Student-Faculty Seminar To Discuss Turkish Trip

A student-faculty seminar, discussing the recent trip to Turkey to organize a new university, will be held Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Union faculty lounge.

The seminar will feature a panel discussion by five men who participated in the organization of Ataturk University in eastern Turkey.

The men are Dr. A. T. Anderson, associate professor of history; Dr. K. O. Broady, director of Extension Division; E. L. Lambert, dean of the College of Agriculture; Dr. Elvin J. Frolick, chairman of the agronomy department, and Dr. Carl Olson, professor of animal pathology and hygiene. Allen Overcash, junior in business administration, will act as moderator.

The faculty committee returned from Turkey last month after working for six weeks assisting in the establishment of a university similar to American land-grant colleges.

The group toured eastern Turkey and decided on the best site and form for the new university. Turkey, which has only three universities located in the larger cities, has been in need of a university in the eastern section of the country. The project has been in consideration since 1929, when Kemal Ataturk, then ruler and after whom the new university is named, first introduced the idea.

The establishment of a university in Turkey patterned after American colleges will be a new development in the Near East. Most of the other universities in the area are patterned after European universities. Instructors will have to be trained in the United States.

The faculty group conferred with ministers of education and agriculture, as well as the prime minister.

The Union seminar committee is in charge of the program. Ellen Pickett is chairman.

'Unusual Professor'

Crawford Acclaimed For Creative Concept

By JULIE MARR
Staff Writer

According to the New York World-Telegram "one of America's most unusual professors is Robert P. Crawford of the University of Nebraska."

Twenty-three years ago, Professor Crawford set up a pioneering course in creative thinking at the University and has now received national acclaim after the publication of his book, "The Techniques of Creative Thinking."

His book was immediately accepted by three nationally known book clubs: The Business Leader Book Club, the Salesmen Book Club and the Executives Book Club. Over 25,000 copies have been sold since its publication in April.

The United Features Syndicate, Inc., recently bought rights to publish excerpts from Crawford's book in national newspapers. To date, 40 papers have run this series, prefaced with an account of the course Crawford conducts at the University. These reviews tell of his conviction that smart ideas are the result of training, not luck, and that the art could be achieved by the average man and woman.

The 61-year-old noted educator, traveler and lecturer gives a step-by-step formula for the now-recognized process. The fact that there is no monopoly on ideas is also stressed, as well as Crawford's conviction that everyone can uncover the hidden powers of their minds.

Noted businessmen and women have sought out the University professor as a result of his course here which has helped many to rise to the top of their chosen fields. Crawford recently stated, "Quite a bit of credit has come to our school of journalism through this pioneer course which has grown in a tremendous fashion."

Excerpts from "Techniques of Creative Thinking" have been syndicated in papers across the United States. A Chicago Tribune critic had this to say: "It immediately activates the mind."

The New York Times said "Absorbing reading" and Alex Osborn, noted advertising man and friend of the professor, said "Professor Robert P. Crawford has had more experience in teaching creativity than any other man I ever heard of. 'The Techniques of Creative Thinking' proves he is an authority on the subject and a master of readable writing."

Conference Gives OK

NU Band To Escort Squad To Bowl Game

The University ROTC marching band directed by Professor Don Lentz will go to Miami to play for the Orange Bowl game.

The 120 piece band will leave Lincoln Dec. 27 by train and will leave from Miami directly after the game on New Year's Day. They will arrive back in Lincoln on January 3. Housing arrangements have not been completed.

Saturday the Big Seven Conference agreed to allow the participating school $15,000 each year to send its band to the Orange Bowl.

The Scarlet and Cream musicians will play five minutes at half time and then join in with the mass band for an eight-minute performance. The University band will also participate in the pre-game show and the New Year's Eve parade.

New Year's will mark the second Bowl appearance for the band and football team. Professor Lentz took the band to Pasadena's Rose Bowl in 1941 the Huskers met Stanford.

The $15,000 will be given to the school as part of the Orange Bowl expenses prior to the division of the proceeds among the remaining members of the conference. With the approval for the band's trip by the Big Seven, the Huskers this year and the conference's representative in succeeding years will send bands to the game.

With this arrangement the participating school will be insured against the necessity of expending athletic funds or launching public subscription campaigns, such as Kansas did in 1948 to send its band to Miami.

More than 50 floats and 20 bands will participate in the King Orange parade which will depict an "American Sings" theme. Some of these bands will come from Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan. Representing the eastern seaboard will be the United States Air Force Drum and Bugle Corps, Washington, D. C., and a 40-man drill team from Bowling Field.

Included in the Orange Bowl events are two parades, three football games, a two-day international tennis tournament, a four-day international regatta, a kickoff luncheon and two pageants.

Tax Cuts Postponed

A postponement of tax cuts previously scheduled to go into effect April 1 will be asked by the Administration, a Republican Congressional leader said Monday. The GOP leader, who asked not to be quoted by name, attended an all-day conference between President Eisenhower and Republican Congressional leaders.

Although a decision to extend present tax rates had been generally expected, this was the first official authorization. The new tax cuts would cost the Treasury some three billion dollars a year.

The Republican official said more time was devoted to taxes and the fiscal situation generally at the morning session of the all-day meeting than to any other topic. The White House session dealt with foreign as well as domestic issues, with Secretary of State Dulles briefing GOP leaders for 45 minutes on international affairs.

'Fool Statements'

Former President Harry Truman said Monday that "fool statements by persons in high places" cost the United States friends in the conduct of this country's foreign policy. However, he said he was satisfied with steps being taken toward freeing American airmen imprisoned in Red China on spy charges.

Truman added that foreign policy is based on "continued support of the United Nations for peace in the world." He declined to say what he would do to free the fliers imprisoned by the Chinese Reds.

He also said he believed President Eisenhower will have less trouble with the incoming Congress than he had with the Republican-dominated Senate and House in the last Congress. Truman's statements came in a press conference kicking off a day of activities to be climaxed by a $70 a plate birthday dinner.

Condon Resigns

Corning Glass Works in Corning, New York, Monday announced the resignation as research director of Dr. Edward U. Condon, former chief of the U.S. Bureau of Standards whose security clearance was suspended by the Navy in October.

The announcement said Condon plans to live in Berkeley, Calif., but his services as a consultant will be available to assist in carrying on Corning's long-range program into the structure of glass.

The Corning announcement said Condon wishes to make no further effort at this time to obtain clearance that would give him access to government information, and has withdrawn his application for clearance.

Nuclear Progress

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission said in Washington Monday that the United States is "making very rapid and satisfactory progress" and continues to lead Russia in the nuclear weapons field.

Asked in an interview in U.S. News and World Report whether this country is "substantially ahead of Soviet Russia" in the atomic arms race, Strauss said that the United States had started earlier and has more facilities. "Most importantly, we have a devoted group of free men at work on the problems," he said.
