United Nations Visited

Times Square, Broadway's Lights Viewed By Students

By LUCIGRACE SWITZER Staff Writer

Times Square and Broadway, 70 cent coffee at the Astor, Sarah Vaughn at Birdland and, oh yes, the United Nations all combined to convince the 24 students on the YWCA United Nations Seminar that New York City is indeed every thing it is said to be—something else besides.

It was the first time most of the students had seen New York and those who had been there before occasionally had trouble getting others to move off the street corner facing Times Square. The lights of Broadway were as bright as ever, but some of the "old timers" missed the Bond Clothes sign, the tallest and perhaps the most spectacular of them all, which was being re-conditioned.

Theater's Attraction
Proof of the attraction the theater has for most visitors to New York is the fact that most of the students managed to see two or three productions in the short span of three days. Most of the group saw "The Pajama Game," considered one of the brightest musicals of the current season.

Other productions which several of the group attended included "The Boyfriend," "Fanny," "The Tea House of the August Moon" and "Peter Pan." Further proof that the Broadway bug had bitten was the fact that many of the students had to stand to see certain shows. In addition to plays, many of the students saw the Rockettes Show at Radio City Music Hall. Others attended the Metropolitan Opera and Carnegie Hall.

The full seven course Thanksgiving dinner at Leone's was another feature of the trip many of the students will never forget. The constant complaint after a large relish plate, shrimp cocktail, deviled crabs, and a large plate of spaghetti was "How will I ever be able to eat the main course!"

Wine Bottles
After one of the girls decided that one of the basket covered wine bottles would make a good souvenir of the trip and asked the waiter if he could get her one, the whole group set up a chorus of "Me, too; I want one too." The waiter disappeared in to another room and shortly reappeared proudly displaying a whole armful of assorted shapes and shapes of bottles. In addition, people drinking wine at nearby tables hastened to empty their bottles and add them to the collection.

The group finally made their way to the theater to the accompanying clink of bottles and the mildly startled stares of by-passers, one of whom commented "The sure don't look like they've drunk that much."

Jazz Night
Saturday night was jazz night for much of the group. Birdland where Sarah Vaughn was appearing, Basin Street with Woody Herman and the Metropole were the most frequented spots.

A popular spot with the coeds was the Clock at the Biltmore, the traditional meeting place for college students in New York. They discovered several mutual acquaintances in their conversations with other students.

UN Tour
Other high points of the stay in New York were the tour through the United Nations Building, the tour of the city and the boat ride around Manhattan.

The trip itself was made by bus, with the chief "entertainment" being trying to find a possible sleeping position. The group returned Tuesday at 6 a.m.

Miss Mary Jane Mulvaney, assistant professor of physical education, accompanied the group in the absence of YWCA director Janice Osburn who had been called home by the death of her father.

Students from the University making the trip were: Joyce Laase, Sherry Mangold, Carol Thompson, Jo Knudson, Carliss Druze, Lucigrace Switzer, Althea Blunn, Russell Land and Dick Coffey. Other students in the group were from Nebraska Wesleyan and Doane College.

Congratulations
Although the University football team isn't back yet from their victorious trip to Hawaii, congratulations have already been received by Jack Rogers, Student Council president, from the Associated Students organization of the University of Hawaii.

A telegram received Tuesday states, "Congratulations on Nebraska's 50-0 win; your boys are admirable representatives. We know you are proud of them. Our Aloha."

Using Guatemala as a case study, he pointed out that changes in the last few decades have been brought on by exploitation both by foreigners and domestic interests who refuse to recognize the need for social reform and improvement. He added that the situation is aggravated by the fact that two per cent of the people own seventy per cent of the land.

The four dominant economic interests in Guatemala are the foreign investors, domestic landowners, Indians and mestizos, Ross said. Communist infiltration has been into the mestizo or professional class and the Indians whom no one else had considered important enough to bother with, he added.

Ross stressed that where there is a popular movement aiming to serve the mass of people, the Communists ally themselves with the other side. There is no more talk of helping the poor or of social reform. He gave an example of a movement in Peru in which the Communists fought the people who lived in a dream world of their own and forced them underground.

Ross added that a significant thing about the Communists in Latin America is that although their card-carrying members comprise only two-fifths of one per cent of the population, they are so well organized that their candidates polled 600,000 votes in Brazil, a nation which is traditionally friendly to the U.S.

Latin America Economic Aid Necessary To Avert Second Crisis

Economic aid to Latin American countries is necessary to avert a crisis similar to the one in Guatemala during last summer, Dr. Stanley Ross, assistant professor of history, told NUCWA members Tuesday.

Ross opened his discussion saying, "When you talk about Communism, you must recognize that there are all sorts of Communists. Ideologically speaking, the Latin American aspect of Marxism is planned to appeal to the intellectuals and those interested in reform."

Using Guatemala as a case study, he pointed out that changes in the last few decades have been brought on by exploitation both by foreigners and domestic interests who refuse to recognize the need for social reform and improvement. He added that the situation is aggravated by the fact that two per cent of the people own seventy per cent of the land.

TED WEEMS

Disc Jockeys Praise Style Of MB Band

Lincoln disc jockeys recommend this year's Military Ball band, Ted Weems. Comments such as "very danceable," "ought to draw a good crowd" and "a real sharp vocalist" are some of the recommendations that have come from these band authorities.

Red Ingle, who formerly played with Spike Jones, will be featured as will Bonnie Anne Shaw, a vocalist recently imported from Ireland. Weems carries a personnel of about 15 members.

Ted Weems has been in the music business for over 30 years and was considered one of the "top bands in the land" in 1946. But he has recently completely changed his style. According to Bob Askee of a local radio station, "Weems has a brand new sharp style. He's no longer an old people's band. He is now definitely a band for the young people."

The "new sound" of the band includes both sweet and hot music. Another radio man, Darrell Barker said, "This band is definitely danceable. Weems doesn't stick to that two-beat stuff that has become so common. This music is rhythm, almost shuffle-type rhythm."

According to disc jockey Harry Garrett, Weems started such persons as Elmo Tamer and Perry Como on their way to the top of the music world.

The Outside World

By FRED DALY Staff Writer

Dulles Speaks

The United States plans to "keep its powder dry" and its blood pressure down as long as there are no intolerable acts of Communist aggression, Secretary of State Dulles said in a speech before the 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Republican Senate Leader Knowland and others arguing for a tough, militant course are voices in the wilderness insofar as the President and his chief policy advisors are concerned, Dulles said.

"Our nation will react, and react vigorously, but without allowing ourselves to be provoked into action which would be a violation of our international obligations and which would impair the alliance of the free nations," Dulles said.

Brown Cautions Senate On Censure

The censure of Sen. McCarthy would establish dangerous precedence limiting Congressional investigations, Sen. Ernest S. Brown (R-Nev) told the Senate Tuesday as the first speaker under a debate limitation argument.

The debate ranged over McCarthy's proposal that the censure talks be brought to a showdown Wednesday or Thursday. Sen. McCarthy won approval of a proposal to "proceed to vote" on the first of amendments to a two-count censure resolution pending against him. McCarthy asked for an end to debate and declared that he would withdraw any "discourteous and offensive" language such as that which led to the censure charges. But in "facts and opinions which I held, I am unchanged," he said.

Czech Premier Proposes Red Command

Czech Premier Vilem Siroky has called for a combined military command of eight Communist countries to meet what he called the threat of a rearmend West Germany. Such a command would be the Communist countries' counterpart to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Siroky spoke at the Communist countries European security conference which also heard Premier Otto Grotwohl of East Germany propose creation of an East German army if the Western Powers ratify the Paris agreements authorizing the creation of a West German army.

The Soviet Union probably would head any such combined command. The Western Powers refused to attend the conference.

Adenauer Continues Alliance Fight

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer pressed forward in his fight to rive West Germany to the Atlantic Alliance after parrying a determined challenge to German rearmament in two state elections.

The Chancellor's Christian Democratic Union lost ground in Bavaria and Hesse but held control of the Bavarian state government. This insured the Adenauer regime's retention of its two-thirds majority in the upper house of the federal Parliament whose members are named by the state governments.

Adenauer's controversial agreement with France to "Europeanize" the Saar Valley rated much less attention from the voters than the rearmament problem.

The second Pot Luck With the Profs will be held Sunday. At the last pot luck in the Ag Union, students and instructors relaxed with cards, entertainment and
