Chancellor Hardin Reviews University Policy On Drinking

Tells IFC 'Not Beginning Moral Crusade'

Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin reminded members of the Inter-Fraternity Council of existing regulations concerning student use of alcoholic beverages Thursday afternoon.

The reminder came on the heels of a statement entitled "University of Nebraska Policy on Student Use of Alcoholic Beverages," released by the Chancellor and Board of Regents. The message, distributed to organization presidents Thursday, was compiled by an administrative-student committee which has met several times since the beginning of the school year.

In his talk, Dr. Hardin noted the statement was not the beginning of a moral crusade, but a matter of policy. He noted that his summer travel throughout the state and conversations with parents of students and prospective students had resulted in some disturbing comments regarding drinking on the University campus. Hardin said comments of this type had also reached members of the Board of Regents, who decided to take action on the matter.

"Comments Mostly Rumor" The Chancellor said that many of the comments were based solely on rumor which had become exaggerated, though others were based on fact. He noted some parents had decided not to send their children to the University on the strength of these stories.

Dr. Hardin said University organizations of all types were receiving the printed statements and he and several other administrative officers were making personal explanation of the rules on alcoholic beverages to groups other than IFC.

By bringing student attention to the existing rules concerning drinking, the Chancellor said, the administration hopes to gain the cooperation and support of a responsible segment of the University population in removing the causes of the rumors which have disturbed Nebraska parents.

"Actually," Dr. Hardin noted, "the number of student violations is quite small when compared to the total enrollment. Many of the bad impressions about the University campus result from the few students who do break the rules about alcoholic beverages."

Questions Answered After the Chancellor's talk, the floor was opened to questions concerning the Policy. Dean of Student Affairs J. Philip Colbert, Associate Dean of Student Affairs Frank M. Hallgren, Administrative Assistant to the Chancellor Bruce Nicoll and Dr. Hardin explained the administrative view on specific instances. Listed below are some of the questions and their answers:

Question: What about private parties held in Lincoln homes where there is drinking?

Answer: So long as the party is sponsored by individuals for individuals and not by an organization for the entire organization, the University has no jurisdiction over them, though this type of thing is discouraged. This would apply only in cases where parties are held off the campus.

Question: What about drinking at parties sponsored by organizations, i.e. fraternities, sororities, clubs, etc.?

Answer: University regulations strictly prohibit drinking at parties of this type whether on or off the campus.

Question: What will happen to organizations guilty of violations of the University Policy?

Answer: Presidents of the organization involved will be called in for a conference with the administration. There is no set punishment for breaking the rules; each violation is considered on the individual characteristics of the violation.

University Policy

The University of Nebraska has a legal and moral responsibility to uphold the will of the people of the state of Nebraska as expressed in those provisions of the state constitution, and in statutes enacted by the legislature, which are pertinent to the operation of this institution.

The legal responsibility for the government of the University is vested in the Board of Regents by the state constitution, by statutes and by legal decisions. The moral responsibility is rooted in the very nature of the University: An institution devoted to the training of young men and women in the various arts and sciences, and dedicated to arousing in its students an acceptance of those moral and spiritual values which constitute the fibre which binds us together in a society seeking to clearly establish the basic dignity of man.

Within its jurisdiction, the University unequivocally upholds state laws which forbid (a) consumption of liquor on public roads, streets, or alleys; (b) purchase or acceptance as a gift of liquor by minors; (c) misrepresentation of age or identity by minors to obtain liquor; (d) possession of liquor by a minor; (e) possession and consumption of liquor on property owned by the state of Nebraska; and ordinances of the city of Lincoln relative to the purchase and consumption of liquor, including operation of a vehicle while drunk.

The University is unequivocally opposed to (a) any sanction of use of liquor in violation of state law and city ordinances; and (b) for the use of liquor at any social event.

The University must, therefore, accept the responsibility for exercising such disciplinary measures (up to and including expulsion) for offenses against state laws, city ordinances and University rules even though offenders must also suffer prosecution by civil authorities.

Destine has been acclaimed as the greatest dancer-choreographer. In recognition of his achievements in promoting an appreciation of the native folk art of his country throughout the world, he was recently awarded the Legion of Honor, the highest honor his country can bestow.

Roy Keenan and Carol Newell of the Union Music Committee are in charge of the program. In addition to the booth in the Union, tickets may be purchased from members of Orchestras and from all dance students, the week preceding the performance.

Fleeson Predicts Outcome For Congress, McCarthy

Predictions of a Democratic majority in Congress after the fall election and censorship of Senator Joe McCarthy by the Senate were made by Doris Fleeson, Washington columnist who discussed current national politics at a University convocation Wednesday.

Miss Fleeson feels that it will not make a great deal of difference to Eisenhower if a Democratic majority is elected. The Democrats will support Eisenhower's foreign policy, of course, because it is merely a continuation of the Truman policy, she added.

Mrs. Fleeson described Eisenhower's administration as a "rolling readjustment."

President Dwight Eisenhower, she said, has been a weak administrator, who, by deliberate choice, leans on his party. He has been used to being an executive of a policy and not the instigator of one, she continued. Miss Fleeson feels, however, that the people want a strong president whom they can feel is their champion.

Farm Program Issue Probably the most outstanding single issue, she said, will be economic-unemployment and decreasing farm income. The farm program has had no fresh, creative thinking in the past few years, she said, adding that we must decide for ourselves if we are to consider farming as a way of life or an industry.

"This is the first time in many years we have had a businessman's administration," Miss Fleeson stated. Businessmen who have been appointed to top jobs are finding out that "bureaucrats work like dogs," she continued. Naturally the government is much more favorable to business, she added.

McCarthyism Felt "The effects of McCarthyism will be felt by the people for a long time," Fleeson declared, "for he has taught us to distrust each other." Because of McCarthyism, many Southern and conservative Democrats who supported Eisenhower are returning to the Democratic ranks, she said.

Miss Fleeson said that although Adlai Stevenson is now the front runner for the Democratic party presidential nomination, the election is still two years off. There will be other ambitious people who will be struggling for control of the Democratic nominating machinery, even though Stevenson has a personal following and is a great spokesman for the party, she continued.

The Outside World

French Premier Warns 'Assembly' French Premier Mendes-France presented the nine-nation London agreement on German rearmament to the French National Assembly with a warning that "the time has passed when German rearmament is inadmissible."

Mendes-France stood by while the Assembly rejected the European Defense Community plan, but now he is expected to stake the life of his government on approval of the London agreement which restores sovereignty to West Germany and provides for rearmament.

"Can we retreat into isolation and allow German rearmament without limitations or controls?" Mendes-France demanded.

Molotov Spurned Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's proposal to withdraw occupation forces from Germany and to bid for four-power talks on unifying Germany were spurned by Adenauer's government and by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden Thursday.

A French Foreign Office spokesman said the United States, Britain and France would listen to constructive Russian proposals on Germany, but that no such proposals had been found in Molotov's speech Wednesday night.

Dean and Mrs. Bert Hooper, Mrs. Earl Fullbrook, Mrs. George Ernst, Mrs. William Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Marvel Baker, Dean and Mrs. Joseph Burt, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Nicoll.

Ike Adds Speech

President Eisenhower had decided to increase his personal campaign for the election of a Republican Congress in November by making at least one more major political speech than he had planned, Vice President Richard Nixon said Thursday.

Nixon said he had conferred with the President on the political situation and had told him that if the party "continues vigorous campaigning" it will win continued control of the house.

However, information sources close to the President suggest House Majority Leader Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind.) told Eisenhower the Republican party is locked in this year's congressional race—barring the occasional miracle.
