Statistics Mean Little When Huskers Play CU

By MAX KRIETMAN Sports Staff Writer

Football fans, throw away the statistics and record books, for the Nebraska Cornhuskers and Colorado Buffaloes meet again. Each year when the two elevens have met, the Buffs have always been heavy favorites at game time and each time the game has turned out different. Take last year. The Buffs were riding on the strength of three straight wins when they came to Lincoln. The final score ended 14-10, the Buffs edging Nebraska in the final period.

Thirteenth Meeting

This will be the thirteenth meeting between the two elevens, NU winning six, losing five, and the 1952 clash ending in a 16-16 deadlock. This season the Buffs are undefeated, having been scored upon by only Arizona in four contests. They have rolled over Drake, Colorado A&M, Kansas, Arizona and Iowa State. This game will be a must for the Cornhuskers, as a Colorado loss will give them two setbacks in conference play. If the Nebraskans could pull an upset, it will leave them in a good position for their coming game with Missouri the 30th of October. On the other hand, a CU victory would put them in the driver's seat for their all-important battle with Oklahoma the following Saturday.

Sooners Still Supreme

Oklahoma again has dominated the Big Seven. The Sooners have yet to be beaten in six years of conference play. The Oklahomans opened their season by downing the California Bears 27-14, T.C.U. was next on the schedule, and Bud Wilkinson's eleven edged the Horned Frogs, 20-14. It was in this contest that the TCU captain claimed he dropped the ball, when the referee said he caught it. His act of good sportsmanship cost the Texans a touchdown and a possible upset of the Sooners. Powerful Texas hosted the Oklahomans in their third game, and the Sooners gained their third win of the year 21-20. It was in this game that Gene Calame, star Sooner quarterback, was injured and sophomore Jack Harris was forced into action. The rookie quarterback had a hand in all three Oklahoma touchdowns, scoring one, passing for another, and guiding the team to the third score. Last Saturday they opened their league play, overwhelming Kansas 65-0. This was the worst defeat in the history of the OU-KU series, and one of the worst scores in league history. The Big Red gained 536 yards rushing and 72 yards in the air, while holding the Jayhawks to a mere 56 yards rushing and 27 yards passing. Even though they will not be able to go to Miami, I predict that they will finish the year unbeaten.

Tigers Not Out

Along with Colorado, the other eleven who will fight it out for the Orange Bowl will be the Missouri Tigers. The Tigers have a 2-2 record for the year and a 1-0 mark in conference play. They opened their campaign, bowing to the Purdue Boilermakers 31-0, but followed it with a win over the Kansas State Wildcats 35-7. SMU downed the Tigers 27-0, and the Missourians rolled over the Indiana Hoosiers last Saturday, 20-14.

They have a veteran backfield, featuring their passing quarterbacks Tony Scardino and Vic Eaton. Scardino is a senior, having made a big name for himself as a freshman, leading the conference in passing. He was shelved most of his sophomore year with a broken arm, and played behind Eaton last year. Jerry Schoonmaker is the other backfield veteran along with all-Big Seven fullback Bob Musgrave.

Tough Assignment

Along with the Cornhuskers, another team with an outside chance will be K-State. The Wildcats are currently tied for second place with NU. The 'Cats have an identical 1-1 mark in the league, and their Saturday meeting will almost have to be a must. A loss would put them two down, with Missouri and Colorado left to play.

I-State and Kansas are definitely out of the running. Both elevens have lost in conference only, the Cyclones to NU, and Kansas to Colorado and IS.

Predictions

My predictions in the Big Seven for this week are: Missouri 22-Iowa State 0—Too much Scardino and Eaton for the Cyclone defense. Kansas 0-SMU 21. The Jayhawks have yet to muster an offense, and the Mustang contest will be no time to start. Oklahoma 27-Kansas State 7. Taylor of KS will not be able to match the over-all strength of the Sooners.

Colorado 20-Nebraska 14—The difference will ride on the backs of Hardy, Barnardi, Jenkins, and an unknown back named John Bayuk. (BYE-ook). Remember that name. He is leading the nation in rushing.

Lutheran House scored touchdowns in the first and third quarters to beat Phi Si C, 13-2. Vern Johnson intercepted a Phi Psi pass in the first period and ran for the first Lutheran score. The other TD came in the third period when Jeff Friede passed to Dick Johnson. A bad Lutheran center in the same period led to the Phi Psi safety.

The Betas scored twice in the final period of play but their rally wasn't enough as they were edged by Sigma Phi Epsilon, 14-12. In other games the Clippers trounced Presby House, 26-7. Anacia edged Pioneer, 7-6 and the Phi Gams edged Sigma Nu, 12-7.

ATO scored two TDs in the fourth quarter but were still beaten

Lineman Charley Bryant Shines On Gridiron, Mats

Clark, who gathered in the pigskin and headed down the sidelines. At the Husker 45 Clark was hit and lost the ball. A big lineman grabbed it and continued down the field, getting to the Wildcats' 17 yard line before being brought down.

But the run, which put the Huskers within easy scoring distance of the goal, was nullified by a clipping penalty back in Nebraska territory. The penalty put the Cornhuskers clear back to their own 12 yard line. This was the big break of the ball game, for had the run been allowed, Nebraska would have had possession deep in K-State territory and would probably have scored to ice the game.

It Was Charlie

The hero of the play was Charley Bryant, 195 pound lineman who always seems to turn up in the right place at the right time.

Bryant, a senior, plays left guard on offense and linebacker on defense. He first lettered in 1953, and this year turned out to be one of the roughest and hustlingest linemen in the conference.

Grappler Also

Charlie is also a member of the Husker wrestling team. He has lettered in that sport twice—both times in the 167 pound class. This year he has added some weight and will be vying for the Big Seven heavyweight crown.

Bryant was born and raised in Omaha, where he attended South High School. At South, Charlie was an all-round athlete, lettering three times in football and once each in wrestling, track, and baseball. During his senior year in high school, Bryant was chosen All-City and All-State guard in football, won the Missouri Valley Conference heavyweight wrestling championship, and qualified for the State Track Meet in the mile. In addition to this, he was a top-flight catcher on the South baseball team.

Charlie is majoring in Industrial Arts. He plans to go into the coaching field after he serves his hitch in the Army. If he coaches as well as he plays, Charlie Bryant is sure to turn out good football teams wherever he goes.

Rodeo Club

The Rodeo Club will hold a regular business meeting in the Ag Union at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Jim Peters is president of the organization.

Season Record Even

Huskers Smear Oregon State; Spirit High For Colorado Tilt

By "COKE" FRIEDMAN

Nebraska's seldom used threat, the pass, led the Scarlet and Cream of NU to a convincing 27-7 romp past the Beavers of Oregon State.

The Cornhuskers scored twice via the air lanes, and set up a third touchdown by passing. The scoring passes went from Don Erway to Bill Giles, and from Harry Johnson to Dirkes Rolston.

The first period seemed to be a re-enactment of the previous games as Nebraska lost the ball twice on fumbles while deep in their opponents territory.

Korinek Runs

Denhis Korinek set up the first Husker touchdown by returning an Oregon State punt 45 yards to the O-State 23. On the next play, Erway and John Edwards, full-back, combined to present a beautiful faking act, with Erway keeping the ball and passing to End Bill Giles who took the pass on the five and went over standing up.

Nebraska's next touchdown came in the third quarter with the Huskers marching 76 yards in six plays for the TD. Three passes, Greenlaw to Andy Loehr, Greenlaw to Clark, and Clark to Greenlaw accounted for 55 of the 76 yards made during this drive. On the next play Bob Smith bullied the remaining 15 yards for the second touchdown.

Edwards Rambles

After Oregon State had scored their only TD of the game, the Huskers came right back. On probably the most exciting play of the game, John Edwards went 84 yards to pay dirt. A couple of nice blocks helped John along the way.

On what Coach Bill Glassford stated as the best executed play of the game, Dirkes Rolston scored the fourth and final Nebraska six point as he caught a pass from Halfback Harry Johnson who had in turn taken a pitchout from quarterback Don Erway.

Although the Nebraska passing attack looked great, it should be noted that Oregon State had next to nothing in pass defense. With left handed throwing Willie Greenlaw in the first lineup the team presents a formidable offense.

Coach Glassford didn't cite any one particular player for special praise, but rather gave praise to every one of the 45 players who got into the fray.

Fisher Ready

The return of quarterback Rex Fisher, who has been out all year with a leg injury should bolster the offense of the Huskers. Although he will not start, Fisher, if he is in physical shape, will probably see plenty of action.

The Cornhuskers venture to Boulder, Colorado to play the Buffaloes this week-end. The Buffs are so far undefeated after having played Drake, Colorado A. and M., Kansas, and Arizona. An interesting point of this game should be the line play of the Buffs against the line play of the Huskers. The Colorado team is one of the top teams in the country in total offense, and possesses the leading rusher from scrimmage in the person of 221 pound John Bay. They also possess a boy who was picked on many pre-season All-American teams. His name is Carroll Hardy, and he runs, passes, and kicks equally well.

The main thing the Huskers have to work on this week in preparation for the Nebraska-Colorado game is defense.

Single Wing

Colorado is the only team that

Nebraska meets all season that runs from the single wing. The last time a Husker team played a team that used the single wing was last year against the same Colorado Buffaloes. The Buffalo single wing includes both power and deception which, when combined together are very hard to stop.

A large group of Nebraskans are expected to be at the game and should incite spirit into the Huskers.

Dan Brown, senior quarterback from Sioux Falls, S. D. was selected by Coach Bill Glassford to be game captain for this Saturday's game.

Nebraska should be at almost full strength as no one was seriously injured against Oregon State. The Huskers season record is now 2 wins against 2 losses.

Erway To Giles

A well executed pass play from quarterback Don Erway to end Bill Giles led to the first Cornhusker touchdown against the Oregon State Beavers last Saturday. Both Erway (left) and Giles played outstanding defensive ball. Erway intercepted a Beaver pass and ran for a TD only to have it called back because of a Husker penalty. Giles broke through the State line from his end position to partially block a kick. Giles is a senior while Erway is a sophomore.

Touchdown Triplets

got into the scoring act last Saturday against Oregon State. Fullback Smith bulled his way over the goal line for the second NU score while Edwards rambled 84 yards for the third Husker tally. Halfback Rolston hauled in a pass from Harry Johnson for the final touchdown in the fourth quarter.
