own country he devoted his time, without salary, to the Pakistan Industrial Development Corporation, a state-financed concern currently underwriting projects costs $75 million.

Tolch Names Summer Play; Tryouts Set

John Tolch, director of the University Theater's summer play, has announced that "The Glass Menagerie" will be presented at 8 p.m. in Howell Theater July 27 and 28.

The drama was written by Tennessee Williams, author of "The Rose Tattoo" and "Streetcar Named Desire." "The Glass Menagerie" is one of the most popular modern shows and one of the best plays of recent years," Tolch stated.

THE STORY is about a family who evades the realism of the present and lives in the glorious, but dead, past.

Tryouts for the play will be held Tuesday in Temple Room 210 from 2 to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Tolch urged all interested persons to attend the tryouts. He suggested that those unfamiliar with the play should read it before trying out. Persons unable to attend tryouts Tuesday should contact Tolch at University extension 3267 before Tuesday.

Phi Delta Kappa

Phi Delta Kappa, men's educational honorary, will hold a luncheon meeting at 12 noon, Tuesday, July 6, in the Union.

Ralph Brooks, superintendent of schools at McCook will be the speaker. Tickets are $1 and may be purchased in Room 312, Teachers College, through July 3.
