US-Russia Resume Talks

Secret talks between the United States and Russia on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan have been reopened after a two-month deadlock. It was learned the negotiations were back on the track after the United States received a note from Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

American officials are uncertain whether the talks will produce Russian agreement either on the International Atomic Energy Agency or other atoms-for-peace problems. They believe Russia is now in a position where it has to give the appearance of being interested in helping mankind by using atomic energy.

For propaganda reasons, if nothing else, Russia cannot afford to let the Allies take the lead. Consequently, officials said Russians backed the atoms-for-peace plan in the UN even though it was sponsored by Mr. Eisenhower.

Navy Criticizes Monty

The Navy has directly criticized British Field Marshal Montgomery and defended aircraft carriers as "massive retaliation" weapons that give the United States a "tremendous advantage." Montgomery, deputy supreme commander in Europe under American General Alfred M. Gruenther, recently called carriers expensive and obsolete. He said no more should be built.

James H. Smith Jr., assistant Navy secretary for air, sharply disputed this view. Smith said there is a "fairly substantial difference between problems as seen by an Englishman with responsibilities in Europe as compared with the problems as visualized in the Pentagon.

The Navy plainly was stung by Montgomery's criticisms made in Los Angeles and London. Smith, in a speech not as well noted, said recently the aircraft carrier was "experiencing a resurrection among air power thinkers everywhere."

Korean Allies To Meet

The United States scheduled another conference with its 15 Korean War allies to discuss how to push in the U.N. Assembly for the release of U.S. airmen and other Allied personnel in Red China's hands.

The Allies were prepared to withstand demands by Russia for Red China to be invited here for the debates and then vote for the Assembly to take up the question. An Assembly session Thursday has already been planned.

One problem facing the Allies was how strong a condemnation of Red China to seek. Another was how to make the U.N. machinery go to work, since the Chinese Communists rejected diplomatic overtures at Geneva and through British channels.

University Theater

'Madwoman' To Open Tonight

"The Madwoman of Chailot," a comedy fantasy by Jean Giraudoux, will be presented Tuesday through Saturday by the University Theater.

The leading figures of the play, Countess Arvella, lives physically in a Paris cellar and mentally in the graciousness of the past. One day she overhears a group of businessmen planning to ruin Chailot because they have been told the sewers contain oil.

Being mad, Countess Arvella attacks the problem more rationally and directly than a sane person, and she finds a simple, quick solution.

Max Whittaker, play director and associate professor of speech and dramatics, says of the play, "This play has an innocent expectancy that is easily accepted. Giraudoux has written some wryly amusing observations on life into it."

Josephine Margolin will star as Countess Arvella. Other leads will be played by Marv Stromer, Ragpicker; Joyce Fangman, Mme. Constance; Marilyn Breitfelder, Mlle. Gabrielle, and Luanne Raun as Mme. Josephine.

IFC Plans Children's Chili Feed

The Interfraternity Council will entertain orphans at a Christmas Party in the Union Ballroom Dec. 15 at 7 p.m.

Other years each individual fraternity has planned a party to entertain the orphans, but it is felt that this one get-together will coordinate efforts to do more good and will cost less money, Tom Woodward, originator of the idea, said.

He thinks that this plan is more organized and will contact more children. At individual parties, the children were not given attention separately, and many times the same children would be invited to two or three parties and others would not be included at any.

Eighty-three children from Whitehall Orphanage between the ages of five and 16 have been invited to the Chili feed. A Santa Claus will pass out presents which the IFC will buy with money taken from house treasures. Tentative plans for entertainment include a band and a vocal group singing Christmas carols.

Each fraternity will send approximately five members to this party so that each child will be entertained by one or two boys. In addition, the members of IFC will attend.

Walt Wright, IFC treasurer, is the chairman for the party and also is in charge of buying the presents. Dick Reische heads the entertainment committee.

Tom Woodward said that if the arrangement works, the Christmas Party will become an annual affair.

Red Cross Groups Plan Carol Tours

The University unit of the Red Cross and other students will go carolling Wednesday to Veterans Hospital, state hospital and West View County home, announced Lillian Kitzelman, special activities chairman for Red Cross.

Carolers will meet at the Union Wednesday at 7 p.m. They will divide into groups and take a bus to one of the institutions. The groups will return to the Union at 8 p.m.

Convention Guest

Foltz Directs Chorus At New York Concert

David Foltz, chairman of the department of music, last week became the first person west of Pennsylvania to be selected as a guest conductor at the New York State School Music Association convention.

The convention was held in Rochester and is composed of the outstanding musicians from New York. It is the largest of its kind in the country.

Foltz was asked to conduct the choral group at a concert held during the last day of the four-day convention. The concert was held before a crowd of an estimated 5,000 people in Rochester's Eastman School of Music concert hall.

Foltz included two of his own numbers in the program, "She Walks in Beauty," and "In the Beginning, God." The group was composed of the outstanding singers in New York high schools, who had undergone a careful screening and selection process.

Foltz considered participation in such projects "important professionally for the University," since it gives the University Music Department favorable national notoriety. He has been conducting choral groups of this kind for almost 10 years and is one of eight or 10 employed regularly in this field.

This year Foltz has conducted at state music conventions in Iowa and Texas. He will conduct at Florida in January and plans to direct at Kansas, Indiana and New Mexico in the spring.

The Nebraska State School Music convention was held two weeks ago.
